CONQUEST is the dream of every Freshman upon entering college. Some see themselves as literary geniuses; others as stellar lights in the social world.

This dream of achievement is especially prevalent in a school like our own where the fine arts constitute the major courses of study. Probably in few institutions in the United States is there such a profusion of talent, such as affiliation of schools, and such ambition for careers.

We are very fortunate in having a faculty to helpfully criticise and encourage. They see that all earnest endeavor is duly recognized and rewarded. But after all, there is no real recognition that does not come from within. It is the realization that one has put forth his best effort that makes any achievement worth while. Outsiders may overestimate, but never our own minds. As Mr. Williams so well said, "What you are determines what you are to become."

A good hunter concentrates on good hunting. He sees that his guns are clean, and well loaded. He trains and equips his body for any emergency or circumstance. He teaches his nerves control so that discouragements and delays will not make unsteady the hand or the eye. And then when game falls he knows that it is not "luck", but the reward of perfection.

So it is with every student in our school. We must see to our bodies and our habits so that our brains will be steady and sure. We must learn to take criticism and discouragement. We must strive for progress,—if slowly, then steadily.

Then when conquest comes we can look back with glad hearts, knowing our own earnest endeavor has achieved for us "Good Hunting".

K. V. B.

She nestled against the two strong arms that held her. She pressed her cheek against the smooth skin, so tan, so glowing. "How handsome!" she cried, admiring the manly back and the sturdy legs, "How handsome! I adore a leather upholstered chair!"

What do you say that this school publish a song called "Radium"?

We want news—not reviews. Help us keep your paper up-to-date!
STEFAN SOPKIN CONCERT
ARTIST OF INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION
NOW MASTER TEACHER IN THE VIOLIN DEPARTMENT

...Will, Appear in Recital October 3rd....

The following excerpt from the Chicago Herald-Examiner, will best introduce our latest addition to the Faculty to our readers:

"A more decided and convincing success has not been heard in Chicago concert halls for many a day. Mr. Sopkin would seem to have every attribute of distinguished violin art. His technical development has attained virtuosity. His musicianship has authority of maturity, vitalized by the refreshing impulse of youth. His tone is pure, of great expressive variety."

Another writer has said of Mr. Sopkin—"In the forefront of contemporary violinists of the younger generation stands conspicuously the name of Stefan Sopkin, an American by birth and early training, who, though in his middle twenties, has already achieved enviable successes both in the country of his birth and abroad. The spiritual guidance and inspiration of the foremost masters of his instrument, Auer, Ysaye and Flesch added to a natural talent and a sincere regard for his art, have combined to endow young Sopkin with the three essentials of violinistic mastery—refinement of style, musically interpretation, technical precision. Each of these is a sine qua non of artistic maturity, the presence of all make Stefan Sopkin a worthy member of the Hall of Fame of American Violinists."

This great artist is now a member of our Faculty, and will begin teaching at once. He is an active member of Phi Mu Alpha Fraternity and will in all probability live in their new Frat House.

Mr. Sopkin will appear in recital in the little Theatre Monday, October 3rd at 8:15 o'clock. All students wishing tickets for friends may get these free of charge by applying to Miss Howland, Registrar.

JULIA SUTTON TO TRAVEL WITH "SEVENTH HEAVEN"

Everyone in the "Con" will be happy to hear that Julie Sutton has secured a thirty-two week's engagement to travel the middle East with "Seventh Heaven." Julie will understudy the lead and play the role of Arlette.

It is an unusual opportunity for a beginner and we have faith that for her it will be a step to big things. She made her debut here last Spring in the title role of "The Piper". We shall miss Julie this year, not only in dramatics, but in all the student organizations.

IN THE BOOK WORLD

"Sorrell and Son" by Warwick Deeping

In one of the most talked of books of the season, the author of "Doomsday" has succeeded in portraying the results of an undying will power of Capt. Sorrell, an English gentleman. Deserted by a pleasure-loving and materialistic wife, Sorrell finds himself left almost poverty stricken to care for his son "Kit". His ambition is to raise "Kit" as a gentleman, but to educate him to meet all the trials and difficulties of life with his eyes open. "Kit" lives his life as the son of a hotel porter with both chagrin and pleasure. As he grows to manhood his desire to become a surgeon is intensified only by his father's desire for his success. Sorrell becomes a "big man" in the hotel business to give "Kit" a chance to succeed. "Kit" proves his worth and finds happiness in his marriage with an authoress only to have it dimmed by his father's death. But Sorrell's grit, his wisdom and his understanding, live on forever in the minds and hearts of "Kit" and his family.

Thus endeth this well written novel of Warwick Deeping's. Its great depth of understanding, its character development, together with the greatness and bigness of its theme make it a book well worth reading.

TO I. C. M.
A dear school, a near school, Is I. C. M. to me.
A gay school, a play school, A jolly place to be.
A smile school, worth-while school, Sincere in heart and hand,
A real school, ideal school, The best school in the land!
A work school, not shirk school, Each shoulder to the wheel,
Each man here a fan here, For it's the way we feel!
A team school, a dream school, Remembered through the years.
Worth knowing school, a growing school, So, I. C. M. three cheers!

By a Newcomer.

NEW RULING OF W. S. G. A.

Any girl enrolling in the Ithaca Conservatory and Affiliated Schools, having previously attended another school or college, but having been classified scholastically as a freshman in this school, will be considered a member of the Freshman Class. However, upon presentation of a record of good conduct from the Dean of the former School, she may be entitled socially to sophomore privileges.

Signed:
Kathryn Hill,
President of W. S. G. A.

PHI EPSILON KAPPA

The Conservatory wishes to congratulate the Phi Epsilon Kappa boys upon their fine new fraternity house at 316 East Court Street. They were kind enough to take us all—faculty and students—over it on Monday night. We hope and believe that they will have a very happy and successful year in their new home.

"KNOW ITHACA"
THE ITHACA JOURNAL-NEWS

Few persons, when they buy their newspaper from the boy on the street or find it on their front porch, left there by the carrier, or receive it through the mail, realize the time and effort that goes into the making of that paper and the speed with which a newspaper is produced.

The making of a newspaper is a complicated thing. At the office of The Ithaca Journal-News, some 80 persons are engaged daily except Sunday in turning out the newspaper that keeps the City of Ithaca informed on the progress of the world, the country, and the city. Some of these persons even work Sunday when necessary to get the news.

The making of a newspaper is no easy task. At the office of The Ithaca Journal-News, some 80 persons are engaged daily except Sunday in turning out the newspaper that keeps the City of Ithaca informed on the progress of the world, the country, and the city. Some of these persons even work Sunday when necessary to get the news.

Each page of The Journal-News is scheduled to go to press at a certain time of the day. The paper appears on the streets less than 15 minutes after it leaves the composing room, where the advertising and editorial copy is put into type.

The work on each edition begins earlier than the day upon which it appears. Advertisements are put into type usually the day before. Correspondents in the various towns in Tompkins County send in their news notes a day ahead of the day they appear. Stories, such as "Know Ithaca," are written several days ahead.

At 8 o'clock in the morning the task of assembling the day's news begins. Reporters go out on their "beats," seeking the news, returning to the office to write their stories. The Associated Press wire opens early in the morning, and it clicks out, in Morse code, its report of the news of the world outside Ithaca.

All stories are edited, and headlines are written, and the "copy," as it is called, goes to the composing room. The process becomes more mechanical, although skilled typesetters and compositors have much to do with the daily editions.

Pictures printed in the newspapers are called "cuts." They are mounted on iron bases to bring the surface of the cut type-high for printing. Many pictures come into the office in the form of matrices. Shell casts are made from these matrices, and they are mounted like the electrotypes and other forms used in a printing office.

An important department of a daily newspaper is the business office, where subscriptions, classified advertising, and other activities of management are carried on.

The Ithaca Journal-News was founded May 1, 1815, by Ebenezer Mack of Owego. It was named at that time The American Journal and it absorbed The Seneca Republican founded by Jonathan Ingersoll shortly after the establishment of Mack's paper.

The last warm breath of the azure day
Blows sweet from the purpling hollow,—
I see the first star blaze, and the moon swing higher;
Beyond the wall calls the leaf-laden wind—
A voice my heart must follow,
Like the red leaf, flying, kissed with Autumn fire.

GUSTAV NELSON IN PIANO RECITAL

Gustav Nelson appeared in recital Saturday evening, September 24th, at the home of Arnold Cornelleson in Buffalo, N. Y. Gustav gave the finale concert of the season and among his numbers were Beethoven's C Major Sonata, and Rubenstein's Staccato Etude.

Gustav came into the "Con" last year as a master scholarship winner and we are proud to welcome him back this term.

AMONG ALUMNI

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, both graduates of I. C. M., are making their home in Ithaca at 204 University Ave., much to the pleasure of their many friends. Mrs. Miller will be remembered as Miss Eleanor Dodd, A I, who graduated in the vocal course and later became a member of the faculty in that department. Mr. Miller while here studied violin, and left his Alma Mater to become a leader of one of Paul Whitman's Orchestras on the Leviathan and made several trips to Europe. Later he joined the Jesse James Musical Comedy, and after that had his own Band, playing at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City; in Pittsburg, at Coral Gables, Miami Biltmore and Westchester Biltmore County Club, Rye, N. Y.

DO YOU NEED HELP?

Ithaca thou lovely city, what makes you so wonderful? Perhaps it is because it's the home of Cornell University to say nothing of the Conservatory of Music. At the 'Con" the Junior "Prom" comes "once a year," all bills come "once a month" but our school paper comes 'Once-a-Week", and tell us, fair readers, just how do you like it?

My first object in writing this epistle to the students is to introduce our new editor, Miss Katherine Boyles, a student in the Williams School of Expression and a true Southerner if there ever was one. Let us wish her every success in her attempt to make this a "bigger and better" publication.

And now comes the big parade and the real news. Helen Rodgers, Irma Sue Meek, Alfred Patten, Sara Miller and Genevieve Herrick are now "in the running" for staff membership. We need some more adventure seeking, earnest, and eager to work journalists. Now here is the "dope". It's easy to become a journalist! (Read Elbert Hubbard's Scrap Book for fifteen minutes every day and become educated.) Our competition is run on a strictly honorable and fair basis. All competitors must solicit for advertisements for the paper and when the competition ceases on October 18th, the two persons having secured the most amount of money in advertising will be elected to the Staff. No previous experience is necessary for participation in this competition. By getting into the "swim", as it were, one may benefit remarkably. It is an easy way to learn one's way about Ithaca. It is the quickest and safest way to meet new and interesting people. Thru our offer not only practical experience is gained but financial assistance is also rendered by dividing the profit of the year among the Staff members.

But I can say no more. If you are interested see Miss Gertrude Evans in Room 46. Get in it now! We need you and your suggestions your gain is our gain.

Marie Louise Barton.
