DRAFTITIS... It Can Be Cured

DRAFTITIS is a mental disease that kills incentives. It is caused by the fear of being forced to render military service—usually in the army—to the government. The disease is commonly identified by an "I don't care attitude" and fits of infection on the part of the afflicted. Did you adopt the New Year's resolution: I shall eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow I may be shot at? Has the enlisting of some of your buddies got you to the same state of mind?

Most educators say that students should take the determined stand that they will continue with their education for as long as they possibly can. They give three excellent reasons for toward curing DRAFTITIS.

The first reason is psychological. If a student is working on his college transcript at the end of hostilities, colleges will again have a wartime boom in enrollment, and will again become highly attractive. The college record may now become the ticket to re-enter college.

New Building Scores Hit

It was a pleasant surprise to all Ithaca College students to find the new annex in use upon their return from Christmas vacation. Even those pessimistic souls who didn't think the building would be completed before the holidays, certainly much better than Sprague. Its location is a major boon, eliminating the dash to State Street every morning. Two entrances and broader stairs are features of great convenience. Students have remarked on the flooring, lighting fixtures, restful green walls, and large windows. The atmosphere was much more conducive to study than that of the annex before it was new.

The annex is certainly worth keeping up; it's new, so let's continue to keep it looking that way. It is a greatly appreciated step toward curing DRAFTITIS.

Bill Mallia, program director of WITJ, recently wrote a show which is one of the finest dramatics heard to date. The cast included Fred Heckscher, manager of the College of Business, and Dorothy Long, instructor in Radio at IC. Fred is learning the television game from the ground up. In spite of some technical difficulties which are being worked on behind the scenes for improvement, In fact, some of the work done at the Radio Workshop is equal to, or better than, you sometimes hear in commercial radio. If you have any of the programs on WITJ, write us and say something to one of the Radio students about your opinion of that particular show. It's your voice that counts!

Dave Kedemson, station manager of WITJ for this semester, is doing things very much the same way. Dave will be glad to hear from any college student who is facing a future in the field of broadcasting.

How many times have you heard the saying that history repeats itself? It seems to me that I can remember my folks making comparisons of different periods in history just as my teachers did all through school. For instance, my folks said that the Great Depression of the 1930s was much like the turn of the century. We've heard many others say that the Great Depression was the worst economic situation since the Civil War or that World War II was the most destructive war in history. It is possible that one of the quotations to us which gives you a clue to the particular book I mean: Is the last a statement from a speech made by Truman, Dewey or Hoover? Or is it criticism of the last election which was considered one of the lowest, most modeling campaigns that the part of both parties ever to sell the records of this state and/or this country? Well, if you've guessed the last correctly see how well you do on the next.

For you persons in the Drama and Speech Departments, I'm not going to be able to forecast the future—but I thought we might benefit today by understanding yesterday.

Did You Know
On John May

Wrestling is by no means a modern sport. Greek legend attributes the invention of wrestling to Theseus, Homer sang of it in his Iliad, and it has been estimated that ancient Egyptian monuments contain statues showing wrestling. Apparently, in 1520, BC, such fabulous figures were induced into the Olympic games as part of the pentathlon, the wrestler attempting to throw his opponent to the ground while remaining on his feet himself.

One of the earliest English sports records concerns matches in 1422, but probably wrestling's prowess was reawakened in 1520, when Henry VIII challenged Francis I of France to a bout, and was thrown by him. Thereupon he attempted to legislate against the sport, the company of men, in which the hands were clasped around the body and a wrestler was defeated when any part of his body other than his feet touched the ground. But the opponents were experts on which holds were taken, the object being to throw an opponent to the ground so that he sat on two shoulders and a hip or both hips and a shoulder. The Lancastrian style was the direct ancestor of the present catch-as-catch-can wrestling. This is by far the most popular in the U.S. and British Commonwealth. The earlier forms were largely of historic value only.

Under intercollegiate rules, the objective is to gain a fall, and a fall is gained by pinning the opponent's shoulders to the mat for two seconds. A fall is gained when both of the opponent's shoulders touch the mat. A fall is gained when both of the opponent's shoulders touch the mat.

Professional wrestling, although very lucrative for the competitors and very popular with the fans, has largely degenerated into a pretentious, rambling, and tiring exhibition. But hold everything: "The Angel," "Gorgeous George" and "The Black Knight" have turned the art of wrestling into a stage where every move is comparable to a three-set play. The invention of television has placed wrestling among the top sports in the country, but today's bouts are a far cry from the Cortland matches that sometimes ended with the death of one of the competitors.

Grapplers To Meet Alfred U. At Hornell Next Saturday
By Dick Gunkei

The curtain has risen on the 1951 sports calendar, and in the wrestling circles at Ithaca College the Bombers will attempt to get off to a flying start in the new year after being set back by the Red Dragons of Cortland just before the Christmas recess. One of Ithaca's bids to avenge last year's humiliating defeat was six months ago when the Bombers registered a nil-nil draw, a win and a loss, the scores and standings and analysis of some of the men who participate in the sport being given in this column.

Jerry Schabel, captain of the Physio IV wrestling team, leads the team on a high scorer with 13.75 points per game and has played in three games. Jerry is a tall lanky blond from Ithaca, and had taken upon himself to organize and enter a team in the league, and after watching him play a few games I know why he was so chosen to captain the wrestling basketball.

Dick Murch, a member of the Business II team, winners of the 1949-50 basketball championship, is running a close battle with Jerry with a 15-point average achieved in four games. Dick was one of the men responsible for the Business II winning the championship last year.

Hoosters Hit New York Play at Home Friday
Basketball is over for the year 1950. Twelve games remain for the Bombers to play this season. A victory over the New York Athletic Club tonight would do much to help the record lock better at this point. At least, the boys are concentrating on improving the one made thus far, but this will be a second chance without the services of John Fletcher who leaves us at the end of this week.

The return of Bert Mascot and Capt. Mottola may help to take some of the pressure off in the varsity line-up since the Army came in Dec.

Announcing and AI Gilbert have been working in the guard slots, with Lock Haven in the forward positions. Don Howard has been used extensively in the center position in recent matches.

Purchasing the opposition for the games will be another Regina of ex-collegiate stars. The New York Athletic Club has been plying its home court advantage in the Netherlands gymnasium through out the season. These boys may be remembered for their victories in the metropolitan collegiate basketball of recent years.

Meet Alfred Next Week
The next encounter for the Bombers will be Alfred University at Alfred on Jan. 21. This will be followed by a game with Hamilton College two days later in the Semco Gym. The out-of-town outfiting last night's power away from the Bombers and Hamilton will be waiting on the schedule.

As yet, we have received no score on the games. Therefore Dickie the Hooster, has been called back to active duty with the United States Navy. The return of Bert Mascot and Jasper Motolla has brightened day after New Year's. They may be made at the Physical Education office.

Alfred Replaces Bridgeport On Fall Gridiron Schedule
A nine-game schedule for the 1951 Ithaca College Varsity Football team was announced this week by Coach Bob Light, graduate manager of athletics.

Alfred replaces the University of Bridgeport as the only schedule change from the current year. The Bombers played the Connecticut College in a game in the summer before returning to active duty with the United States Navy. The return of Bert Mascot and Jasper Motolla has brightened day after New Year's. They may be made at the Physical Education office.
