"Arms and the Man" Opens October 12th

"Arms and the Man," the fourth annual tour show, opens Wednesday, October 12.

The leading roles are June Conrey as Raïna, Ed Kilkinson as Major Sarrazin, and Chet Carolin as Captain Bluntschli. "Arms and the Man," written by Bernard Shaw takes place in Switzerland in the year 1885. It is the advents of a Swiss officer who joins the Russian army against the Bulgarians.

While the officer is being chased by his enemy, he seeks escape in the house of a well-known family. The daughter and mother shelter him, not only from his enemies, but also from the young lady's father and future husband.

Several triangle love affairs develop throughout the play. Others in the cast are Craig McNab, Março Scholman, Roger Gradmer, John McCuba, and Jan-nina Pohlscheck.

Construction Progresses on New College Campus

The first phase of Ithaca College's million-dollar construction program will be completed by September, 1961. Five dormitories, providing new accommodations for 686 students, and a student union building-complete with cafeteria—will be ready for use at the beginning of the next fall semester.

The construction program has been made possible through a federal loan amounting to nearly $3 million dollars. In addition, several fund-raising drives are underway to obtain the necessary balances. The cost of the first phase is estimated at nearly $4 million.

Upon completion of the construction program, the south lake area, covering an area of 320 acres, will house nineteen buildings. Also included will be athletic fields and parking areas.

Dean's List Announced

The Dean's List for last semester was announced today. The Dean's List includes names of all students who are in the top 10% of the class in their department and who have a quality point average of 2.0 or over.

There are 198 students of last semesters list—46 in the Arts and Sciences Dept., 52 in Phy. Ed.; 31 in Physical Therapy; and 31 in the Music Dept.

W.S.G. Adopts Foster Child

Women's Student Government is sponsoring its annual Kim tag day, Wednesday, October 12.

Six years ago W.S.G. adopted a Korean child, Sun Soo (Kim) under the Foster Parent's Plan. The tag day was originated to raise money for the support of Kim.

W.S.G. was recently informed that Kim is self-supporting. Since Kim no longer needs financial aid, W.S.G. has adopted another child, Antigone.

AT COUNCIL MEETING

College Policy Attack Labeled "Emotional, Selfish"—Dr. Clarke

by JOE GILLAN AND JIM AVESA

Dean of Students, Dr. Earl E. Clarke, last night labeled "selfish and emotional!" a prepared address attacking administrative policies read by the president of the Sophomore Class before a regular meeting of the Ithaca College Student Council.

The address, seven pages long, left in its wake few unscelched administrative policies.

L.C. Broadcasters

Take to Air Waves

WICB-AM, FM and TV broadcasting operations are scheduled to get underway next Monday evening, October 10. The Ithaca College student-operated radio and television stations will conduct educational, broadcasting activities through May 1961 via the airwaves and the community cable system.

Nine weekly programs will be present this year.

WICB-TV, approaching its third year of telecasting to the Ithaca community, will initiate the 1960-61 season with the return of one of last year's programs—"Tempo."

"Tempo," a program of classical and semi-classical music, will take the air at 8:30 p.m. on Monday and will feature "The Cornell University Trio" playing instrumental selections in the classical vein.

Following "Tempo," on Tuesday evenings, a panel discussion program, "Controversy," will be aired from 7:30 to 8:00. A presidential debate will be the subject discussed on the first program.

Dr. Martin Abend will discuss the decline in American strength. (Continued on page 3)

PASSES FIRST "EXAM"

Duties Of A Dean Of Women Differ From Those Of A Teacher, Helen H. Hood Finds

by JOE GILLAN

"Handing out special permissions and compasses is quite a bit different from handing out examinations and grades,"

This is the opinion of Helen M.

Hood, Ithaca College faculty number for 15 years, and Ithaca College Dean of Women since July 1. There are four work peaks in a school year for a teacher," believes Mrs. Hood. "There is always a great deal of work during midterm and final examination periods," she says.

There's only one "exam period" a year for a Dean of Women, she suggested Mrs. Hood. "But it's a big one."

This is from about July 1 to the opening of school. During this three month period the administration must plan on providing accommodations for the "grieving number" of entering students.

It was read by class president, David Canteen. The address, Canteen said, was prepared and approved by the sophomore class at a meeting last week.

There were about 35 persons at the class meeting. Canteen was elected to read the address before the council.

"We object to the deletion of our academic and corporate needs while our school is undergoing transformation in view of the demands of the future," the address continued.

"Our dormitories are overcrowded and inadequate," said Dr. Clarke noted that, "While in the past at least 10% of those who apply for admission to Ithaca College do not show up, 100% of those who paid their deposit showed up this fall."

W.S.G. was recently informed "that this year the college had over 50 woman students who had no place to live."

We have been faced with a dilemma: to either tell the many applicants there is no room and thus keep them out, possibly forto, or to move over and let them have some room," Dr. Clarke said.

"We thought it was more important that these new students be given the opportunity to learn. I am disappointed to find students here who are too selfish to budge a little and make room," he added.

Over 60 students stayed and listened to Dr. Clarke speak after the regular council meeting was adjourned.

Council president Fred Douglas appointed a committee of council members to "look into the problems brought up."

The committee, Douglas said, will arrange a meeting of itself, Dr. Clarke and College president, Howard I. Dillingham.

This Clarke decision to comment immediately after Canteen had delivered the address.

A tirode of that type is not even worthy of my attention. It is nothing less than rudeness to de-Segregation At I.C.

“Phy-Eds are . . .” “Music students are . . .” “Drama students are . . .” “Liberal Arts students are . . .” “Radio and T.V. students are . . .” “Physio students are . . .” And on and on it goes here at Ithaca College. How many times have you heard these things said; how many times have you said them yourself.

Why are these things being said? They are being said as a result of a policy of segregation in every sphere of life at Ithaca College. This segregation is a policy of convenience. Segregation in our classrooms, otherwise known as block teaching, is detrimental to our students. Instruction to students in departmental blocks appears to be an easy solution to scheduling problems. But is it the easiest way the best way?

Segregation is carried over into the dorms. For example physical education majors live with other physical education majors and music students live with other music students. Since they associate in classes and dorms with people of their own departments, they naturally carry this association into all phases of social life. The majority of fraternities and sororities on campus are strictly occupational organizations. All day, every day, students are exposed to the segregated activities of their departments. This segregated activity breeds intolerance. Acquiring intolerance should not necessarily result of a policy of segregation in every sphere of life at Ithaca College. How many times have you heard that case, I'll write whatever you say.

“My noble girls!—Ah, women! women! Look, Our lamp is spent, We out—Good Sirs, take heart!”—

Anthony & Cleopatra, Act IV, Scene XIII

“Hey Shirley! The provector just flicked the curtain lights; you guys better take off.”

“This is my treasurer; let him speak, my lord, Upon his peril, that I have reserved to myself working.”

Titus Andronicus, Act II, Scene II

“Will the treasurer please read the financial report.”

“O brother, speak with possibilities, and do not break into these deep extremities.”

Titus Andronicus, Act III, Scene I

“... So you had an A average going into the finals and he still flunked you?”

“But these cannot I command to nothing.”

Hamlet, Act III, Scene I

“No mourning bell shall ring her burial; but throw her forth to beasts and birds of prey.”

Titus Andronicus, Act V, Scene III

“... I'm not sorry ... the same thing goes for any other girls who try to get on the bus before all the guys are used.”

“Call all your tribes together, praise the gods, and make triumphant fires; strew flowers before them.”

Coriolanus, Act V, Scene V

“There will be a meeting of the Inter-Religious Council tonight."

“'Tis, be, or not to be,—that is the question. Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, or to take arms against a sea of troubles and by opposing them, end them?”

Hamlet, Act III, Scene I

There’s More To The Debates

ly restrained by a too-formal debate vehicle. In a setting which was quietly overdramatic, Nixon and Kennedy were alternately asked questions by reporters of the four major broadcast networks. After each answer, the opponent was entitled a rejoinder. However, the first respondent was no longer able to define his statement. In addition, the interrogators were inhibited or prohibited from further probing with questions. Heaven so, it was NBC’s chance next—and on to Kennedy. One example of this was the economic question concerning debt reduction, interest rates and manipulation of the platforms. In all, issues were dealt with too shallowly, especially in light of the fact that four such programs, an hour each, were scheduled. The tired questions themselves, as posed by the network probes, were, it seems, aimed at stirring up surplus misadventures rather than the getting into basic issues. Are you too young, Mr. Kennedy? Ad nauseam. The unfortunate selection of reporters was, I think, the product of a continual, firm print and television media. The print reporters have for some time been trying to keep “free-loading” broadcast people out of regular press conferences with notables and forcing them to have their own with the same notables (Governor Rockefeller acquitted to this situation). Newspaper people have felt that broadcasters have been living off the more experienced and informed print reporters’ questions. This first vastly-public debate, then represented a retaliation: no newspapermen were on the panel posing questions for Mmea. Nixon and Kennedy. It was the broadcasters’ show and the priority could write their stories as they watched on their news-gathering competitor’s screen. A bitter pill indeed. Debates two and three will include newspapermen, but the finale again will feature only broadcast people.

Another short-comings of the debate structure is the exclusion of minority party interests. Section 315 of the Communications Act was vigorously pushed by Congress to allow broadcasters to carry the series without bowls for equal time from persons of Las Daly’s stature. It seems, however, that the baby may have gone out with the bathwater. Serious minority parties such as the Socialists are not, in this well attended series, able to put forth their philosophies. With apparently no challenge to the goals of the candidates, this structure seems to lack the vibrant atmosphere characteristic of the libertarian ideal envisioned by Jefferson.

While, to be sure, these minority parties are not “popular” can they ever gain momentum if mass media arbitrarily shuts them out? Students of political science will acknowledge that much of our contemporary political and social situation was seeded by non-Republican Democratic parties.

The fact that television did present and will present such historic events to millions of people without cajoling, editing and jumping is the content may well have side-effects for the broadcasting industry. I suspect these coverage go far in helping eradicate the stained image left by errors of omission and commission by the television people in the past two years. The industry’s spokesmen will point out that the medium has proved it can provide a service more durable than the schedule of shoot-ups. But, they can legitimately point out, no one can expect a program of the Nixon-Kennedy debate’s stature to appear on television every night, but neither can anyone expect material of similar quality to appear consistently in other mass or theatrical medium.

(Enough has been written already on the economics of television and its voracious appetite for material to require the review of the problem here. This situation will be a handy talking point when the next Congressional committee starts pushing for more program control by government. While not done completely altruistically, the networks and stations across the country do lose about half a million dollars in revenue for each of these encounters. Another side-effect of the debate series and the consequent frenetic image for television is in the realm of advertising and future programming as a worthwhile commercial undertaking.

One final note about the audience. Some more difficult changes need to take place in it if our political democracy is to function effectively. This situation happened:

Scene: Living room A. 10:19 p.m.

“Boy, lookit Kennedy clobber Nixon. (Nixon talking, reaction of) Lookit Kennedy. Whatever Nixon’s saying ... Kennedy can hardly believe it, it’s so crazy.”

Scene: Living room B. 10:19 p.m.

“Boy, lookit Nixon work over there. Kennedy. Nixon talking, reaction shot of Kennedy.) Lookit Kennedy. He’s so out in left field he can’t even understand what Nixon’s saying.”

Performance Dates For Scampers Set

“SCAMPERS III” has launched into planning and assembling its mid-winter show, announced Director and Jim Captain today.

SCAMPERS is the annual student-originated musical at Cornell College. The script, music, design, dances, are, in fact all phases of SCAMPERS are completely student-planned, student-executed.

The production dates have been tentatively set for February 8.11. Beginning auditions will take place on November 6th, and all proofs of original written material should be submitted to either Charles Moss or Production Manager, Jim Captain, at least two weeks prior to this date. Acting, singing, and dancing auditions will be held prior to Christmas vacation, probably during the first week of December.

Along with Charles Moss as Director and Jim Captain as Production Manager, Craig MacNab has been named as Assistant Director. Position of Stage Manager, Ann. Stage Manager, Scenario Designer, Technical Director, Photographer, and Costume Designer are available. The sign-up sheet is posted on the bulletin board adjacent to the Snack Bar.

on “Problems of America” every Wednesday night from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

A new half-hour show, “Dancing Techniques,” will feature Mr. Vergis Correa, T.C. dancing instructor, Wednesday evenings at 8.

Four fifteen minute shows will be presented on Thursday evenings. “Critics Weekly,” a review of theatrical goings-on about town will be seen from 8 to 8:15, and will be followed by the classical piano stylings of Dan Ellis on the “Doctor Ellie Show.” M.J. Carra will report the world and local news at 8:50, and will be followed by “Lockerroom Outlook,” a fifteen sports show hosted by Bill Coleman.

Community Spotlight will be seen each Friday evening, 7 to 7:50, completing the broadcasting week.

Even of the nine shows planned will be directed by students in the Radio-TV Department.

Concurrently, WICB-AM and FM radio will begin broadcasting on week-days from 6 p.m. to midnight with a program formula built upon “good music” and news in depth, according to a statement by Mike Brockman, program director.

Foster Child

Antigone is a seven year old Greek girl with brown hair and green eyes. She lives with her father, mother and grandmother, who are both unable to work, in an old house.

Antigone is a third grade student who wants to become a teacher. As a teacher she will be able to earn enough money to support herself.

Under the Foster Parent’s Plan, Antigone will receive aid and to know “someone” is interested in her welfare.

by next September of five dorms—three for men and two for women—at the College’s new campus site on South Hill.

These dorms will house about 220 women and 568 men, says Mrs. Hood.

A graduate of the University of Rochester, Mrs. Hood also is the faculty adviser of Women’s Student Government and Interfraternity Council here.

She served for many years as assistant and a former advisor of the college’s Freshman Camp, and as a member of the college’s alumni honorary society, Orande.

Her husband, J. Douglas Hood, teaches a course on biology at Cornell University.

Another school year has desco~ed upon us and they're asking me to help fill space in the Ithaca again, so here's column number one of Pete's Page. This summer was quite a busy one for many of I.C. baseball players. Perry Noon, '59 outfielder, Bob Curly, (left hitter for the 59 squad), and Brian Mee, hard hitting catcher from last spring's Bombers, were on the same team this summer. All three were in the Cub IMS at St. Cloud, Minne­sota in the Class 'C' Northern League.

Kenny Slater, of the '57 frosh team, who signed for the Yan­kis a couple of years back, also played in the Northern League, catching for Fargo-Moorhead. Bobby Graham, who pitched and batted the 59 Bombers into the NCAA district playoffs had a seven and ten record with San Francisco in the Class 'C' Northern Bombers, were on the same team two years back, also opening two weeks ago, wrecked the Bombers with his run­ning two weeks ago.

Under the direction of George Lyon, the Bombers are on the rise.

Tri-Meet Held Today at Cortland

Coach Bob Denoncourt's harriers are on the rise. Coach Lyon ran the team via telephone from the press box. Brooklyn was reported weak on punt de­fense, yet the Bombers seldom went to the air. As Brooklyn guards were putting stiff rush on I.C. quarterback Chuck Brady in low drive kickoffs of Ron Segal completely kept Brooklyn deep in their own territory. Two kicks put visitors inside the ten and a third was nullified be­cause of an I.C. fake. The lack of a public address system was apparent to fans who like to keep up on other scores; especially Cornell's when the Big Red is be­hind. For the first time in four years, Bombers play two home games in a row, with Post here Saturday. . . Then the big one, Cortland, at Cortland. Ar­ch rival Rod A. Dragons are win­ning this year, having lost to Al­fred and C. W. Post. West Chester fullback Joe Jacone, who wrecked the Bombers with his run­nings two weeks ago, was-hand­ed to the ECAC (Eastern College Athletic Conference) weekly All American team for his performance against Ithaca . . . W. C. center Leo Gazy also received honor­able mention.

Time out for the Page this week, back with more in two weeks.
