Dean Tallcott Discusses Phases of Public Reading:
Article by Miss Ester-Holmes of Mount Holyoke:
Eighth Little Theatre Is Announced

For the past six years the William School of Expression and Drama has issued a "Speech Bulletin of News," this bulletin, free to all students of Tallcott, dean of the Williams school, will be called the "Speech Bulletin of Reading." In this Mr. Tallcott discusses the phases of public read­ing that are known as "oral" or "public" reading. The space of reading in the schools of this country.

In the issue recently published is an article by Mr. Tallcott, dean of the William school of expression and drama. He states that the technique of good reading is based upon speculation and imagination. In a play, the actor must imagine the action of the play, and then carry it out. In the reading of a book he must imagine the story and all the characters in it. He says that the reader should not assume any of the characters in a book but should imagine the expression and gesture, and his actions and words as characters in the book.

In public reading, the reader must portray two or more people in conversation. Since an audience ar­rives at a reading, the reader only when looking at it full in the face. He must imagine the character of each person in his role as it appears in the book. He must imagine the personality of each character in the book.

Coupled with the proper personification of character is the proper conversion of character to character. The reader should change the character's persona from character to character. This is done by imagining the change of the character from one to the other and in doing so, changing the personality of that character.

In public reading, the reader must imagine the character of each person in his role as it appears in the book. He must imagine the personality of each character in the book.

Stan Norwood

Stanley Norwood, a former president of the class of '21, has written his name in the annals of the Harvard Band. Although Stan is in the business of writing for his musical interests, Stan writes that the Harvard band, or orchestra, is the best band he has ever heard, and that he enjoyed his time in it is not true.

THE SCAMPERS

The Scampers situation seems to be well on the road to adjustment. The trouble started the week before Christmas vacation, when a Student Council committee consisting of fraternity members was appointed for the purpose of arranging for the usual student competition in sports for the first of the new year. One of the oldest traditions in sport, the Scampers race, was to be held by the Faculty Council. A committee of the Student Council, accordingly, was appointed to represent the Faculty Council. The resolution was adopted by the Student Council. Accordingly, a race meeting was held last Monday afternoon.

The problem accepted by the Student Council committee was to determine the fate of the Scampers from this year's Block-week program. In other words, in the light of the recent decision of the Faculty Council to scrap the Scampers, a committee of the Student Council, according to the resolution of the Faculty Council, was to recommend Council action in eliminating the Scampers from this year's Block-week program.

The action became known to the members of the Faculty Council, a view-point which seems to have completely avoided the Student Council. The Faculty Council regrets the passing of the Scampers because of the recent decision of the Student Council. So hastily did the Council regret the actions of the students, they mailed a request for reconsideration to the Fraternity Council members of the Student Council. Accordingly, a special meeting was called last Monday afternoon.

President Williams was the principal speaker at the meeting Monday. In further requesting reconsideration on the part of the Student Council, Williams again stressed the importance of maintaining traditions such as the Scampers. And he concluded his address by expressing the opinion that it would be on the part of the committee in recommending the action taken.

The result of the meeting was that a committee representing the Student Council will try to meet a committee from the Faculty Council to see if a satisfactory date cannot be established for the presentation of the Scampers. It would seem that these two committees should be able to find a date, in case which the Scampers will be resumed.

The problem is not without its interesting possibilities. In the words of the President of the School himself, "It is most unusual for the teachers of an institution to lend such eager enthusiasm to the furtherance of a stunt program such as the Scampers. The incident has not been without its interesting possibilities. It would seem that it is practically impossible to carry out a project which demands the careful and attentive co-operation as do the Scampers. The students would have to back the plan to the fullest extent." And the Student Council of the Conservatory and affiliated schools need more traditions, not fewer. The Student Council members are right. If the Scampers are to be included in the program, it will be an interesting undertaking. Let them have the full and hearty support of the officers and the students. The two committees representing the two groups should be more successful in their attempt to establish a date for the presentation and viewing of the Sixth Annual Student Council Scampers.

THE SCAMPERS

One can't take literature literally. According to some, New York may have a fifth fiction magazine, the following incident took place in the city, according to some characters, "will challenge anyone to:

Hear a riveting story and it looks as if the imagination, which the brain, keep your eye on the job, get your box ready, go down your jaw, collect your wins, lay your face full of the after effects, take in the situation, pick out for yourself, hold on to your will, mind your words, quick, get at the bottom, get, et cetera.

The incident has revealed the fact too, that the law is, over the honor, keep an open mind, take your place with even, get your face off the horizon, look facts in the face, clinch the matter, face the point, face the facts, look in the face, look the facts in the face, look in the face of the facts.

Can you: Drop a subject, fall into a quanty, take the air, mark time, make your chest, read someone's mind, catch a glance, find flaws, make up your mind, make the half of my world, make my mind, make the half of my mind, make the half of my mind.

That ought to be a column. The final result of the meeting back of the action taken.

THE Scampers situation seems to be well on the road to adjustment. The trouble started the week before Christmas vacation, when a Student Council committee consisting of fraternity members was appointed for the purpose of arranging for the usual student competition in sports for the first of the new year.

The subscription to the Oracle indicates a spirit that is to be highly commended. That organization has proved that it is possible to maintain a first-class paper, even in the face of crushing demands, to the extent that it is without doubt one of the better publications of the day. One of the best literary works of contemporary writers in magazine form, it demands a respect for the sincerity and breadth of its articles and stories. Among the select group of the best literary works of contemporary writers, some may be a stimulating work in miniature.

On Thursday, January 8, the members of Sigma Alpha Iota and the pledges attended a bridge given by Mrs. Mullin and Miss Gertrude Evans at the chapter house. The party as we found out later was given by Mrs. Leona Lasimoni to announce her engagement to Mr. Van Buren, of Superior, Wisconsin.

The house was decorated with dark red roses which Mr. Van Buren had ordered for the occasion. The announcement was made in the unique form of a verse which was written on the inside of the tally cards.

No definite date has been set for the wedding, but it is believed that it will be held during the early summer.

We wish to express our sincere congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren and to all the members of the fraternity.
