ROADSIDE

No one, but was generally felt that both parts were overridden, particularly Red Ike (Wood), who at times appeared almost amicable. The leading role of Texas was played consistently throughout--a liar, a braggart, with a character commanding the alternate disgust and affection of the audience. Only one thing bothered "Mista Janet," she wasn't quite sure how much luck on his boots.

Both women's parts were capably handled, Miss Provost's snapping dark eyes adding flash and spontaneity to her interpretation of Hamie, and Miss McIntyre's perfect breath control allowing her lines to come to every one like a phonograph newly wound up. Alternating in these parts tonight will be Shirley Selahon in the lead, and Janet O'Dee playing Miss McIntyre. James Beebe as Jimmie Rain represents the most appreciable part in the play. His constancy as the cost- husband of Hamie adds a note of stability to a group of otherwise slightly irrational people. He does the things one expects of such a character; from the others.

we hardly know what to expect.

In the parts of the Marshall and Wood, Howard Hall and Bert Lyon respectively, others well known characters in a fine manner. The really outstanding is that of Judge Sondragna, played childishly, yet very appealing by John Pat-kansky.

The new lighting equipment is put to definite use in Roadside and the case with which the light changes are achieved is a fine improvement.

The Little Theatre Symphony Orchestra also makes its final appearance this year playing an overture on Roadside, under the direction of Willard Matthews.

The diversity of Roadside with its flavor of folk comedy should warrant future work along similar lines.

HAVE you noticed how a dog, in the midst of play, suddenly stops and looks? His nervousness--as compared and high-strung as our own--has signified that it is very! Max, unfortunately, is less sensitive to the warnings of his nerves. Though nervous may need a restful pause, we are inclined to press on and do interesting tasks--restlessly--for forgetful of mounting nervous stress. When we find ourselves tense, irritable, upset, we may not even realize why. Don't let tension tie your nerves in a knot. Make it your pleasant rule to break nerve tension often through the day.
