Spring housing hitch

Students barred from mid-year moves off campus

BY ANNE K. WALTERS
Staff Writer

When senior Christopher O'Leary walked into the Office of Residential Life to request approval to move off campus for this spring, he was shocked to learn that he will not be allowed. The office is not granting approval to any requests to move off campus for the mid-year transition, even requests from seniors, said Jennifer Richardson, coordinator of housing services.

Although students have been offered the opportunity to move off campus midway for the past several years, Richardson said this was only due to the large number of students in temporary housing and is not in line with the college's off-campus policy.

There are currently 18 students in temporary housing, of whom have had the opportunity to relocate to permanent housing but have chosen to wait, Richardson said.

When the college acquired the College Circle Apartments, the commitment to off-campus housing was reaffirmed, Richardson said.

“Tompkins Consolidated Area Transit service has progressed in an attempt to work out a solution earlier this year showed the college... that was created this year to address the issue of transportation services to the college. The current service, which was extended to include the College Circle Apartments in August, consists of one route that arrives on campus every 45 minutes. This is an increase from the 30-minute stops that were provided in previous years, and the change has spurred rider complaints.

“[It’s not convenient to class times, it’s not convenient to people in the community, it’s really not convenient to anybody,” said senior Bryn Dewey.

Dewey is part of the TCAT Working Group, a committee of faculty members and students that was created this year to address the issue of transportation services to the college.

The group has been communicating with TCAT in an attempt to work out a solution for the lack of regular and frequent service on campus. But members of the group, including Michael Trotti, assistant professor of history, are expressing frustration that little progress has been made.

"Three months later and really there's no change," he said. Trotti said the service to the College Circles has not been frequent and used and said he rarely sees students getting on off the bus at the stop there. He added that the route extension results in the majority of regular

TCAT riders wait for bus solutions

BY KATIE MASLANKA
Staff Writer

Baby, it's cold outside. And as temperatures drop, increasing numbers of Ithaca College students and employees are voicing their annoyance with the Tompkins Consolidated Area Transit service provided to campus.

The current service, which was extended to include the College Circle Apartments in August, consists of one route that arrives on campus every 45 minutes. This is an increase from the 30-minute stops that were provided in previous years, and the change has spurred rider complaints.

"It's not convenient to class times, it's not convenient to people in the community, it's really not convenient to anybody," said senior Bryn Dewey.

Dewey is part of the TCAT Working Group, a committee of faculty members and students that was created this year to address the issue of transportation services to the college.

The group has been communicating with TCAT in an attempt to work out a solution for the lack of regular and frequent service on campus. But members of the group, including Michael Trotti, assistant professor of history, are expressing frustration that little progress has been made.

"Three months later and really there's no change," he said. Trotti said the service to the College Circles has not been frequent and used and said he rarely sees students getting on off the bus at the stop there. He added that the route extension results in the majority of regular

Council discusses changes for pass/fail

BY SUDHA NSHARIA
Staff Writer

After voting to recommend eliminating the A+ grade, Faculty Council is taking its next step in addressing grade inflation by re-examining the pass/fail system.

Faculty Council discussed Tuesday recommendations made by the Grading Policies Committee to eliminate the system or raise the minimum passing grade from a D- to a C-.

The council did not make a motion to vote at the meeting, and will continue discussing the issue in January.

Committee Chairwoman Lee Bailey, associate professor of philosophy and religion, said the system has been increasingly abused by students to bypass tough required courses.

"What the current pass/fail system does is allow students to take tough courses and then conceal virtual failure," Bailey said.

A report, published by the committee in Spring 1999, shows that 61 percent of the sections in the School of Humanities and Sciences had students who had voluntarily taken courses on the pass/fail system.

"That means a lot of people getting by without working hard for required courses," Bailey said.

There is not the need for additional housing like there was last year.

"They need to know that the policy is written the way it's written, and while yes, we've been in situations in the past where we needed to change that, there's no real perception to that policy," Richardson said.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.

"It's a firm belief in the college... that they want to be a residential institution, and they want students to live on campus," O'Leary said.

"When the alumni association calls me in a year, I will tell them I would've had $7,500, but the school has already taken that away from me," he said.

By living off campus, he also hoped to gain some extra time in Ithaca before having to move on to a job in another city. By staying on campus, he will be forced to move out the day after Commencement.
Administration restricts use of decorations for holidays

The college has released a list of special holiday season fire safety regulations.

Natural Christmas trees are allowed only in main lobby areas of academic buildings and downtown Ithaca - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.

Several scientists insist that a local farmer glued the fragments together simply to create a more presentable - and potentially more lucrative - specimen for the thriving black market in fossils.

Artificial trees are allowed in most other campus locations, except the Tompkins County Health Planning Council area.

The 2002-2003 Ithaca College Directory of Dining Services will be available free of charge for each on-campus housing unit.

The Tompkins County Health Planning Council will feature a discussion about "Public Health in the Age of Terrorism" at its 24th annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Human Services Building, 320 W. State St.

Two federal agencies have recently stepped up efforts to combat the theft of ancient Chinese fossils.

When the smuggled stone slab first surfaced - at a museum in China - and the simmering tensions between amateur collectors and the scientists who covet such bones.
Damage this: New billing system adopted

BY KATE SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

A new actual cost system for damages to rooms and common areas for the 2002-2003 academic year may result in increased damage bills for students.

The Office of Residential Life implemented the new billing system, which charges for the actual cost of labor and repairs, after the College Circle Apartments were added to on-campus housing, said Bonnie Prunty, director of residential life and judicial affairs.

“We needed a damage billing structure in College Circle that would allow us to maintain the College Circle apartments as new,” she said. “We knew that meant a very different kind of system than we had on the rest of campus.”

At the end of each semester, the college sends out damage bills to each student living on campus for damages accrued in rooms and common areas. Students are responsible for fees charged within their rooms, whereas damages in common areas are split among members of the residence hall, wing or floor, if the person responsible is not found.

In the past, students paid a fee for damages that went to a general fund and was not used for the specific repair, said Prunty. Repairs were often left for several years before they were fixed or replaced under the former system, which left students wondering how their money was used, Prunty said.

“The prevailing billing system was never set up to be one where you would pay, and that money would be earmarked solely to repair that item for you for the following year,” Prunty said. “It was a pre-determined, estimated amount that we’re billing you in. In reality, that usually doesn’t go to the full replacement cost.”

Sophomore Sarah Kaplan looks over the damage report for her floor in Eastman Hall. The floor was recently charged $45 for cleaned spilled ice cream, paper towels and toilet paper on the floor.

Jenny Picker, coordinator of residential facilities, has created a new price list for repairs and replacements. The old fees were not up-to-date, she said, and the new ones may surprise students this year.

Biohazard-related damages, such as vomit, will cost residents $55 for each cleanup, covering the cost of sanitizing the item for you for the following year.

“Damage billing is not found,” said Sarah Zielinski, a resident of honors housing on the floor.

“The real philosophy behind common area damage billing ... is to make it a legal deterrent to prevent further damage. The goal of common area billing is to find the students who are causing the damage and encourage other members of the community to prevent further damage,” she said.

Senior Christopher Liu, who also resides in Landon’s ground floor, said although members of the floor knew the damages were occurring, their resident assistant did not inform them of the accumulating fees until the end of the 2001-2002 school year.

“If they had told us, ‘If these people aren’t stopped, you’re going to be the upper floor,’ then maybe we would have made a more concerted effort to stop them,” Liu said. “Because we just assumed naively that the people doing this would be accused, we would have made it illegal.”

Zielinski questioned the role students play in preventing damages.

“We’re not [resident assistants] constantly on the floor, we’re not in College Circle police officers,” Zielinski said.

Picker said students in Clarke Hall also paid excessive fees last year because of repeated graffiti incidents in the hall and a discharged fire extinguisher, which clogged the vents and shut down the boiler.

The alternative to charging for damages in common areas would be dividing the fees over the entire campus residence system, Prunty said, a system that is used by many schools that use the common area billing system.

“We’ve just felt that it’s fairer to put the damages where it’s most likely the damages occurred,” Prunty said.

Personnel cuts put strain on facilities attendants

BY STEPHANIE BRISON
Staff Writer

Tightened budgets in recent years have reduced the Facilities Services staff by almost half, which some housekeepers said makes it more difficult for them to do their jobs thoroughly.

“I think we’ve had more work put on us,” said Lois McCray, a facilities attendant for Terrace 8 who has worked at the college for three years. “It makes it harder to get the stairwells done, the vents in the bathroom doors … the little things that happen and have to get done.”

Facilities attendants make sure every bathroom, stairwell and common area is cleaned in each residence hall on campus, except the College Circle Apartments.

“The number of hours that housekeepers are given time for them to thoroughly clean their entire buildings, McCray said, but duty is challenged when they are asked to leave to clean damages and complete additional jobs within their areas.

Physical Plant Director Richard Couture said that six years ago, the college began a three-year period of downsizing in several areas on campus, after a decline in enrollment resulted in budget cuts.

Couture said the 10 percent reduction in positions seemed to have a greater impact on Facilities Services because it is a large department. Currently, there are two housekeepers for each of the Towns, and one for every other residence hall on campus.

Freshman Nicole Briere, a resident in the Towers, said she thinks her housekeeper cleans the hall thoroughly.

“I like our housekeeper,” she said. “Our lounges, stairwells, everything is kept really clean. She does a good job, so I notice when she hasn’t cleaned or when something is dirty.”

The college hires temporary workers, especially during the summer when custodial staffs are required to do additional jobs, such as prepare for Commencement.

To deal with the increased daily workload, which some feel has been caused by the staff cuts, a new emphasis is being put on speed in their jobs, Sims said.

This raises the question of thoroughness, he said.

“I can’t believe the way they do things today from when I started,” said Sims, who has worked at the college for 36 years. “Today they want you to come in and they want a job handled in a half-hour.”

Sims added that many housekeepers, especially the newer ones, say they can clean an entire residence hall in five or six hours, a feat he called “totally impossible.”

Sims, who is the Terraces 5 facilities attendant, said the workers today have the same amount of work they did before reductions were made, but some people complain because they “just don’t want to do the work.”

Arthur Foley/THE ITHACAN

ROBIN ROEMER/THE ITHACAN

SARAH SCHOLTE/THE ITHACAN

ARTHUR SIMS, Terrace 5 facilities attendant, cleans the guest bathroom on the third floor Monday morning.
Senior intention form clearly indicates commitment to remain in residence halls

He would not have moved off campus if he had known he would not be able to find a subletter if he can't find anyone, he said he would have to pay for the off-campus housing himself. "I have to pay for it myself on top of L&A, and that's just killing me," he said. He said he is good looking for a subletter for the time he studies abroad in South America. Even if he is forced to pay rent and the costs of study abroad, he said it will still cost him more than living on campus. "But I couldn't save that money, and Lord knows I need it," Koenig said.

Continued from Page 1

He said he could drop credits and become a part-time student so that he would no longer be required to live on campus, but he does not think this is a realistic option. Although seniors are automatically granted off-campus status in the spring housing lottery, many riders continue to encounter problems with bus service.

Rod Ghearing, general manager of TCAT, said he could not give specific numbers on how many College Circles residents are using the bus service but estimated the highest number to be approximately 12 to 14 students in one day. Ridership has not been spectacular, but it is too soon to make an assessment of the route's usefulness, he said.

According to statistics provided by Ghearing, the number of riders decreased to 12,563 in September from 15,121 in September 2001. Several temporary solutions have been suggested by TCAT and the working group at the college.

Ghearing said TCAT distributed a survey to 127 riders of route 11, the route serving the college, asking if they would prefer a 20-minute shift forward or backward in the current bus schedule. Two-thirds of the respondents said a shift time would not be sufficient to solve the problem. Dewey said she was angry the survey did not ask riders what they considered to be problems with the service or possible solutions. "I almost seemed like a joke," she said.

Marian Brown, special assistant to the vice president and treasurer, said the college has also been considering shortening the loop between the College Circles and the rest of campus so that five minutes would be shaved off the schedule. She stressed this would only be a temporary solution, however.

The only solution that will make everyone happy is to add an extra bus route on campus, Dewey said. Ghearing said it would be impossible to provide a 30-minute service to the college and simultaneously serve the College Circles with only one bus running.

Trotti added that this would be a financial burden on both TCAT and the college. "TCAT certainly says it doesn't have the funds to add another bus," he said. "It doesn't cost us money but they're paying for the Circles. Meanwhile, the ridership is feeling the pinch."

Trotti said it seems unfair that while Ithaca College waits 45 minutes for a bus to arrive, Cornell University has been servicing its campus at least every half hour.

"We have one bad route; they have a whole Divinity route," he said. "It does seem like there is a fairness issue here."

Ghearing said TCAT partnership, contributes approximately $2 million of the company's $7 million annual budget. Depending on what solution is decided on, it is difficult to say when - if at all - a change will occur at Ithaca College, Ghearing said.

Trotti said riders need to make their voices heard, and added that an improvement in service is especially necessary as winter progresses. "This is an issue that needs a lot more in January than it does in August," Trotti said.

NEWS

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 2002

Group proposes schedule solutions

Continued from Page 1

FRESHMAN KRISTINE ECONOMOS, left, senior BII Heh and freshman Margaux Lushing wait downtown for the TCAT bus, which is running behind schedule, to take them back to Ithaca College. As winter arrives, many riders continue to encounter problems with bus service.
Working together

Emerson grant funds collaborative research

BY KATIE MOORE
Staff Writer

Until last year, senior Bozhidar Zahariev thought he would fulfill his parents' dream and go to law school. With the help of the Emerson Humanities Collaboration Award and Zoren Wasyliw, associate professor of history, Zahariev discovered a new career interest — research.

The EHCA is supported by the Emerson Foundation and allows students in the School of Humanities and Sciences to conduct research in what Associate Dean Ellen Bonaguro calls the "science model" of collaboration between professors and students.

"Zahariev is currently conducting in-depth research into the treatment of the Turkish minority in his native country of Bulgaria," he said. "He made the grant there for that purpose, and it has let him pursue his research experience with Ramage, who I am, in fact," he said. "It gave me an opportunity to explore areas of studies that I haven't explored before." Patrick Rodgers, a 2002 graduate of Ithaca College, was the first recipient of the EHCA grant. He used it to study with Nancy Ramage, professor of art history, in Rome for six and a half weeks during the summer.

"It's a great test of who you might be in the future," he said. "It was an important experience that helped him get accepted into his graduate program."

With his $3,200 grant, Rodgers was able to study the art collection of Luciano Bonaparte in 25 places in Rome, including the Vatican library and the library at the University of Rome.

Bonaguro said Rodgers' research experience with Ramage "truly captures the spirit of the grant." "What we're primarily interested in is the student having the opportunity to enjoy learning in a different way," she said. "He was really doing it for the benefit of himself, of expanding his interest, and I think that's the true spirit of this, but I also like the idea of making sure that this work benefits others." Zahariev said he plans to share his findings with the academic community during the annual spring academic symposium and also in selected history courses.

Wasyliw said he thinks this research will be of great benefit not only to other students but also to him as a professor. "It's great being able to work with someone who can get to the primary sources from a part of the world that a lot of Americans really don't know that much about," he said.

Zahariev said he is grateful for the opportunities made available to him through this grant. He said it would be an excellent chance for students to explore interests in graduate school and professional careers.

"It's a great test of who you might be in the future," he said. The collaborative effort of Zahariev and Wasyliw demonstrates what President Peggy R. Williams praised the EHCA for in a letter to the Emerson Foundation. A "research active" model, she said, "adds enormously to any major... and enhances collaboration and the excitement of the discovery between students and faculty." Bonaguro said she hopes many other students will be able to find equally rewarding experiences with the aid of the EHCA.

"I think it's incredible that the Emerson Foundation recognized the potential of using money to support research in the humanities," she said.

To be eligible for EHCA grants students must be majoring in a humanities discipline, have rising junior or senior status, demonstrate matura Business, Management and Communications Computer Science and Information Technology Education and Human Resources Engineering and Related Programs Photography, Fine Art and Graphic Communications Science, Mathematics and Imaging Science

To Learn More Attend

Graduate Student Open House Monday, January 6, 2003 • 10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. Rochester Institute of Technology

Or Contact Us online: www.rit.edu/grad e-mail: gradinfo@rit.edu

phone: 585.475.2229

Rochester Institute of Technology
FBI seeks student data

BY NICOLE GERRING

The FBI is asking American institutions of higher education to release information about foreign students and staff as an attempt to root out terrorism within U.S. borders.

The FBI sent a letter to certain colleges and universities in the South and Midwest Nov. 4, asking them to supply information "for use in combating terrorism," said Shelley Rodgers, associate director of government relations and communications for the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Although Ithaca College did not receive a letter, Vice President and College Council Nancy Pringle said the college would act in compliance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act if the FBI requests such information.

According to the Center for Policy in Higher Education, FERPA does not allow institutions to release directory information on students based on race, gender or national origin. The FBI's request infringes upon this clause, Rodgers said.

Every American college or university has been required to keep nondirectory information of their students confidential since FERPA's 1974 approval. The disclosure of directory information is permitted because it is typically not considered an invasion of privacy.

Rodgers said the FBI's letter poses a problem for administrators because the FBI is interpreting information in the legislation differently from how institutions of higher education have historically read those laws. Colleges and universities must only comply within legal limits, Rodgers said, or face violating FERPA.

"If you make a request that pulls students from your directory based on directory information — in this case, citizenship — that's when the search becomes illegal," Rodgers said.

She added that the FBI was not intentionally trying to coerce college and university officials into violating the law, but they asked for the information in a way that prevents administrators from legally complying.

Pringle said that in compliance with FERPA, Ithaca College would only release nondirectory information when presented with a subpoena from a court or grand jury. She said recent legislation, such as the USA Patriot Act of Oct. 26, 2001, does not completely negate FERPA's ability to protect student information.

Since 1986, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has required American colleges and universities to gather and store uniform data on their international students with the intent of eventually compiling this information in an online network. By Jan. 1, American institutions of higher education will be required to submit this data to the INS through a new computerized data sharing tool called the Student Exchange and Visitor Information System.

International students sign away their right to FERPA confidentiality between a school and the INS on I-20 student visa forms, Rodgers said. The new computer system does not expand the information gathered, but rather allows for a more timely exchange of information said Adrian Sherman, Ithaca College director of international programs.

Sherman said the college is already on SEVIS. Under the new legislation, penalties would be more severe than in the past if international students drop from full-time status or fail to list correct contact information, he said. But Sherman added that SEVIS does not allow for an open and free exchange of personal student data.

"This does not mean anybody can just jump in and get records for whatever reason," Sherman said. "But it's probably a bit more intrusion into the life of an international student.

Sophomore Alesha Simpson, a resident of Jamaica, said she was concerned about the increased government surveillance.

"You're here to study," she said. "You have to go along with whatever they're telling you to do. You're not going to give up your education because of that. Any protest would seem to me futile because who is going to support you?"

---

PUTTING CARE IN THE CURE

DR. DAVID SVAHN, coordinator of the Humanities in Medicine Program at Basset Healthcare in Cooperstown, speaks Monday in Klingenstein Lounge about the challenges of forming a strong patient-doctor relationship. His speech, "Humanism in Medicine: A Reasonable Expectation in a Technical Age," was sponsored by the Department of Health Policy Studies and the newly established integrative health studies minor.
Select Public Safety Log Incidents

Nov. 17
• Medical assist and conduct code violation
Location: Bogart Hall
Summary: Officer responded to a Health Center for dislocated hand. One referred for judicial action for endangering self. Patrol Officer Bruce Holtschick.
• Graffiti
Location: Hilliard Hall
Summary: Caller reported items on doors in the hallway and in the bathroom had been taken off the wall and thrown on the floor. Bias-relatedophobic wording was written on items in room. Case under investigation. Patrol Officer Donald Lyke.

Nov. 18
• Criminal mischief
Location: College Circle Apartments construction site
Summary: Caller reported unknown persons broke a window in trailer. Case under investigation. Patrol Officer Robert Hightchew.
• Disorderly conduct
Location: Bogart Hall
Summary: While investigating a fire alarm, officer found that unknown subjects sprayed a fire extinguisher at someone. Case under investigation. Patrol Officer Bruce Holtschick.
• Fire alarm
Location: College Circle 14
Summary: Caller reported a kitchen fire. Upon officer's arrival, residents put grease fire out with an extinguisher. (PD responded and system was reset. SgI. Keith Lee.
• Criminal mischief
Location: S-lot
Summary: Caller reported that a tire had been slashed Nov. 14 by unknown persons. Case under investigation. Patrol Officer Robert Hightchew.

Nov. 19
• Found property
Location: Rowland Hall
Summary: Officer found flash light. Item brought to Office of Public Safety.
• Criminal mischief
Location: S-lot
Summary: Walk-in reported that unknown persons broke off a natural-gas pipeline marker. Case under investigation. Patrol Officer Donald Lyke.
• MVA
Location: O-lot
Summary: Caller reported vehicle struck by an unknown vehicle. Incident occurred Nov. 16 between 12:30 p.m. and 2 p.m. Case under investigation.
• S-lop
Summary: Officer followed up on unlawful parking. Incident occurred Oct. 9. Patrol Officer Robert Hightchew.

Nov. 20
• Harassment
Location: Boothroyd Hall
Summary: Caller reported an ongoing roommate conflict. Case investigated and situation turned over to Office of Residential Life. Patrol Officer Richard Curtiss.
• Medical assist
Location: Terrace 10
Summary: Caller reported subject complaining of shortness of breath and tingling in the hand. Subject refused assistance but was planning to go to Health Center after class. Fire Protection Specialist Enoch Perkins.
• Criminal mischief
Location: H-lot
Summary: Caller reported unknown persons wrote on walls with markers. Case under investigation.
• Conduct code Vioiation
Location: Terrace 9
Summary: Caller reported loud noise. Three referred for judicial action for possession of alcohol. Patrol Officer Richard Curtiss.

For the complete Public Safety Log, visit www.ithaca.edu/ithacan.

Key:
CMC - Cayuga Medical Center
DWI - Driving while intoxicated
IPD - Ithaca Police Department
IFS - Ithaca Fire Department
MVA - Motor vehicle accident
RA - Resident assistant
TCSO - Tompkins County Sheriff's Department
V&T - Vehicle and traffic violation

Open seats for non-majors
In Park School classes with minimal or no prerequisites

The Digital Workplace 225-20000
Hands-on exploration of the wide range of technologies being used in the 21st century workplace. Designed specifically for non-majors.
Dr. Yama Hart.
Section 1 Tuesday 9:25-10:40 & Tuesday 10:50-12:05
Section 2 Tuesday & Thursday 9:25-10:40
Section 3 Tuesday 9:25-10:40 & Thursday 10:50-12:05

How Organizations Communicate and Learn 225-10100
Principles and practices of internal and external communication and training in organizations. Professor Mary Lou Kish.
Section 1 Monday 2:12-3:50 & Wednesday 2:12-3:50
Section 2 Monday 10:00-11:15

Human Communication in Organizations 225-10800
Skills necessary to approach organizational communication situations. Professor Mary Lou Kish.
Section 1 MWF 9-10:00

Systems Thinking and Design 225-12300
How the world changes and how you can change the world.
Dr. Howard Kalman.
Section 2 Tuesday & Thursday 2:35-4:50

Computer Applications in Organizations 225-25000
Hardware and software systems used for media production and organizational communication.
Dr. Howard Kalman.
Section 2 MW 5:25-6:40

BETHEL GROVE BIBLE CHURCH
176 EMERSON ROAD (RT. 79E), ITHACA
277-3333 OR 277-4770
SUN 9:30AM·MIDNIGHT
WED-SAT 9AM·2:30PM
M-Thurs 9AM·5:00PM

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 2002

THOMAS H. HANCOCK, JR.
THEITHACAN 7

OUR VEGETARIAN DINER-STYLE MENU
HAS 23 DELICIOUS ENTREES TO LOVE

GRILLED SANDWICHES INCREDIBLE SALADS
FRESH STIR FRYS

Major Credit Cards Accepted
EXPANDED SEATING • INTERNATIONAL DINNERS
308-310 STEWART AVE • 277-4770

A Store Worth Experiencing

Bookstore
Great Holiday Gifts
• Holiday Greeting Cards
• Refurbished Computers
• Christmas Music CDs
• Inspirational Books
• Journals and Much More

Ithaca's First Choice For Posters, Artprints & Framing

139 The Commons • Downtown Ithaca • 607-273-6360
A right to limit speech

I was disgusted and disheartened by several things in the Nov. issue of The Ithacan, but I will only mention one.

The thing in the issue that upset me the most was the staff editorial against the Bias Alerts. The staff chides Ithaca College for only allowing freedom of expression when it is progressive, multicultural and tolerant, but it is within the right of the school to do so.

If you look at the institutional plan of this college, our school is clearly dedicated to creating a welcoming and affirming environment for people of all races, genders, religions, abilities, sexual orientations, etc.

In order to uphold those values and create a safe learning environment, Ithaca College, as a private institution, has the right to define actions and speech that are inappropriate on campus and violate its mission statement. All the Bias Alerts do is bring attention to an issue that may otherwise be unheard.

If a big rally or demonstration or dialogue were held every time hate speech occurs on campus, we would not even have time for classes. The alerts are a logical solution to ensure that the campus community is aware when bias-related incidents occur.

MAUREEN SULLIVAN '04

Letter proves bias

After reading the most recent Ithacan, I feel the need to point out the flaws of the letter to the editor from Joe Rockhill.

He claims he was offended by the picture of two men kissing in The Ithacan, which blatantly displays his homophobia and ignorance of heterosexual privilege. One of the worst forms of oppression that someone can face is being denied the right to express affection. Why is it that when heterosexual couples kiss in public, it is considered loving, but when homosexual couples kiss, it is considered flaunting? Because homophobia is still prevalent in our society.

When a picture like that is printed, it is not only to offend heterosexuals — it serves to bring us one step closer to dismantling this system of oppression.

Also, I would like to commend Rockhill's dismissal of the statement "That's gay." Using terms such as those perpetuate homophobia because the phrase "That's gay" is frequently used synonymously with the phrase "That's stupid." Impressionable individuals who may just be exploring the idea of homosexuality are commonly reminded that being gay makes them stupid and bad.

MEREDITH SWINNEY '04

Alerts have no place

Thanks for your editorial "Bias Alerts must go." This well-intended but fatally flawed effort to control speech has no place on an American campus. It is an embarrassment to the Ithaca College community.

NANCY NEHER MAAS
Art History, Lecturer

Buchanan was heard

As an alumna and a former member of the Bias-Related Incidents Committee, I made a point to attend and clarify some information from your last issue.

The incident last year regarding the speaker Bay Buchanan was much more complicated and complex than it was explained in last week's opinion section. The speaker issued several different components, and as someone who was both offended by Buchanan's press release on campus and sat on the committee to determine whether or not this was a bias-related incident, I can tell you that these issues did not have simple solutions.

Although I cannot speak for everyone who brought the issues around Buchanan's visit, I can tell you that I, like many others, did not intend to silence Bay Buchanan on our campus. Many of us were not offended by Buchanan's presence, and we did not try to prevent her from speaking. However, the ad campaign for her speech related a threat of death to women who identify themselves as feminists.

TARA J. FOLEY '92

Rivalry overpublicized

When I logged on to The Ithacan Web site two weeks ago, the lead story was about the offensive Cortaca Jug T-shirt that depicted a scantily clothed, disproportionate woman.

I only assume this was a front-page story to fool the people who send me their Web site.

The T-shirt was graduated in 1999. But what if I was a prospective student exploring the many sections of the Ithaca College Web site and came across The Ithacan?

I would think: What is this Cortaca Jug thing? Why does the Cortaca Jug thing have to do with a bikini-clad woman? Is this really the most important thing happening on that campus? Didn't this happen in my high school once? Are all the people really that dumb there? Do I really want to go there?

This T-shirt scandal would have never happened if there was not a Cortaca Jug game. I would say perhaps 10 percent of the entire student population even cares about the Cortaca Jug game. Why does it get so much attention then?

It's because the Ithaca College administration and media feel the need to have a silly, rivalry-based tradition to complete the "college experience." For The Ithacan and the college administration to publicize this event (where one sole purpose is to get drunk and yell "Corlind sacks!" across a football field to opposing fans) is insulting to the vast majority of intelligent Ithaca College students and alumni who couldn't care less about the Cortaca Jug game.

This is especially inappropriate when Ithaca College is hiring high-priced consultants to help its image. If the Ithacans is going to give Ithaca College this "Perkster"—like image, then I think Tom Green might as well have shot his film on campus.

ERIC LAWRENCE '99

Tickets are required

On behalf of Ithacappella, I'd like to apologize for the problems we had with our ticketing system at our first concert in October. As a result of them, some people were admitted without tickets, while others who arrived late with them were turned away.

Because of the complications, we've revamped the way we'll be doing tickets for our next show, this upcoming Sunday at 9 p.m. in Ford Hall, see LETTERS, Page 10
Debates and commentaries will appear on this page weekly. To contribute, please call Opinion Editor Michelle Theis at 274-3208.

Hard-working students deserve financial aid

JARED WIENER

Guest Writer

I am just a freshman at Ithaca College and have only been here a few months. However, despite the small amount of time I have spent on campus, I have been quite impressed by the organization of parking services. As was reported in The Ithacan, parking is an issue of The Ithacan, parking will commence for those with three parking tickets. From a freshman point of view, this would add a source of stress to the already stressful parking situation.

I, like many other freshmen, live in the Towers. It is a great place to live. However, every day I look out the window to a parking lot directly outside the door to the building, not the best.

As it is a mostly freshman building, common sense would suggest that the residents of the Towers be allowed to park there. That, unfortunately, is not the case.

We must park in freshman lots, the closest of which is behind Terrace 12, a fair distance to walk, especially when there are empty spaces right outside the door.

These freshman lots have a reputation of vandalism in the lots and have spread throughout campus.

We pay more to park than any other students on campus — a full five times more — and yet we receive less than equal treatment when it comes to how we can take advantage of that opportunity.

We used to be able to park in other lots if we were willing to risk the ticket, which, many times, tremendously outweighed the problems with the freshman lot.

If the weather was bad, or if it was late, we would not have to walk the distance between dimly lit parking lots and our places of residence. This option will no longer be viable with the initiation of towing. We have heard time after time that the school is trying to discourage freshmen from having cars, but the truth of the matter is that with the amount of service we get from TCAT, a car is more than a convenience; it is a growing necessity.

While it may take more than an hour to get to The Commons via TCAT, as it has taken me in the past, it is a mere few minutes by car, even with the long trek to the freshman lots.

The Ithaca College campus is not conducive to freshwater parking. However, there are few alternatives.

Once towing begins, there will be even fewer options, not only for freshmen, but for all Ithaca College students.

Winter is coming, and the walk from residence halls to parking lots will be less enjoyable. We either need a reliable alternative for transportation, or we need more latitude when it comes to parking options.

Jared Wiener is a freshman politics major. E-mail him at jwien03@ithaca.edu.

Ithaca could be fixin’ to fly stars and bars

DAVID DONOVAN

Guest Writer

We’ve heard this before, haven’t we? About Ithaca College students being too soft or being scared to fly a Confederate flag. But why? What is it about this college that would make us more scared to fly the colors of our nation? Why is it that the.Ithaca College faculty and administration are so scared to start a protocol forum that would allow the student body to discuss the Confederate flag?

Confederate Heritage Month is in April, but I figure we’ll get the most exposure if we fly it all March long — right between Black History Month and Gaypril.

Now, I’ve heard some bleeding-heart tree-huggers get offended by the Confederate flag. But why? By flying Confederate flag, I’m offended by that rainbow rag ‘cause it makes my skin want to curl up like low tide. It’s ridiculous as hell to me. It’s disgusting is what it is.

But if you’re of a conservative persuasion, then you’d understand, “It’s cause there’s something wrong with you.” You’re not thinking right. We need diversity classes and sensitivity training. But God forbid you offend the bleeding hearted. It’s their way of getting their self-esteem bruised. But I say if the Constitution gives us all an equal right to free speech, then it gives us an equal right to be offended, too.

Now, some folks say the Confederate flag is racist just ‘cause every racist has one. But that’s not what the flag is about. It symbolizes our most fundamental liberty, the right to rise up against an oppressive government and our assertion of independence. These are values we ought to celebrate.

We could even hand out little battle flags for the kids.

Let me tell you what else. The whole Ithaca College protocol forum might makes right. Enough people say, “We want this here flag,” and, boom, up it goes. It’s not much harder to redesign numbers to moral righteousness, but if we’re playing that game, step back outside the Ithaca College cocoon a piece.

Back home, I can get the Confederate flag on my license plate, but I’ve never seen one gay pride plate. And I’d wager people are less offended by a gay pride flag than by a Confederate flag. My point is that there’s always two sides to how things are.

So what’s stopping us from celebrating Confederate Heritage Month? The college’s own vice president has all but done said we’ve abdicated our right to control what goes on our own flagpole. If we’ll let any flag on the pole, we’re pretty much given up our right to control what goes on there.

After all, if we’ll endorse everything, I don’t see how we could meaningfully endorses our country. What would happen if we get it on the flagpole?

I’ll tell y’all, I was at that Flag Protocol Forum, and do not we heard something most interesting. Brian McAre (vice president of student affairs and campus life) said the rules on this campus let any fool group put any flag they please up on the campus flagpole. He even said that they’d let somebody fly a Confederate flag.

I bet he figured nobody would dare take him up, but I submit here a proposal that this is exactly what, fly those stars and bars right benedictine.

David Donovan’s Voice of Reason appears in this space every other week. E-mail him at ddonovan@ithaca.edu.

---

The Way We See It: Complicating parking with new towing rules

LAUREN ANN LIGHTBODY

The Ithaca College campus is a jumble of three parking lots and a spread throughout campus. We have heard time after time that the school is trying to discourage freshmen from having cars, but the truth of the matter is that with the amount of service we get from TCAT, a car is more than a convenience; it is a growing necessity.

While it may take more than an hour to get to The Commons via TCAT, it has taken me in the past, it is a mere few minutes by car, even with the long trek to the freshman lots.

The Ithaca College campus is not conducive to freshwater parking. However, there are few alternatives.

Once towing begins, there will be even fewer options, not only for freshmen, but for all Ithaca College students.

Winter is coming, and the walk from residence halls to parking lots will be less enjoyable. We either need a reliable alternative for transportation, or we need more latitude when it comes to parking options.

Jared Wiener is a freshman politics major. E-mail him at jwien03@ithaca.edu.

---

Another Angle

I like going to Ithaca College. This is a phrase I’ve heard surprisingly less and less as I talk to my peers about their time here. And why is it that students who pay close to $30,000 yearly feel anything less than admiration for their school? I know that sometimes their hard work on campus is appreciated. I’m not talking about receiving acknowledgement for simply getting an A on a test or attending class every day on time and not falling asleep. Those things should be expected. Rather, this acknowledgment needs to go to the students who consistently work hard to improve the college, its students and the community.

In my department, I have seen students working upwards of 40 to 50 hours every week on co-curricular projects. This behavior shows dedication and involvement far beyond what is expected of the average student. But why are there only a handful of these people? Has Ithaca College failed to discover more of these gifted students? No, of course not.

There is a plethora of exceptional students on this campus, and people have yet to be successfully motivated and unearthed these students. But on a college campus, the faculty and staff have a responsibility to motivate and unearth these students. How can this school encourage all 6,000 of these great love of college students: money. More merit-based scholarships need to be offered for continuing students. These will give students a feeling of appreciation and entice other students toward excellence.

From my experience in the Roy H. Park School of Communications, there are a number of scholarships given out to exceptional continuing students every year. Yet each of these scholarships contains the phrase “proven financial need as established by the Ithaca College Office of Financial Aid” in its criteria. The only need-based scholarship offered through the school is the highly publicized Park Scholar Award, which now offers tuition, room and board for all four years to 20 incoming first-year students.

Returning students need not apply. And need-based scholarships are important. On the one hand, I guess I’m lucky that my family and I are so wealthy, but on the other, I would like to see more merit-based scholarships for continuing students — students who, regardless of financial status, deserve recognition.

Ithaca has a “commitment to excellence,” or so it says in our college seal. But we need more than just a commitment; we need action that encourages and rewards that which makes the school so excellent — our students.

STEVEN TANNENBAUM

Guest Writer

Virginia Mansfield-Richardson, right, and associate dean of the Roy H. Park School of Communications, talks with incoming Park Scholars and their parents at a barbecue held for the scholarship recipients earlier this fall.

If the college wishes to increase productivity among students, encourage alumni to donate and let us know that our hard work is seen as more than “a good way to get more students,” Ithaca College must create more merit-based scholarships for continuing students — students who, regardless of financial status, deserve recognition.

Ithaca has a “commitment to excellence,” or so it says in our college seal. But we need more than just a commitment; we need action that encourages and rewards that which makes the school so excellent — our students.

Stefan Tannenbaum is a junior television-radio major. E-mail him at stannen1@ithaca.edu.

---

Voice of Reason

David Donovan’s Voice of Reason appears in this space every other week. E-mail him at ddonovan@ithaca.edu.

---

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 2002

OPINION

THE ITHACAN

---

Debates and commentaries will appear on this page weekly. To contribute, please call Opinion Editor Michelle Thasa at 274-3200.
Bias in culinary ad

Because I run a business that includes dining services, I am on the lookout for images of chefs to ilstrate our dining publications such as our weekly menu. In doing this, I’ve found a very interesting bias in the media.

I stumbled my way through the first few shows, but calmed down and steadily improved as the year went on, just like the team. We then capped off the year together, with a nice little national championship trophy sitting by our side.

His players used to speak of Bomber Pride, but you didn’t need to be a player. Everywhere I go, Jim Butterfield helped make me proud to be a Bomber. I will miss him.

ADAM WODON ’92

WANTED: DESIGN EDITOR FOR SPRING 2003

The Ithacan needs an imaginative designer for the spring semester.

This paid position is semester-long.

For more information and to apply, come to Park 269 or e-mail ithacan@ithaca.edu.

ITHACA COLLEGE

Join us for the FINAL Ring Event of the Year!

A Jostens representative will be on campus to take your class ring order:

Monday, Dec. 9 and Tuesday, Dec. 10
10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Ithaca College Bookstore, Phillips Hall

THE DIPLOMA
You Can Wear

Special discount offered during this promotion only:

$40.00 off all 14K Rings

$80.00 off all 18K Rings

DOUBLE DISCOUNT IF PAID IN FULL

Introducing NEW Silver Elfin™ Rings

To order by phone, call toll-free:
1-800-424-1492

To order by internet, visit:
www.jostens.com

We accept cash, checks and credit cards.

PIZZA

Now at

BJ’s SUB Connection

3” Pizza

Speciality $3.50

Cheese $3.25

Hours of Operation

Monday - Friday 7:30 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday Noon - 9:00 p.m.
A true college town
Ithaca was recently named one of the great American college towns.

BY ALIX STERNBERG
Staff Writer

Thomas Creamer is a conscientious student of politics, who always brings his heavy Constitutional Law book to class. He takes careful notes, listening intently to the professor's words. He chimes in with relevant comments when necessary but generally keeps to himself. But Creamer is not your typical college student. He is old enough to be a grandfather to the other students in his class. After traveling around the world as a merchant marine, he has ended up in Ithaca as a Longview resident, enrolled in numerous politics classes at Ithaca College.

The college has a partnership with Longview, an assisted living community right up the road. Senior citizens can take classes at the college by paying a small registration fee. They can audit a class, which means they are officially enrolled, or they can simply attend when they wish. They can even get an official college identification card.

Creamer had never followed politics before, but he saw articles in newspapers and heard stories on television that interested him. "I thought, 'Where do some of these people get these ideas?' So I thought I would go right to the source, right to the teachers that are teaching,'" he said.

He is currently enrolled in Constitutional Law and has also taken Understanding Capitalism and a U.S. government course, which were both great, he said. He has enjoyed his back-to-school experience and is appreciative of what the professors and students have done for him.

"They can't seem to do enough to help you," Creamer said. "The professors handle it really well. They don't point us out or anything, but we enter into the discussions, and if there is anything that comes up during one of the sessions -- if we know something that we are well aware of having lived through -- we will make a comment or two."

Christine Pogorzala, assistant professor of gerontology, is one of the Ithaca College/Longview coordinators. It is her job to facilitate the relationship between the college and Longview communities. One of her duties is to help faculty members organize activities with the residents.

"I will try to make it as painless as possible," Pogorzala said. "Because sometimes when you put the time into the experience, what you get back is much more than what you put in."

Anne Doren, another Longview resident, is currently attending the Introduction to Gerontology course taught by Pogorzala.

"I feel that I have a lot to offer them because I have experienced most of the things that they talk about," Doren said.

Sue Cotton, also a Longview resident, walks to her classes every morning as daily exercise. Even though she already has a college degree in psychology and sociology, she wants to continue learning.

This semester, she is taking Native Americans of the Northeast, an anthropology course. She has taken about seven other courses and enjoyed every one of them, she said. She took an autobiography course because she promised her daughter, she would write one.

"One of the main reasons I wanted to come to Longview was because of the interaction with Ithaca College," Cotton said. "I really wouldn't enjoy it if all we saw were senior citizens. It is so wonderful to have an intergenerational place."

Classes aren't the only way that the college and Longview are connected. Committee Addressing Relationships with the Elderly (CARE), part of the Community Service Network, hosts bingo every Monday night. The Tri Mig, one of the music fraternities, sponsors an intergenerational choir. A quilting group of students, faculty and residents meets every Thursday night. And, as "Art (Out) Age," group started by senior Katie Richards, Mullen gives residents the opportunity to participate in role-playing theater games.

Mullen is a double major in drama and psychology, pursuing a career in drama therapy.

"There are some days that no matter how bad a day I've had, I go over there, and I come back and feel great," Mullen said. "It's almost like you have all of these people who treat you like a grandchild."

On an average day, the theater group draws 15 residents. The quilting group started by Carol John, assistant professor of occupational therapy, is called Quilter's Dream. It consists of several students, faculty and residents, making their own quilts.

"They are a very inclusive group," John said.

"Because I am an occupational therapist, I adapt things for people," she said. "We help them find new ways to do things so they can stay in the group." Pogorzala said the residents' social schedules are delineated full of college activities. Residents attend college concerts, plays and events.

"The residents are extremely appreciative of a lot of the activities that take place over here," she said.

The strong connection between students, faculty and residents is evident in the fact that there are currently six Longview residents officially auditing classes, approximately 10 who are unofficially attending classes and many more who participate in the numerous recreational activities that take place as a result of the partnership.

LONGVIEW RESIDENT MEGAN GREEN prepares pieces of her quilting project during a meeting of the Quilter's Dream group, which was started by Carol John, assistant professor of occupational therapy.

THOMAS CREAMER STUDIES his Constitutional Law notes in his apartment at Longview. He has taken three courses at Ithaca College.
The geography of a college town

BY HEATHER MATTHEWS
Staff Writer

Ithaca is an unusual city. It is the home of one small private college and one extremely large Ivy League university. It is full of eager students and highly educated faculty from around the world and boasts a unique setting of forests and gorges, big-box businesses, and quirky local shops.

Blake Gumprecht, associate professor of geography at the University of South Carolina, has spent years studying other unusual places like Ithaca. In his new book, "The American College Town," he tackles the question: What is a college town?

"I've puzzled over that question a lot and in trying to write this book, I have come up with a list of characteristics that make a college town a college town," Gumprecht said.

He has chosen to make Ithaca the subject of a chapter on unique residential areas in college towns and is soliciting help from students and faculty who live in the area.

"One thing that I think makes college towns distinctive is they have certain types of residential areas that you don't find in non-college towns," Gumprecht said.

Other college town characteristics are evident in statistical measures like the census. College towns are more youthful than others because of their high student population. The people tend to be highly educated and somewhat transient, Gumprecht said.

Dana Dimitrova, assistant director of international student services, has lived in Ithaca for three years. She said these characteristics are the reason she lives in Ithaca so much, and she has contacted Gumprecht in order to contribute to his research.

She first learned about Ithaca from an article in Alternative Media Digest. After moving here, she and her husband were impressed by the educational resources available in the town.

"We loved it," Dimitrova said. "It's so wonderful to be around so many young people, and we are both historians by training, so we were both in awe of the library that Cornell has."

Kathy Farley, a recreation sports administrative assistant and resident of Ithaca, said the city is a unique place because of its diversity.

"Anyone fits in here," Farley said. "If you bring someone from out of town here to The Commons, it's a culture shock."

Some students expressed appreciation for the cultural aspects of Ithaca, from the variety of theatre companies to the town-based record label.

"There are tons of opportunities to get involved in the community both in the college and within the town," sophomore Beth Reichgott said.

Gumprecht said there are three different types of residential areas that are found within Ithaca that are also found in many other college towns: the student ghetto, the fraternity district and the faculty enclave.

People living in these areas take the special characteristics that distinguish college towns as a group.

These characteristics include the role of the campus as a public space, the effect of high-tech development on college towns, the way a college town shapes the lives of the students and the tendency of college towns to be very liberal.

The book will have a brief history of college towns and a chapter on each characteristic.

Gumprecht said there are three different types of residential areas that are found within Ithaca that are also found in many other college towns: the student ghetto, the fraternity district and the faculty enclave.

People living in these areas take the special characteristics that distinguish college towns as a group.

These characteristics include the role of the campus as a public space, the effect of high-tech development on college towns, the way a college town shapes the lives of the students and the tendency of college towns to be very liberal.

The book will have a brief history of college towns and a chapter on each characteristic.

Gumprecht said there are three different types of residential areas that are found within Ithaca that are also found in many other college towns: the student ghetto, the fraternity district and the faculty enclave.

People living in these areas take the special characteristics that distinguish college towns as a group.

These characteristics include the role of the campus as a public space, the effect of high-tech development on college towns, the way a college town shapes the lives of the students and the tendency of college towns to be very liberal.

The book will have a brief history of college towns and a chapter on each characteristic.

Gumprecht said there are three different types of residential areas that are found within Ithaca that are also found in many other college towns: the student ghetto, the fraternity district and the faculty enclave.

People living in these areas take the special characteristics that distinguish college towns as a group.

These characteristics include the role of the campus as a public space, the effect of high-tech development on college towns, the way a college town shapes the lives of the students and the tendency of college towns to be very liberal.

The book will have a brief history of college towns and a chapter on each characteristic.
Playwright visits his own creation

BY TASHA KATES
Staff Writer

Kenny Berkowitz does not look like your typical playwright. Dressed in blue jeans, boots and a comfortable black jacket, he looks more like a relaxed outdoorsman. But appearances are always deceiving in the world of theater.

Berkowitz is the soft-spoken playwright who penned "November Girls." The play, which premiered Tuesday in Clark Theatre, is a farce about a young girl named Rhonda. Berkowitz and his mother arrive at the Carousel Nightclub just prior to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. During her time there, Rhonda uncovers secrets of her mother’s past while discovering clues that point to Kennedy’s killer.

Berkowitz, a 1981 Cornell graduate, said he originally wrote the play on a dare. "I have written humorous plays, but I had never written something that was laugh-out-loud funny," Berkowitz said. "I set out to write a play where women would get the chance to be wild, and so I wrote a farce for an all-female cast. The only problem was that I needed to find a location where women congregate. And so I came up with a dressing room in a nightclub."

Berkowitz said he used Kennedy's death at a critical junction in history, Berkowitz said. "I've been going to the theater ever since I was a little boy," Berkowitz said. "I wanted to be an actor, but I also loved writing."

Berkowitz wrote his first play during college while studying history and writing for the Cornell Daily Sun. After graduating, he became a freelance writer and editor for a wide variety of publications including The Village Voice and Country Guitar. In his spare time he wrote and directed a variety of plays.

Norm Johnson, Ithaca College associate professor of theater arts and "November Girls" director, said he first met Berkowitz through a playwriting contest. "When I was the artistic director at the Kitchen Theatre, I held a contest to the end of the year called The Greater Ithaca New Playwright Contest, Johnson said. "I was one of the readers, and I fell in love with one of the plays. Although it didn't win the contest, I said that I would direct it."

Johnson said that since then, Berkowitz occasionally sent him scripts to read. Seeing the potential in "November Girls" after listening to a read-through at the Kitchen Theatre, Johnson and the Department of Theatre Arts decided Ithaca College would give the play its world premiere.

Johnson said one of the reasons he wanted to work with the play was because of its interesting plot and light-hearted feeling. "I directed "Parade" last year," Johnson said. "Not only was the play emotionally draining and heavy, but it was produced after 9-11. I decided to do something simple and fun this year."

Berkowitz said his passion for the theater started when he was young. "I've been going to the theater ever since I was a little boy," Berkowitz said. "He's very wonderful about giving the script to us and letting us figure it out on our own." Wiegens said. "He's not an overbearing playwright at all."

Berkowitz has been very laid-back about the production. "Everyone says that they remember where they were when they were when it was shot. It was earth-shattering for them," Wiegers said. "Not only was the play emotionally received."

"'November Girls' will run in Clark Theatre today through Sunday. It's a farce about a young girl named Rhonda. Berkowitz said she is glad the department involved in a new script," he said. "No one knows exactly how it will turn out, but it will be 10 or 20 years from now. So this is the first step. This is something special." "November Girls" will run in Clark Theatre today through Sunday.
Melodrama disturbs the 'Heavens'

BY SEAN PENNESSEY

Accent Editor

Like the willowy wind that steals through the town of Hartford, Conn., the bony nature of the Whitaker family is bland and stereotypical as can be in Todd Haynes' "Far From Heaven.

The mom, Kathleen, played by the elegant Julianne Moore, attends endless socialite functions and orders her son to mind his language - "Don't say the "F" word," she warns, "or he'll be like us." The dad, Frank, played by a revitalized Dennis Quaid, is a successful executive at the thriving company, Magnatech, a television manufacturing company. Frank and Kathleen's idyllic existence is immobilized in Magnatech's advertising posters. Their children, a boy and a girl, are classic products of the '50s. Everything is peachy keen. On the surface, at least.

Critics of "Far From Heaven" have been clamoring to reveal its obvious homage/mocking of the 1950s. Clearly, Haynes was inspired by Sirk's films, "Written on the Wind" and "All That Heaven Al­lows." That's right evident down to the vague and beastie title.

What separates "Far From Heaven" from Sirk's movies is the trouble underling the Laurent Whitaker family. Dad, disguised in the most classic of businessman attire, is a closet homosexual. He looks awkward kissing his own wife. Mom, a vision of pastels and gravity-defying bouffants, is sympathetic to the small and hidden black community in Hartford. Eventually, she finds herself falling for her sensitive, gay teacher, Raymond (Dennis Haysbert).

Raymond is the film's heart and soul. Everything simulated smile reveals a torn and suffering woman. The revelation of her affair's "problems" is a smack in the face of her white bread upper-middle class existence. The restraint in Moore's performance is stunning.

Patrick Clarkson, as Kathleen's chatty, gossipy bound of a best friend, manages to turn her small role into an embodiment of social inade­quacy. She understands that her scandalous chatter could have been the only significant aspect of her role. Instead, Clarkson often vul­nerability and sincerity to an other­wise heartless part.

Haysbert is understated and as­sume in each role he plays, an owner with a keen sense for character and race relations. Deagan's soft stare and deep baritone become a sootlung voice when he hears of the town prattle about his wife and her gardener. He份额nd and intense.

The look of the film is distinct­ly 1957. There is even an original swooning Elmer Bernstein score that evokes his compositions of old. Todd Haynes has solidified himself as a visionary director with an un­derstanding of film history and the ability to make the performances he chooses become of his piece.

"Far From Heaven" was written, directed and produced by Todd Haynes. The film stars Julianne Moore, Dennis Quaid, Dennis Haysbert and Patricia Clarkson.

Moral fable teaches a predictable lesson

BY LYNDSEY RUNAAS

Staff Writer

In Universal Pictures' new movie "The Emperor's Club," Kevin Kline plays a teacher trying to show a group of privileged young boys that the imperativeness of timeless men like Julius Caesar, Plato and Sophocles. He wants his stu­dents to be remembered and not just dis­appear into the woodwork. Despite very gold performance, Kline's character and an interesting, if not particularly creative, plot, "The Emperor's Club" seems doomed to the same fate Kline warns his students against.

Though Kline's character, William Hundert, bears many similarities to Richard Dreyfus' Mr. Holland from "Mr. Holland's Opus," Kline is notably believable. He is a methodical teacher with some of director Douglas Sirk's films. Many of Sirk's films, and I hesitate to call them dramas — or rather melodramas is far more appropri­ate — initially appeared to be schlocky "women's films" from the 1950s. In that way, Hundert was inspired by Sirk's films, "Written on the Wind" and "All That Heaven Al­lows." That's right evident down to the vague and beastie title.

What separates "Far From Heaven" from Sirk's movies is the trouble underling the Laurent Whitaker family. Dad, disguised in the most classic of businessman attire, is a closet homosexual. He looks awkward kissing his own wife. Mom, a vision of pastels and gravity-defying bouffants, is sympathetic to the small and hidden black community in Hartford. Eventually, she finds herself falling for her sensitive, gay teacher, Raymond (Dennis Haysbert).

Raymond is the film's heart and soul. Everything simulated smile reveals a torn and suffering woman. The revelation of her affair's "problems" is a smack in the face of her white bread upper-middle class existence. The restraint in Moore's performance is striking.

Patricia Clarkson, as Kathleen's chatty, gossipy bound of a best friend, manages to turn her small role into an embodiment of social inade­quacy. She understands that her scandalous chatter could have been the only significant aspect of her role. Instead, Clarkson often vul­nerability and sincerity to an other­wise heartless part.

Haysbert is understated and as­sume in each role he plays, an owner with a keen sense for character and race relations. Deagan's soft stare and deep baritone become a sootlung voice when he hears of the town prattle about his wife and her gardener. He份额nd and intense.

The look of the film is distinct­ly 1957. There is even an original swooning Elmer Bernstein score that evokes his compositions of old. Todd Haynes has solidified himself as a visionary director with an un­derstanding of film history and the ability to make the performances he chooses become of his piece.

"Far From Heaven" was written, directed and produced by Todd Haynes. The film stars Julianne Moore, Dennis Quaid, Dennis Haysbert and Patricia Clarkson.

"The Emperor's Club" was written, directed and produced by Toda Haynes. The film stars Kevin Kline.

COURTESY OF UNIVERSAL PICTURES

KEVIN KLINE STARS as a well-liked and inspirational teacher at an all-boys school in the film, "The Emperor's Club." Kline becomes predictable. Bell becomes the obvious antagonist, and the audience has no choice but to sympathize with Hundert.

The rest of the movie, seems oddly like a fable, containing nu­merous moral lessons. It is some­what clichéd and just a little sen­timental. In a few scenes, espe­cially when Hundert surrounds himself with all his old adoring students, one is reminded of a Hallmark greeting card.

Overall, the movie features ex­cellent acting, but it just isn't enough to turn an overlaid story into a timeless tale.

"The Emperor's Club" was written by Neal Ratan, directed by Michael Hoffman, and produced by Andrew Karach. The film stars Kevin Kline.
Defiant metal band takes no prisoners

BY MATT HUGHES  Contributing Writer

Mudvayne returns with sonic onslaught

Anyone who knows anything about metal today knows about Mudvayne. They shocked the scene over two years ago with their major label release, "L.D. 50" and have just released their follow-up album, "The End of All Things to Come." At first glance, Mudvayne can easily be classed as a nu-metal band, clones of Slipknot or descendents of Kiss with all their makeup and theatrics. They do go by the stage names of CHUD (vocals), GUUG (guitar), SPDG (drums), and RUD (bass). Don't let any of this fool you, though. Their first release, "L.D. 50," was surprisingly strong. It was like nothing I had ever heard before. Their latest release invoked the same feelings in me. Mudvayne is not for the timid. It is, essentially, hardcore metal at its most brutal. However, fans and non-fans alike should be able to appreciate their beautiful sonic quality. It goes against the grain of the typical metal album and certainly doesn't fit under the label of "nu-metal." They are far more unpredictable than your average band. The bassist makes use of the entire instrument, including the cymbals. He uses this to give the song a new twist, instead of only playing the top two strings. This combines with palm-muted guitar riffs and rhythmic assaults on the first five tracks. Et Coagula" is one such venture, and I must say it is very well done. "Shadow of a Man" is a metal fan's dream. Reminiscent of old Pantera songs, it is a journey of different musical styles and time signature changes, all within four minutes.

While the lyrics may lack any significant meaning, the music itself more than makes up for it. Mudvayne is certainly a group of talented individuals, and they venture far beyond the boundaries of metal. If you can't stomach hardcore music, this album is not for you. Otherwise, I recommend you give it a listen. You may find yourself pleasantly surprised.

30-second kick drum rolls.

Mudvayne is not all about stacked rhythms and gutturral screams though. The song "World So Cold" is a fine display of CHUD's vocal talents. The song is a nice retreat from the head-banging screams and rhythmic assault. The set, designed by stage designer Peter Rush, is intricate by period pen-and-ink drawings of London. The lighting is designed by Reups, using a college assistant professor of theater arts. The play will run this weekend, with performances on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $10 and may be purchased at the Dillingham Center box office.

Poetry slam at Juna's Café to feature the best of Ithaca

Slam Tractor will hold a poetry slam on Friday at 8 p.m. at Juna's Café. Slam Tractor is Ithaca's national poetry slam team, which will perform at the first Friday of every month. The slam is open to everyone who is interested in performing original work. Participants are rated on a scale of one to a perfect score of seven, chosen randomly from the audience. Each event's winners have a chance to travel to this year's national slam. This is the fifth slam this year. The event is free and open to the public.

Ithaca College choral groups to perform holiday songs

The Winter Choral Concert will be held Saturday, Dec. 7, at the J. James Whalen Center for Music. The concert will feature student music from Ens:acord, Madrigal Singers, the Women's Choir, and Madrigal Singers. The performance is free and open to the public.

Artists to attend reception at gallery on The Commons

There will be a "Meet the Artist" reception on Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Wexner-Bristol Art Gallery on The Commons. The reception is part of the gallery's latest exhibition, which features the work of 46 area artists. Attendees will also be able to benefit the gallery's art-for-youth program, which helps underprivileged children. The reception will run through Jan. 6. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from noon to 6 p.m.

Concert by Jazz Workshop to include original music

The Ithaca College Jazz Workshop will perform music by Pagoto D'Aviz, Chick Corea and Ray Brown on Friday at 8 p.m. in Ford Hall of the James J. Whalen Center for Music. The Jazz Workshop is led by Steve Brown, professor of music performance. The concert will also include the performance of a piece written by Brown for three guest musicians. The concert is free and open to the public.

Wind Ensemble and bands to welcome guest conductor

Timothy Reynish, the honorary wind ensemble conductor of the Royal Northern College of Music in Manchester, England, will guest conduct next week. He will lead student ensembles in two free concerts. Reynish will conduct the Ithaca College Wind Ensemble in a performance of works by Percy Grainger and Nigel Clark on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Ford Hall of the James J. Whalen Center for Music. He will also lead the Ithaca College Concert and Symphonic bands in a performance of Handel's "Messiah."
Weekly Calendar of Events

FOUR-DAY WEATHER FORECAST

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Day</th>
<th>Weather Conditions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Today</td>
<td>Snow Showers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>High: 31°</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Low: 19°</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>Cloudy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>High: 35°</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Low: 25°</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>Light Snow</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>High: 37°</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Low: 24°</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Forecast issued by the National Weather Service, courtesy of the Northeast Regional Climate Center at Cornell University.

Event of the week
"November Girls" is playing this weekend in the Clark Theatre, Dillingham Center.

OUTSIDE THE SNOW IS FALLING

Tuesday

Rotaract — 6:30 p.m. in Friends 302.
Ithaca Brass Quintet — 7 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Young Democratic Socialists — 7 p.m. in Friends Hall.
Junior Recital — Scott England, voice, at 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Jazz Workshop — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Students for Life — 9:30 p.m. in Friends Hall.

Sports
Men's and women's swimming and diving at Alfred at 6 p.m.

Wednesday

Stress-Free Day — Massages from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Clark Lounge, Campus Center.
Kissing and Petting — Visit with llamas and dogs as part of stress-free day, 11:45 to 1:15 p.m. in McDonald Lounge, Campus Center.
Eucharist for Peace and Healing in the Celtic/ Anglican Tradition — 12:10 p.m. in Muller Chapel.
Circle K — 7 p.m. in Friends 210.
Student Chamber Ensembles — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Spectacle and Illusions Club Talent Review — 7:30 p.m. in Emerson Suites.
Wind Ensemble — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.

Sports
Wrestling at Oswego at 7 p.m.

Not all ithaca College events are listed in the calendar.
Send information to The Ithacan, 269 Roy H. Park Hall, Ithaca College, by Monday at 5 p.m. For more information, call Calendar Manager Christine Lomb at 274-3208 or fax at 274-1565.

Monday

Senior Class Meeting — 7 to 9 p.m. in Conference Room, Campus Center.
Piano Duos — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.

Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Sunday

Christmas Craft Sale — 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Trumansburg Elementary School cafeteria.

Catholic Mass — 1 and 9 p.m. in Muller Chapel.
Junior Recital — Christine Smith, piano, at 1 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
"November Girls" — 2 p.m. in Clark Theatre, Dillingham Center.
Winter Choral Concert — 3 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.

Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

ITALY

Tuesday

Rotaract — 6:30 p.m. in Friends 302.
Ithaca Brass Quintet — 7 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Young Democratic Socialists — 7 p.m. in Friends Hall.
Junior Recital — Scott England, voice, at 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Jazz Workshop — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Students for Life — 9:30 p.m. in Friends Hall.

Sports
Men's and women's swimming and diving at Alfred at 6 p.m.

Wednesday

Stress-Free Day — Massages from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Clark Lounge, Campus Center.
Kissing and Petting — Visit with llamas and dogs as part of stress-free day, 11:45 to 1:15 p.m. in McDonald Lounge, Campus Center.
Eucharist for Peace and Healing in the Celtic/Anglican Tradition — 12:10 p.m. in Muller Chapel.
Circle K — 7 p.m. in Friends 210.
Student Chamber Ensembles — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Spectacle and Illusions Club Talent Review — 7:30 p.m. in Emerson Suites.
Wind Ensemble — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.

Sports
Wrestling at Oswego at 7 p.m.

Not all ithaca College events are listed in the calendar.
Send information to The Ithacan, 269 Roy H. Park Hall, Ithaca College, by Monday at 5 p.m. For more information, call Calendar Manager Christine Lomb at 274-3208 or fax at 274-1565.

Monday

Senior Class Meeting — 7 to 9 p.m. in Conference Room, Campus Center.
Piano Duos — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.

Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

ITALY

Tuesday

Rotaract — 6:30 p.m. in Friends 302.
Ithaca Brass Quintet — 7 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Young Democratic Socialists — 7 p.m. in Friends Hall.
Junior Recital — Scott England, voice, at 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Jazz Workshop — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Students for Life — 9:30 p.m. in Friends Hall.

Sports
Men's and women's swimming and diving at Alfred at 6 p.m.

Wednesday

Stress-Free Day — Massages from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Clark Lounge, Campus Center.
Kissing and Petting — Visit with llamas and dogs as part of stress-free day, 11:45 to 1:15 p.m. in McDonald Lounge, Campus Center.
Eucharist for Peace and Healing in the Celtic/Anglican Tradition — 12:10 p.m. in Muller Chapel.
Circle K — 7 p.m. in Friends 210.
Student Chamber Ensembles — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Spectacle and Illusions Club Talent Review — 7:30 p.m. in Emerson Suites.
Wind Ensemble — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.

Sports
Wrestling at Oswego at 7 p.m.

Not all ithaca College events are listed in the calendar.
Send information to The Ithacan, 269 Roy H. Park Hall, Ithaca College, by Monday at 5 p.m. For more information, call Calendar Manager Christine Lomb at 274-3208 or fax at 274-1565.

Monday

Senior Class Meeting — 7 to 9 p.m. in Conference Room, Campus Center.
Piano Duos — 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.

Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

ITALY

Tuesday

Rotaract — 6:30 p.m. in Friends 302.
Ithaca Brass Quintet — 7 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Young Democratic Socialists — 7 p.m. in Friends Hall.
Junior Recital — Scott England, voice, at 7 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Community Service Network — 7:30 to 8 p.m. in DeMotte Room, Campus Center.
Student Government Association — 8:15 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Jazz Workshop — 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Students for Life — 9:30 p.m. in Friends Hall.

Sports
Men's and women's swimming and diving at Alfred at 6 p.m.
For Rent

Four bedroom townhouses 212 Coddington Rd. Furnished, one and a half baths, laundry, street parking, washer & dryer. $420 and up.

Four bedroom townhouses 212 Coddington Rd. Furnished, one and a half baths, laundry, street parking, washer & dryer. $420 and up. Available June 1 or Aug 1, furnished.

For Rent

Two and three bedroom apartments, 1 mile to IC, all utilities included, parking included 12 month lease. Available June 1, 2003. Call 272-9897.

Three and four bedroom apartments with parking non-coin operated washer and dryer, dishwasher, balconies. Call 273-8576.

Three bedroom house. Opposite rear entrance to IC. Good base floor, full basement with a washer and dryer off-street parking, yard. Very nice. Available June 15 or July 1. $3300 per person plus utilities. Furnished or unfurnished.

Certified Properties of TC Inc. 109 LIVONIA ROAD, ITHACA, NY 14850/WEB/ CERTIFIED

For Rent

For 2003-2004 one bedroom furnished and close to IC and The Commons. Hardwood floors, 1 bedroom heat. $2800 per year.

Five bedroom house, at 112 N. Plain St. Furnished, large rooms, large yard, $290 per person plus utilities. Available Aug 1.

Call 272-1672

918 DANYO ROAD, 4 BEDROOM, 3 BATHS, DISHWASHER, FIREPLACE, PARKING, VIEW, BUS ROUTE, WALD OR TC, 273-9462.

South Hill Rentals: Prospect St. Auburn Hills. Apartments for rent 2003-2004 yr. All are furnished, some with off-street parking.

Call 272-5070

Furnished Affordible Convenient 3/4 BR townhome free p/dishwasher/dishwasher one bedroom $300 per room from $300-$370/mo. Call 277-6767

AURORA STREET near Commons close, bright 3 & 4 bedroom townhouses, laundry, furnished, porch. 273-9452.

Sublet

Housemates driving you crazy? Sublet your place and find another: House.com

Drop in & ask about our special.

www.house.com

Sublet Sp. 3 bedroom in a 4 person apt. $350/month utilities, 115 Hudson St. E-mail berdahl@hotmail.com or call 277-6144.

Spring 2003. Two bedroom apt. $350/person utilities not included. 210 W. Spencer St. E-mail erkah1@hotmail.com or call 277-6144.

The Ihacan Classified Classified

Employment

Bartender Trainee Needed. $250 a day potential. Contact Tim Wlach - 1-800-293-9955 ext. 299.

Marketing Agency Seeks High Energy Promotions in Bars & Nightclubs Must be able to work evenings. Contact Christine Lomb, classified manager, at 274-1618.

FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES, CLUBS, STUDENT GROUPS - E-mail: Earn $1,000-$2,000 this semester with a proven sales team. Promotions in Bars & Nightclubs. Furnished Affordable Convenient and recycling facility with laundry.

For Rent

Graduation Weekend! 5+ bedroom furnished apartment close to IC in rural setting near Big Al's, lots of parking, completely modernized top quality furnishings. Available 6-1-03. $1,800 for 3-4 month available. Convenient to campus or Commons. Very large bedrooms, full basement with a washer and dryer, large yard. Very nice. Available June 1 or Aug 1. $3300 per person plus utilities. Furnished or unfurnished.

GRAND VICTORIAN MANSION One block to Commons complete with kitchen and rooms with mini-kitchen. 9 nice large bedrooms, full new kitchen, laundry. $2000 per year.

http://www.1450.com/web/ certified

For Rent

For 2003-2004 one bedroom furnished and close to IC and The Commons. Hardwood floors, 2 bedrooms, heat. 2800 per year.

$365/person utilities not included.

1-800-234-7007.

ECK Worship Service Sun Dec 5, 11 a.m. East Campus. "Life to the Fullest", E Climate Healing. Come in with a 70's or 80's costume and get hooked up with 2 free trips and extra cash and bonus prizes for the best costume! Foam Parties, Free Travel, Reps needed. Earn up to $25 an hour for 4 nights. $1 off single night. www.sunsplashtours.com.

For Sale

Certified Properties of TC Inc. 107 LIVONIA ROAD, ITHACA, NY 14850/WEB/ CERTIFIED

For Sale

Three bedroom Apartments or townhouses. Baths, full basement, eat in kitchen, 9 nice large bedrooms, full kitchen, laundry. Call 272-6942.

available. Convenient to campus or Commons. Very large bedrooms, full basement with a washer and dryer, large yard. Very nice. Available June 1 or Aug 1. $3300 per person plus utilities. Furnished or unfurnished. Available 6-1-03. Must see.

Certified Properties of TC Inc. 273-1650.

http://www.1450.com/web/ certified

For Sale

Three bedroom Apartments or townhouses. Baths, full basement, eat in kitchen, 9 nice large bedrooms, full kitchen, laundry. Call 272-6942.

Call 280-6868.

For Sale

Three bedroom Apartments or townhouses. Bath, full basement, eat in kitchen, 9 nice large bedrooms, full kitchen, laundry. Call 272-6942.

Call 273-9462.

www.catskillsregional.org.

Three bedroom Apartments or townhouses. Bath, full basement, eat in kitchen, 9 nice large bedrooms, full kitchen, laundry. Call 272-6942.

Call 273-9462.

For Sale

For Sale

THURSDAY DECEMBER 5, 2002 PAGE 17

WASHINGTON D.C. SUMMER INTERNSHIP FUND

Are you

Planning on working in Washington D.C. this summer?

Considering an unpaid internship, for credit or no credit?

Eager for a legal academic and judicial training with a 3.0 GPA or better?

If yes to all, then read on.

Funds available for the D.C. area thanks to the office of the College of Arts & Sciences.

Applications for this award are available at the dean's office at your school and the Office of Career Services.

It's Free in 2003

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

USA Spring Break Travel

HUMAN RESOURCES IS SENDING A DESIGNATED FIRER TO DO LAYOFFS.

HELL-O-O-O, TED. I'M THE LEASEL OF LAYOFFS.

IF THERE'S ANY WAY YOU CAN MAKE THIS EXPERIENCE MORE HUMILIATING, DON'T HESITATE TO ASK.

WHAT IS A SHORTER WORD FOR DOOMED?

SO I TOLD HIM TO STOP MAKING MOTOR NOISES WITH HIS LIPS.

GET THE SCORPION KING ACTION FIGURE AWAY FROM YOUR SISTER'S BARBIE!

NOW SHE'S ALSO TYPING A PERSONAL MESSAGE WITH HER NOSE! IT'S A TRIFECTA!

I NEED YOU TO DO TED'S JOB AND YOUR OWN JOB UNTIL WE HIRE SOMEONE.

IF I DO WELL, YOU'LL MAKE ME DO TWO JOBS FOREVER. IF I DO POORLY, I'LL GET NO RAISE.

I CAN'T PROMISE ANYTHING, BUT THERE MIGHT BE SOME VERBAL PRAISE DOWN THE ROAD.

CAROL, TELL THOSE KIDS THEY CAN'T SKATEBOARD IN OUR PARKING LOT.

SHOULD I GIVE THEM A REASON, OR IS THIS PART OF YOUR MASTER PLAN TO REMOVE ALL JOY FROM THE UNIVERSE?

THEY KNOW I'M GOING TO BLAME OUR INSURANCE CARRIER!

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS

ACROSS
1 Nocturnal fliers
6 Ski carriers
10 Negative votes
14 ACC, real
15 Helipad a fest
16 Toast topic
17 "A League of _" Devil
18 Amuse
19 Carbonated fely
20 Humble home
21 Naval
22 Dominant
24 Gardeners, it
26 Fish story
27 Fish interests
31 Actress Tomei
32 Many millennia
34 Playgrounds
36 Coward
38 Nickel parts
39 In, in, in ...
40 Restaurant stand
42 Auto fuel
43 Japanese port
44 Preceding 46 Swiftly
47 Expired dated
51 Hindu spiritual discipline
52 Yummy
54 Bigotes
55 Writer Levin
56 Dynamic head...
63 First violin
64 Concepts
65 College credit
67 Spain
68 Last thing, usually 69 "... but she was there ..."
70 Toddler
71 Cosmetics-

DOWN
1 Legendary story
2 Pearl Harbor's valley
3 Passport
4 Tesla
5 Sushi dessert
6 Sentry's cry
7 Funeral dip
8 Distributed the cards
9 Trout-fishing locale
10 1969 Beatles hit
11 "I'm going to ..."
12 Shell back
13 Drummond
15 Sports venue
22 Lapses
23 CIA precursor
27 Honeymoon
28 Eternities
29 Coles law
30 Blood constituent
32 Recipe element
33 Does' mates
34 Something of value
35 Tissue priest
36_Maghreb
37 Line dance
40 Convulsion
42 Convention address
44 Jets' vehicle
45 Abbeville art diary
46 Monastery
50 Convict
51 Westminster, e.g.
54 Half-good man
55 Nevada city
56 Year's date
57 Brake to high
58 Ultimate word
59 Unit cost
60 Urdu poet
61 Arthur of tennis
65 Urdu poet.

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS
Ithaca mourns loss of legendary figure

BY BRIAN DELANEY
Sports Editor

He was a successful coach. Respected by everyone who met him. A role model to many. And he had a tremendous personality.

Philip J. "Jim" Butterfield studied everything that was good about Ithaca College in his 27 years as teacher and football coach. Now, after his death Nov. 26 at age 74, his legacy will live on in the memories of everyone who knew him.

Like his former linebacker, Harry Moss '80, "I remember right before we had to leave for a playoff game in November, his brother Jack had just died in a car accident," Moss said. "So he had to make a choice, and he's standing in front of the team, trying to tell us. You could see him welling up, but he didn't want to cry in front of the team. We all knew, but I could tell you, all 50 guys would have run through a wall for him at that moment."

"Now when I think of Ithaca football, I think of Jim Butterfield."

His impact on Ithaca's football program certainly was profound. Over the span of three decades, Butterfield won three national championships (1979, 1989, 1991) and finished with a record of 306-111-1. Eleven times he guided a Bomber squad to the postseason, and he is only one of two college football coaches who won a national title in three separate decades.

Jeff Wittman '93, who played an integral part in Butterfield's third national title in 1991, remembers his former coach with a fond heart — as a coach and a person.

"There was an aura about him," Wittman said. "His success, his experience, what he had to say. It was like a mixture of everything — you just believed in him. He was a great guy.

So great that Ithaca renamed its football stadium after him in 1992 — while he was still coaching, he revealed, because Butterfield being named Coach of the Year by the National Football Foundation in 1988 and 1991. He received his highest honor in 1997, when he was elected to the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame.

Wittman, one of the 85 Bombers who earned 140 All-America honors during the separate decades.

Jeff Wittman '93, who played an integral part in Butterfield's third national title in 1991, remembers his former coach with a fond heart — as a coach and a person.

"There was an aura about him," Wittman said. "His success, his experience, what he had to say. It was like a mixture of everything — you just believed in him. He was a great guy.

So great that Ithaca renamed its football stadium after him in 1992 — while he was still coaching, he revealed, because Butterfield being named Coach of the Year by the National Football Foundation in 1988 and 1991. He received his highest honor in 1997, when he was elected to the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame.

Wittman, one of the 85 Bombers who earned 140 All-America honors during the Dynamic duo misses All-America but leads Bombers to seventh place

BY BRAD TIEDE
Staff Writer

Headbutter.

That's the feeling Amanda Laytham had after last year's NCAA championships.

The All-American sophomore scored her 14th top time and even a chance for All-America recognition herself last year and was trying for its first-ever national title.

Laytham said, "I was a down-to-earth guy and you were able to teach base with him on just about anything."

Laytham said, "I was doing it for the team."

He loved his family, and I think that's how he ran our football program — like a family. He was a great teacher and just as much a winner off the field as on.

"A teacher first, coach second," Butterfield also left his mark on the students he taught in the classroom. A physical education major, Butterfield impacted students with a similar approach to teaching as he took to coaching.

"I was going to be a teacher and a coach, so he was a role model for me," Welch said. "I could model myself after him, in terms of integrity, how you treat people, love of life and love for the game of football."

Butterfield is survived by his wife, Lois, daughters Kristen and Gail and son, Terrence, who is a college football coach in Texas.

A memorial service is scheduled for Friday at 3 p.m. in St. John's Episcopal Church at 210 N. Cayuga St. The Ithaca community and the Butterfield family will be hosting a reception in remembrance of Butterfield, who was a coach on Friday at 4 p.m. in Emerson Suites.

"We will fondly and gratefully remember the coach, teacher and human being each time we attend a sporting event at the venue that bears his name," President Peggy R. Williams said. "He will be sorely missed."

---

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY NATIONAL RESULTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>No.</th>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.</td>
<td>Williams (Mass.)</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.</td>
<td>Middlebury (Vt.)</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.</td>
<td>Williams (Md.)</td>
<td>209</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.</td>
<td>Washington (Mo.)</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.</td>
<td>Calvin (Mich.)</td>
<td>264</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.</td>
<td>Wm.-La Crosse</td>
<td>270</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.</td>
<td>ITHACA</td>
<td>274</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8.</td>
<td>Skidmore</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9.</td>
<td>Baldwin-Wallace</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10.</td>
<td>Dickinson (Pa.)</td>
<td>286</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11.</td>
<td>New Jersey</td>
<td>305</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.</td>
<td>Harvard</td>
<td>306</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13.</td>
<td>Trinity (Conn.)</td>
<td>307</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14.</td>
<td>Brooklyn</td>
<td>313</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15.</td>
<td>Genesee</td>
<td>329</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

THE BUTTERFIELD ERA

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Record</th>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Record</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1967</td>
<td>4-4</td>
<td>1987</td>
<td>11-2-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1968</td>
<td>3-5</td>
<td>1988</td>
<td>13-1 *</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1969</td>
<td>3-5</td>
<td>1989</td>
<td>7-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1970</td>
<td>4-4</td>
<td>1990</td>
<td>9-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>5-2</td>
<td>1991</td>
<td>12-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>5-2</td>
<td>1992</td>
<td>9-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>4-2</td>
<td>1993</td>
<td>2-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>10-1</td>
<td>1997</td>
<td>4-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>6-2-1</td>
<td>1998</td>
<td>1-7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>6-2</td>
<td>1999</td>
<td>4-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>6-3</td>
<td>2000</td>
<td>6-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>9-2</td>
<td>2001</td>
<td>1-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1979</td>
<td>11-2</td>
<td>2002</td>
<td>6-4</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*National championship season

---

COURTESY OF SPORTS INFORMATION

---

LEGENDARY FOOTBALL COACH Jim Butterfield died Nov. 28 at the age of 74.

---

THE BUTTERFIELD ERA

206-71-1

---

COURTESY OF ERIK BOESE

---

BYRAID TIEDE
Staff Writer

---

THE ITHACAAN 19

---

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 2002

---

---

---

---
Ithaca shooting stroke key to productive year

No need for overstatements here, but this year’s version of the men’s basketball team is going to be very, very good.

But just not yet.

It’s too early to pawn complete judgment on the reigniting Empire 8 champs, but Monday night’s 17-point loss to their Division I East Half neighbors gave a little insight into the good things we can expect this season from the Bombers.

We hope so.

The biggest problem over the last two years for the Bombers has been their outside shooting. Their long-distance brick-laying has cost them more games than they want to admit, including last year’s NCAA playoff game to Alvernia. Heck, they even put up an embarrassing 0-for-15 three-point display at Cornell last season.

But after three games, the team has shown major signs of improvement in that department. In a three-point loss to Williams (Mass.) over break, the Bombers shot 12-of-25 from behind the arc. Monday night at Cornell, it was 11-of-29. It was either game, and that’s more than they hit in any one contest all last season.

That improvement comes mostly from sophomore Jesse Roth and junior Sean Cliff­ford, who have hit a combined 14-of-30 from deep in three games. Their improved shooting, coupled with their timing on screens and ball movement was thrown off most of the night by the physical Big Red.

So far, though, the Bombers are falling short of the kind of offensive effort we have to see to take the next step.

The Bombers are built around defense, but they have been averaging just 37.3 points per game in three games. And they got to the foul line 39 times, hitting 28.

Ithaca, despite suffering from deep in three games, has averaged 66.3 points per game. And they got to the foul line 39 times, hitting 28.

That improvement comes mostly from sophomore Jesse Roth and junior Sean Clif­ford, who have hit a combined 14-of-30 from deep in three games. Their improved shooting, coupled with their timing on screens and ball movement was thrown off most of the night by the physical Big Red.

So far, though, the Bombers are falling short of the kind of offensive effort we have to see to take the next step.
Bombers feel a sixth-straight state title is well within reach

BY AMY AMBLER
Sports Writer

A senior member of the volleyball team, Jessica Raymond received second-team All-America honors after registering 494 kills and 215 blocks on the season. She ended the top four spots in Ithaca's record books for season kills and also the career mark at 389. She was also a three-time all-conference selection. Raymond is a biology major.

A senior goalie on the soccer team, Glenn Palmieri finished the season with a 2-3-2 record, allowing only 10 goals in 14 games, good enough for a .64 goals against average. He made several key saves in the Bombers' Empire 8 championship run and NCAA playoff games. Palmieri is a sports information and communication major.

Bombers feel a sixth-straight state title is well within reach

BY ADAM LIPKOWITZ
Sports Writer

Bye, bye, State University of New York at Ithaca, we'll see you tomorrow. This year's team will be led by senior captain Erin Boothe (distance), graduate student captain Amy Holvey (jumps, sprints) and junior All-American Amanda Laytham (distance). The majority of the athletes are coming out of a cross country season in which the Bombers finished seventh in the nation, adding optimism to the winter months.

As a captain, Boothe, who placed 10th in the final 5,000-meter run at last year's NCAA Division III Indoor Track and Field Championships, will have leadership duties as well as expectations on the track. But, instead of looking at it as added pressure, she takes great pride in her job.

"It's a role that I'm proud to hold," she said. "I really enjoy having underclassmen look up to me and know they can talk to me. It's a fun leadership role to be in." Boothe is very confident in Boothe on and off the track.

"We talk about all the challenges you face as a college student and how it prepares you for college life, if they do what they did last year's goal, if they do better, that's great." —Belfield

Bombers feel a sixth-straight state title is well within reach

BY AMY AMBLER
Sports Writer

ALL-ITHACAN TEAM

FALL SEASON 2002

HONORABLE MENTION: Brook Aldrich, field hockey; Eric Deyle, soccer; Amanda Laytham, cross country; Mike Styczynski, cross country; Robe, †Truman, football.

Returning stars strive for state title

BY AMY AMBLER
Sports Writer

A sophomore linebacker on the football team, Jose Colon had an outstanding year that included first-place finishes and a total of five top-10 finishes. Despite a hand injury, Boothe placed 77th at the national meet, helping the cross country team finish in seventh place overall. Boothe is a physical therapy major.

A senior member of the volleyball team, Jessica Raymond received second-team All-America honors after registering 494 kills and 215 blocks on the season. She ended the top four spots in Ithaca's record books for season kills and also the career mark at 389. She was also a three-time all-conference selection. Raymond is a biology major.

A senior goalie on the soccer team, Glenn Palmieri finished the season with a 2-3-2 record, allowing only 10 goals in 14 games, good enough for a .64 goals against average. He made several key saves in the Bombers' Empire 8 championship run and NCAA playoff games. Palmieri is a sports information and communication major.

Bombers feel a sixth-straight state title is well within reach
Raymond receives rightful reward
Senior becomes All-American after stellar season

BY ANDREW KROECKEL
Staff Writer

She's wanted to be one for four years, she was close to being one last season, and now she is one. Senior Jessica Raymond was named a second-team All-American last week, and she couldn't be more elated.

"I was so happy," Raymond said. "I was very proud," Donovan said. "But I was kind of giving myself a reality check that it really wouldn't happen. And so I guess I was pretty shocked when [coach Janet Donovan] told me. I was just really, really excited. It's just a better way to end the season than how we had hoped to end it."

The volleyball team weren't invited to the NCAA playoffs for the first time in 10 years, and finished the season with a 32-10 record. Despite the disappointing finish to the year, Donovan thought Raymond's individual honor was well-deserved.

"I was just very proud," Donovan said. "She earned it. I felt she was close to being one the last year of it. It's stressful and it takes time, but it's been worth it tenfold," she said. "I am so glad that I played all four years, and it's just helped me develop as a person."

Some might even say into an All-American.

The volleyball team weren't in the NCAA playoffs for the first time in 10 years, and finished the season with a 32-10 record. Despite the disappointing finish to the year, Donovan thought Raymond's individual honor was well-deserved.

"I was just very proud," Donovan said. "She earned it. I felt she was close to being one the last year of it. It's stressful and it takes time, but it's been worth it tenfold," she said. "I am so glad that I played all four years, and it's just helped me develop as a person."

Senior Jessica Raymond was the fourth best single-season mark in school history. She is the only player to record a better percentage at Ithaca, and she now holds the top four spots for season kill percentage and the career mark at .398.

I wouldn't take back any year of it, it's stressful and it takes a ton of time, but it's been worth it tenfold," she said. "I am so glad that I played all four years, and it's just helped me develop as a person."

Announcing the Winter 2002 Wait Lists!

Wait List Applications

(by College Circle Apartments, Garden Apartments, Emerson, Terrace Suites, and Single, and Double & Triple rooms) will be available at the Residential Life Office and our website at www.ithaca.edu/reslife/current_students/roomchanges:

Monday, December 9, at 9 a.m.

Completed Applications returned to the Residential Life office by:

Friday, December 13, at 5 p.m.

are considered on time and prioritized in order according to class standing and date and time received.

(Class Standing is determined by the number of completed credits you have.)

Late applications are prioritized according to date and time received.

For more information, e-mail us at Housing@Ithaca.edu.
Men's aquatics
Saturday
The Bombers swam past Empires 8 foe Hartwick, 141-102, but fell to perennial nemesis and tri-meet host Hamilton, 109-137. Leading the way for Ithaca was junior co-captain Sean Kavanaugh, who claimed first place in the 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard backstroke events by significant margins.

The Bombers dominated the 200-yard breaststroke as senior Mike Thurk and junior Ryan Orser placed first and second respectively. In the 90-yard freestyle sprint, Therk finished second with a time of 22.21, beating junior-teammate Sasha Kuznezov by one-hundredth of a second.

Sophomore Steve Barnes carried the Bombers in the distance freestyle events, finishing a close second (4:51.79) in the 500-yard freestyle, and also anchored the 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard backstroke relay teams. Finishing in second place was Ithaca's fastest performance of the year by more than three seconds.

In the 1-meter diving competition, junior Kristen Shores captured first place. In the 3-meter event while junior Mike Furstoss finished second with a time of 22.21, beating sophomore Stephanie Cleary led the team in scoring with 13 points.

Women's basketball
Sunday
The Bombers dropped to 1-2 after struggling against Rochester Sunday, losing to the Yellowjackets for the fourth-straight time, 69-60. Sophomore Stephanie Cleary led the team in scoring with 13 points.

Senior Karrie Syck joined Yellin, Hughes and Bowen to complete the Bombers' winning relay team. The quartet's time of 3 minutes, 17.10 seconds was its fifth fastest performance of the year by more than three seconds.

The Bombers travel to the Franklin & Marshall Invitational this weekend.
A community in mourning

Legendary football coach Philip J. "Jim" Butterfield has died at age 74.

Page 19

The Ithacan

Sports

THURSDAY
DECEMBER 5, 2002
PAGE 24

ROAD BLOCK

Ithaca couldn't hang with crosstown rival Cornell in the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic.

Page 20

IThACA SENIOR MATT RIDDING, right, tries to work around tough defense from Cornell's David Liske in Monday night's loss to the Big Red.