Dining service employees die in car accident

BY MARC KLEIN
Staff Writer

Ithaca College is mourning the loss of two dining service employees who were killed in a two-vehicle accident last weekend.

"We're still suffering from this," said Gene Wescott, general manager for dining services. "It's impacting us."

The two employees, Lisa Swansbrough, 29, and her sister-in-law Frannie Swansbrough, 25, both of Candor, N.Y., worked in the Terrace Dining Hall.

Lisa has employed there since August 2000. Frannie has worked in August of this year.

Phil Amene, general manager of the Terrace Dining Hall, described both women as good employees with outgoing personalities.

"Lisa was a great employee, very personable, and she will be missed by everyone," Amene said. "She was a magnet for everybody — her personality, the person she was. Frannie just joined this August, but again, very similar personality. She was very outgoing, pleasant and will be very sorely missed."

Senior Kenten Craysey, a student manager at the Terrace Dining Hall, has known Lisa since her sophomore year.

"She could make anything seem a lot better," Craysey said. "Even when something wasn't going the way it should, she could make it into a joke and it would be OK."

Craysey said their presence will be missed in the dining hall.

"It will not be the same," she said. "They just brought so much light into the kitchen."

State Police Investigator William Staudinger III said the accident occurred at 3 p.m. on Coe Road, just south of the Tompkins County border.

Both women were killed on impact with a 1994 Chevrolet Blazer driven by Glen Kotler, 21, who were in became airborne and flew through 100 feet of brush before coming to a stop 320 feet down an embankment.

The State Police discovered the vehicle the next day after a neighbor filed a complaint about damaged shrubs.

Staudinger said excessive speed was to blame for the accident. "We haven't determined if alcohol was a factor."

Wescott said dining services is using its employee assistance program to help employees cope with the tragedy.

"One of the things I do is walk around and talk to a lot of the staff and help them talk about it and offer support when I can," Wescott said. Amene is also lending an ear where it's needed.

"I've talked to several people about it, the accident and what's been left behind with both the girls," he said.

Amene and Wescott said services and operations are continuing as normal.

Dining services is waiting to hear from the family on how to appropriately memorialize the women, Wescott said.

Lisa is survived by her husband, Don, and three children, Ashley, Brandon and Victoria Swansbrough and four stepchildren, Heather, Holly, Diarma and Don Swansbrough III, as well as several other relatives.

Lisa's family will receive visitors today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Banta Funeral Home.

Frannie is survived by her husband, William Lynn, her children, Joseph, Allen, William Jr. and Cody and several other relatives.

Her calling hours were held Wednesday in Candor.

P.T. program plans higher degree

BY VANESSA MOLINA
Staff Writer

The college's physical therapy program will be the first department in the history of Ithaca College to offer a clinical doctoral degree to its students, though details are still in the works.

In the future, students applying to the program will have the option to choose the six-year doctoral or the five-year master's degree in physical therapy.

Katherine Beissner, professor of physical therapy, said this is an exciting advancement for the college, as well as the profession itself.

"The physical therapy program at the college has been around for nearly 55 years," Beissner said. "We should continue to be on the cutting edge of P.T., and with the way the profession is heading, this will solidify our program."

Steve Siconolfi, dean of the school of Health Sciences and Human Performance, said the process of seeking approval for the doctoral physical therapy program has yet to be finalized, both at the undergraduate and graduate level.

Because the development of such a program at the college is still in the planning stages, it is unclear when the first students will be able to take advantage of the program.

The American Physical Therapy Association does not require all programs to offer a doctoral degree, but in June 2000, decided to endorse the Vision 2020 statement, which recommends that all physical therapy programs offer clinical doctoral programs to students.

According to the APTA, there are currently 41 professional accredited programs with doctoral degrees for physical therapy. An additional 85 colleges and universities around the country have begun the transition to offer the option of a doctoral to students and most will be implemented by the end of the year 2004.

Institutions that offer doctoral physical therapy programs include Northwestern University, Boston University, the State University of New York at Buffalo and at Stonybrook.

Allison Baexendale, a senior physical therapy major at the college, enrolled in the five-year master's program as a freshman.

She said she transition to a six-year clinical doctoral degree program will be necessary for the physical therapy program to remain competitive.

"It would definitely choose his option if it was offered when I was a freshman," Baexendale said. "The way this profession is heading and the way health care is changing, it is necessary for the physical therapy program to remain competitive."

Beissner said that upperclassmen enrolled in the five-year master's program will most likely not have the option to switch over to the clinical doctoral degree.

However, freshmen and sophomores could have the possibility to switch over and complete the final year in the six-year program.

"With the doctoral program there is an additional year of preparatory coursework, with students taking additional three- and four-level courses," Beissner said.

Sophomore Jill Masters, a physical therapy major, said if given the opportunity, she most likely would not switch over to the six-year program only because it would require extra commitment and she prefers to just complete her master's degree.

The sounds of silence

Record industry pulls plug on illegal file sharers

BY KATIE MASLANKA
Assistant News Editor

When Allie, a sophomore in the School of Humanities and Sciences, received a message from the Office of Public Safety last Friday afternoon, she had no idea what warranted the unexpected call.

"I immediately thought that something went wrong at home," she said. "So I called home and was panicking."

Allie soon found out that she was being judicially referred for sharing more than 400 files over the Internet. And she's not alone: since Thursday, a total of 12 students on campus have been judicially referred for illegally sharing copyrighted files and the college received a warning from the Recording Industry Association of America on Sept. 4.

In addition to the referral, the students had their ResNet connections disabled and were required to delete the shared files from their computers.

See IT&S, page 4
A Sept. 11 scenario with hijackers commandeering jets in terrorist attacks could have been foreseen by the airline industry, a federal judge said Tuesday, clearing the way for lawsuits on behalf of family members of the victims.
The ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Alvin Hellerstein of Manhattan allows Sept. 11 victims injured at the Port Authority and World Trade Center, a bomber detonated himself on a bus packed with Israelis after he entered an Israeli military base south of Tel Aviv, followed about six hours later by an explosion at a popular café in Jerusalem.
The attacks came after the radical Islamic Resistance Movement, known as Hamas, vowed revenge for Israeli assassinations that have killed 14 of its leaders in the last three weeks and narrowly missed its founder, Sheik Ahmed Yassin, on Saturday.
Tuesday's suicide bombings were the first in Israel since a bomber detonated himself in a bus packed with Israelis in Jerusalem on Aug. 19, killing 22 people in an attack that prompted Israeli forces to evacuate the killing Hamas took responsibility for the bus bombing. Earlier Tuesday, in a firefight in Hebron in the West Bank, Israeli troops killed two Hamas members and a 12-year-old bystander, and blew up a seven-story apartment building where the Palestinians were hiding.

Group urges steps against teen drinking

America needs to take drastic steps to control an epidemic of teenage drinking that is costing $53 billion a year, putting the campaign against underage drinking on the same footing as the war against teenage smoking.

Earlier Tuesday, in a firefight in Hebron in the West Bank, Israeli troops killed two Hamas members and a 12-year-old bystander, and blew up a seven-story apartment building where the Palestinians were hiding.

Group urges steps against teen drinking

America needs to take drastic steps to control an epidemic of teenage drinking that is costing $53 billion a year, putting the campaign against underage drinking on the same footing as the war against teenage smoking.

Earlier Tuesday, in a firefight in Hebron in the West Bank, Israeli troops killed two Hamas members and a 12-year-old bystander, and blew up a seven-story apartment building where the Palestinians were hiding.
Few candidates step forward for elections

BY KATIE MOORE
Assistant News Editor

For the 6 percent of the student body that turned out to vote in Tuesday’s SGA elections, the choices for representatives were scant. Even if there was no one to vote for, the 411 students who voted doubled the normal voter turnout and wrote in enough candidates to fill the quarter of SGA congress seats that no one ran for, according to an estimate by Brian Dashew, vice president of communications.

Brian McAree, vice president of Student Affairs and Campus Life, said he does not think it is unusual for SGA to not have candidates on the ballot at this point in the year.

"There is a great job of trying to advertise these opportunities to get involved," he said. "Sometimes it takes students a little while to realize that." SGA President Jul Zelidin said the number of students who register to be on the ballot is no fewer than normal.

"This is how a lot of the Congress seats are filled every year," she said. "We’re very excited about anything we can involve in the election process, so we’re not going to turn anyone away if there is an open spot."

Zelidin said SGA is still in the process of contacting those who were write-ins on the ballots to ask if they would accept the nomination. Though the final count is not complete, Zelidin said she anticipates that all congressional seats, with the exception of Terrace 8, will be filled.

"The majority of seats in Congress that are filled were by people who originally intended to run," she said.

Students who accept the write-in nominations will have to complete the same registration process as those who were formally nominated by the ballots, Zelidin said.

"There will be people who we have to make recommendations and agree by Congress at some point, so there are no signatures and have to have legal approval and judicial confirmation," Dashew said.

Dashew shared that there were too many write-in nominations in some cases.

"There were only two people registered for the off-campus housing seats, but there were 40 write-ins," he said. "A lot of these people only get one vote, so they probably won’t be contacted."

While Zelidin said she realizes some write-in nominees cannot be taken seriously, she said many of them simply did not have time to turn in their registration forms.

"I think it’s very interesting and very exciting, and we are hoping they will be some of our best representatives," she said.

College plans memorials to reflect upon Sept. 11

BY MEGAN REYNOLDS
Contributing Writer

On the second anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, members of the Ithaca College community plan to honor the victims in personal ways, as well as with the annual Sept. 11 remembrance ceremony.

"I remember it vividly," said Alison Stokes, Protestant chaplain of the campus. "I felt the weight of that right away." Stokes said their ceremony was simple yet beautiful.

"This is like everything I thought I would have the whole time I was growing up," said Kelly. "This is what my sister can have and this is what my mom and dad have and what my friends have, and it just seems right and equal that I should have it, too."

With the Niagara Falls as the setting, Maurer and Kelly celebrated their ceremony five years ago, but the ceremony was personal, not of legal significance.

The Court of Appeals in the province of Ontario, Canada, ruled this summer that laws against homosexual marriage are unconstitutional. It declared that same-sex couples immediately were eligible for marriage licenses.

For people like Maurer and Kelly, who seek the same rights as heterosexual couples and had followed the cases very closely, this beginning legal ruling was a major step toward equality.

LGBT leader and partner tie the knot

BY EMILY LIU
Staff Writer

When Lisa Maurer and Maureen Kelly crossed the Canadian border in July to come back to the United States, there was one thing different about them — they were married under Canadian law.

Maurer, coordinator of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender outreach services, married her partner of 10 years on July 15 in Niagara Falls, according to Ontario’s legislation legalized same-sex marriage.

Despite a 10-year relationship, Maurer and Kelly, the director of education and training for Planned Parenthood, could not marry in the United States because it is illegal for same-sex couples to do so. Maurer and Kelly celebrated their relationship as a committed ceremony five years ago, but the ceremony was personal, not of legal significance.

The act gives states the right to refuse to recognize same-sex marriages performed in other states and defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman.

Although American same-sex couples are eligible to marry in Canada, there is a U.S. federal law that bars recognition of the marriage of same-sex couples — the 1996 Defense of Marriage Act.

The act gives states the right to refuse to recognize same-sex marriages performed in other states and defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman.

But 13 states have state Defense of Marriage Acts that ban marriage between same-sex couples.

Maurer said that it was not just sexual minorities who shared their happiness with the new law. On their wedding day, she and Kelly came across many Canadians who offered congratulations and warmth when they found out they were getting married — acceptance that Maurer said she is at times hard to find.

Maurer and Kelly’s relationship is legally recognized in Vermont, which passed a law in 2000 allowing civil unions for same-sex couples.

Although the legislation gives homosexual couples the full benefits and responsibilities of marriage, it does not offer marriage licenses.

Maurer said that there are numerous rights that heterosexual married couples have that homosexual couples are denied. Laws regarding inheritance, immigration, health care, property ownership and Social Security for married couples do not apply to same-sex couples.

Maurer said she had not thought she would see in her lifetime.
ITS disconnects file sharers on network

Continued from page 1

The consequences on the Ithaca College campus are just part of a larger crackdown by RIAA in an attempt to stop widespread file sharing on peer-to-peer networks like Kazaa, Limewire or Gnutella.

The association announced Monday that it had filed 261 lawsuits against users who were sharing an average of 1,000 songs each.

Since file sharing is a violation of college policy, students have been judicially referred before, but never judicially referred as a move could be likely.

"We are definitely on the lookout for folks who don't download music," she said.

"The college really has little choice as to how we respond to such a move," she said. "We're not trying to make life difficult for anyone. We have legal requirements in these cases."

Failure to react to RIAA's warnings could result in the college being held liable for any other copyright infringement that occurs on campus.

Several colleges, including Boston College, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of California at Los Angeles, have received subpoenas from RIAA demanding the identities of students sharing files on their campus networks.

Ithaca College has not yet received a subpoena, but Weil said such a move could be likely.

"We are definitely on the RIAA's radar," he said. "I would not be at all surprised if we got a subpoena at some point."

While Pringle is uncertain as to whether the RIAA plans to subpoena the college, she said it would respond accordingly and release the requested information if a subpoena was received.

Both Pringle and Weil said that currently the most important matter is to educate students about the risks and consequences of file sharing.

"[The recording industry]s] not feeling around," Pringle said. "They're really trying to send a very loud message here, which is 'Stop doing this.'"

Weil said that while more than half of the students he contacts about file sharing know that it is illegal, there is still a percentage of people who do not realize the possible consequences of sharing songs over the Internet.

When Michael, a freshman in the School in the Humanities and Sciences, discovered that his ReNet connection had been disabled on Monday because of the subpoena, he had no idea that Kazaa was running on his computer.

"I was just something I had thrown on while I was at home," he said.

Allie, who lost her ReNet connection on Friday, said she was shocked that she was getting in trouble for file sharing.

"I don't know anyone on this campus who doesn't file share and 'hates downloading music,' she said.

Rachel, a sophomore who was contacted by the college on Thursday about her file sharing, said she was relieved that she hadn't been sued by RIAA.

"I'm just glad that all that's happening is I'm being judicially referred and that the recording industry isn't using me to make an example," she said.

However, according to a letter sent by the RIAA to Weil, the recording industry still reserves the right to sue students who are legally sharing files even if the college takes judicial action against them.

Weil said that by judicially referring students, the college is merely performing its responsibility to prove a pattern of action in response to RIAA's notifications.

"The college really has little choice as to how we respond to these," he said. "We're not trying to make life difficult for anyone. We have legal requirements in these cases."

Senior Physical Therapy major Erin Sheeder works with physical therapy equipment in the Center for Health Sciences.

Degree offers new options

ENGAGING DEMOCRACY AND TROUBLING THE WATER

Become Informed Think Challenge Act

Consider the responsibilities of citizenship and service in a global community.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 7:00 P.M. - KLINGENSTEIN LOUNGE
PAUL LOEB
"Soul of a Citizen: Living with Conviction in a Cynical Time"

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 7:00 P.M. - PARK HALL AUDITORIUM
EDWARD QUEVEDO
"Activism, Democracy, and the Role of the University in Troubled Times"

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 2003 - PARK HALL AUDITORIUM
DR. SANDRA STEINRABER
"The Rope That Frays at Both Ends: Environmental Threats to Pregnant Women, Infants, and the Elderly"

MONDAY, OCTOBER 20, 7:00 P.M. - PARK HALL AUDITORIUM
CHEA PRINCE and CONSTANCE CURRY
Screening of The Intolerable Burden, the story of a mother's struggle for access to quality education for her children in Mississippi

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
Cosponsored by the Ithaca College Library, Environmental Studies Program, Department of Anthropology, School of Business, and Office of Finance and Administration
Free dining program links food and thought

Meal passes promote faculty-student interaction

BY MICHELLE THEIS
Staff Writer

She received information about the program through Intercom, an internal bulletin board for faculty and staff, and immediately contacted the Office of Residential Life and Judicial Affairs. Doskal-Scaffido provided her with four passes.

"I enjoy talking to students and if I could get lunch for free while talking to students, I would be happy," Golden said.

Golden said she plans to invite students to lunch after class to continue in-class discussions. She hopes that more than one will take her up on the offer.

But Golden may have a difficult time persuading students to attend.

Doskal-Scaffido said that few students have taken advantage of the meal program since it started last year.

She said the most passes she remembered issuing was 12 in one month, and a few of those go up front to directors of special programs, including the Honors Program and the Housing Offering Multicultural Experience program.

In the past, people have worried that students would feel uneasy requesting lunch dates with faculty, or faculty members would feel uncomfortable offering to eat with a student, Doskal-Scaffido said.

But she encouraged students not to be driven away by the idea of eating lunch with a professor.

"It's actually a nice way to have time with an adviser or faculty member you might want to talk to a little bit more," Doskal-Scaffido said.

PROFESSIONALS SYMPOSIUM & ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

It’s Time to Meet, Greet and Get Connected.
Professionals Symposium 2003
September 12-14, 2003

It’s time to...

- get updated on what student of color organizations are up to this year.
- celebrate at the annual Awards Luncheon.
- network, network, network!
- meet alumni who will share their expertise on college life and diverse career fields.
- make professional connections to help build your career.

You don’t want to miss:

Friday 9/12
Symposium Meet & Greet Pizza Party
5:00pm - 7:00pm - Clark Lounge
Come chat over Rogan’s pizza and wings while learning from IC alumni about the work world. Alumni guests will include: Sam Medina ’92 - Vice President of Human Resources, PepsiCo, Edwin Vega ’02 - candidate, Masters degree in Vocal Performance at the Chicago College of Performing Arts at Roosevelt University, Jermaine Cruz ’97 - Program Assistant, Georgetown Law School, Elizabeth Cruz ’99 - Director of Therapeutic Recreation Fairland Nursing & Rehabilitation Center School, Tanya Hutchins ’89, Freelance reporter/ former TV news anchor and Sandra Piänckesy ’70 - Host, Food Finds, The Food Network.

Saturday 9/13
Homecoming Football Game
11:00am - 4:00pm - Butterfield Stadium
Join the Amani Gospel Singers who will open the game with the National Anthem. Also a great opportunity to meet IC alumni who have returned to support the Professionals Symposium program.

Saturday 9/13
Awards Banquet and Reception
6:30pm - 9:00pm - Emerson Suites
Wondering what alumni from ALS, Kuumba, the Asia Culture Club, Orgullo Latino, Amani Gospel Singers and other clubs are up to? Come find out! Also come celebrate the academic achievements of ALANA and opportunity program students over the past year. Enjoy inspiring remarks from keynote Sam Medina ’92. First come, First served.

Professionals Symposium 2003 is sponsored by the Office of Multicultural Affairs, Alumni Relations, and Career Services.

For more information, call 274-3381.
New Faces

Involvement office finds a new leader

BY GREGORY BEYER
Contributing Writer

Terry Martinez's dedication to student affairs stems from a long history of her own involvement on college campuses. After working as a residence advisor and a dean at other campuses, her appointment as the new director of the Center for Student Leadership and Involvement at Ithaca College seemed to be the next logical step.

The center is designed to take a more definite approach to student participation, both on campus and off. Martinez worked as an RA at the State University of New York at Buffalo, and has been affiliated with student affairs ever since. "I really fell into it by accident," she said of her early involvement. "I found that I liked what I was doing."

Most recently, as the former dean of experiential learning at Wells College, Martinez worked to increase student access to learning opportunities in order to contribute to a more well-rounded education. Likewise, Martinez said the chief duty of the Center for Student Leadership and Involvement is to provide opportunities for students at Ithaca College who wish to take a more active approach and make a difference.

Martinez said her work is gratifying and students aren't the only ones who will benefit from making a contribution to the community. "The reward is watching the growth and development of the students," said Martinez. "There is nothing like recognizing the potential of students and watching them grow into themselves."

And at the heart of the Center for Student Leadership and Involvement is the opportunity for the realization of that potential. Martinez attributes her love of student affairs to numerous past mentors who recognized her potential and encouraged her to pursue it.

"This is my way of returning the favor," she said. "Looking back on my life, I feel very blessed."

Martinez arrived in Ithaca this summer. She fills a position that was created last fall following the reorganization of the former Office of Campus Center and Activities. Martinez holds a bachelor's degree in social work from the State University of New York at Buffalo and a master's degree in applied psychology from New York University.

Are you interested in international relations? Do you wish to learn more about the United Nations? Would you like to improve your diplomatic and public speaking skills? Would you like to join a team that works hard and plays hard?

If you answered "Yes" to these questions, you won't want to miss this opportunity.

Ithaca College's Model United Nations Team welcomes you to its first organizational meeting on:

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15
7:30 P.M

TEXTOR 103

HARVARD NATIONAL MODEL UNITED NATIONS

"More Choices - Your Way"

At

The FOOD COURT

HEBREW NATIONAL

Premium Kosher Beef Franks available at the Tierra Del Sol Station and

MOOSEWOOD

Moosewood Organic Soup available at the Just Veggin' Station

www.ithaca.edu/dining
Sexual assault services to join advocacy group

BY ANN HARENDA
Staff Writer

The Tompkins County Legislature recently decided to dissolve the Adult Sexual Assault Services office of the Center for Crime Victims and Sexual Assault Services (CVSA).

But Christine Morris, executive director of CVSA, said that contrary to what many people believe, the center is not being shut down. The Adult Sexual Assault Services office is simply being transferred to the Advocacy Center, another sexual violence counseling and information center in the area.

Morris said that CVSA will be offering the same services it has provided for nearly 30 years, including counseling, advocacy work and a 24-hour hotline.

Joan Farbman, executive director of the Advocacy Center, said that both centers offer many of the same services. The Advocacy Center offers medical support for victims. Staff members can meet with a victim at Cayuga Medical Center where a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner Program can be conducted.

Sexual assault victims are offered support in the court and legal systems. The Advocacy center also provides counseling.

Farbman stressed, however, that the Advocacy Center’s counseling is not therapy. She said that trained staff members, not licensed therapists, are present for the sessions.

Victims can contact the center through the 24-hour telephone hotline or can make an appointment to meet personally with a counselor, she said.

Victims can contact the center through the 24-hour telephone hotline or can make an appointment to meet personally with a counselor, she said.

Farbman said that there have been questions in the community from local funders about why the two agencies were not working together already. She said that domestic violence and sexual assault agencies traditionally work together, and it only seemed logical that Ithaca’s two agencies would do the same.

The county legislature suggested that the agencies merge.

“We thought that it did make sense because we do a lot of the same kind of work,” she said.

When the centers merge Oct. 1, the 24-hour hotline will remain 277-5000. The center is currently seeking volunteers for its 24-hour hotline. CVSA’s office number is 273-5589. The Advocacy Center’s office number is 277-3203.

Thank you ALL STUDENTS for helping to recover ResNet!

A special thanks to...

- All the students who cleaned & protected their computers
- All the RAs and RDs who assisted in the virus clean-up
- The ITS student staff who helped get the virus under control
- Residential Life for supporting the ITS efforts

Keep your virus definitions updated and clean & protect your computer.
Help prevent another virus outbreak!

For up-to-date information go to: http://restools.ithaca.edu/
Speaker series to examine principles of democracy

BY KATE LEVINSON
Contributing Writer

Making students aware of the need for active citizenship and service to the global community is the goal of a yearlong lecture and film series that begins Tuesday.

Tanya Saunders, dean of interdisciplinary and international studies, said the series, titled "Engaging Democracy and Troubling the Water," was instituted to give the college community a chance to re-examine basic democratic principles.

Saunders said she hopes students will learn to value the opportunity to participate in 21st century democracy in education, the environment and the media.

Tuesday's lecture will be given by author and activist Paul Loeb, who has written four books and spoken at hundreds of colleges, universities and conferences.

Loeb will give a speech called "Soul of a Citizen: Living with Conviction in a Cynical Time."

He said in an interview that he will touch on themes from his book, "Soul of a Citizen," as well as discuss "everything going on these days in the world and what people can do about it."

His talk will take place in Klingenstein Lounge in the Campus Center at 7 p.m. Wednesday evening, the series will continue as environmental consultant Edward Quevedo speaks on "Activism, Democracy and the Role of the University in Troubled Times" at 7 p.m. in the Park Hall Auditorium.

Loeb said his talk will focus on propagating peace and prosperity in the post-Sept. 11 world. He will also touch on themes of educational policy, citizenship, activism and environmental stewardship.

Quevedo works at WSP Environmental North America, an international business that provides management and consulting services to property, land and construction businesses.

On Thursday, the final lecture of the fall will take place at 7 p.m. in the Park Hall Auditorium.

Sandra Steingraber, a Visiting Distinguished Scholar and internationally recognized expert on environmental links to cancer and reproductive health, will deliver her speech, "The Rope that Frays at Both Ends: Environmental Threats to Pregnant Women, Infants, and the Elderly."

Steingraber has written a volume of poetry as well as various articles and books on the relationship between ecology and human rights. She is on the faculty at Cornell University.

There will also be a film screening on Oct. 20 as part of the series, and other events will continue throughout the Spring 2004 semester.

Peter Bardaglio, provost and vice president for academic affairs, said the series will help address the Institutional Plan by giving students a shared academic experience.

"One of the key ingredients to a healthy democracy is an educated and engaged citizenry," he said. "It's really crucial that the college try to promote education and a sense of engagement."

The series, which is free and open to the public, is co-sponsored by several departments at the college.
Select Public Safety Log

Incidents

August 29
• Conduct code violation
  Location: West Tower
  Summary: Three students judicially referred for underage possession of alcohol. Security Officer Amy Chilton.
• Conduct code violation
  Location: College Circle Apartment 2
  Summary: Officer observed a person urinating and in possession of alcohol. One student judicially referred for underage possession of alcohol and indecent conduct. Patrol Officer William Kerr.

V&T violation/DWI
Location: Garden Apartment Road
Summary: During a traffic stop, driver was arrested for DWI. Officer issued the student uniform traffic tickets for Ithaca Town Court.

Aggravated harassment
Location: Health Center
Summary: Caller reported receiving a harassing phone call from an unknown person. Pending investigation. Patrol Officer Dirk Hightshwad.

Follow-up investigation
Location: Campus Center
Summary: Caller reported continuation of suspicious phone calls. Pending investigation. Investigator Thomas Dunn.

Aggravated harassment
Location: Terrace 12
Summary: Caller reported receiving annoying phone call and e-mail from known person. Investigation pending. Investigator Laura Durling.

Found property
Location: Park Hall
Summary: Keys found and turned over to Office of Public Safety.

Suspicious circumstance
Location: College Circle Apartment 6
Summary: Caller reported unknown persons had urinated on the couch. Pending investigation. Patrol Officer Craig Reynolds.

Conduct code violation
Location: Colbath Hall
Summary: Officer reported person with alcohol. One student judicially referred for responsibility for guest. Security Officer Aaron Price.

Conduct code violation
Location: College Circle Apartment 20
Summary: Officer reported large group of people with alcohol. Two students judicially referred for underage possession of alcohol. Patrol Officer Craig Reynolds.

Conduct code violation
Location: College Circle Drive
Summary: One student judicially referred for underage possession of alcohol. Security Officer Jeffrey Austin.

August 30
• Conduct code violation
  Location: College Circle Apartment 16
  Summary: Officer observed a person damaging a tree. One student judicially referred for destroying college property. Patrol Officer Bruce Holmstock.
• Conduct code violation
  Location: Terrace 10
  Summary: One student judicially referred for underage possession of alcohol. Security Officer Aaron Price.

Conduct code violation
Location: Substation Road and West Tower
Summary: Officer observed a student passed out. Student transported to the Health Center and judicially referred for irresponsible use of alcohol. Patrol Officer Terry O'Pray.

Stolen property
Location: J-lot
Summary: Officer observed a person carrying a stolen table. One student judicially referred for unauthorized possession of college property. Sgt. Donald Hart.

V&T violation
Location: College Circle Apartment 16
Summary: Officer issued student uniform traffic ticket for Ithaca Town Court for possession of more than one valid driver's license. Patrol Officer Craig Reynolds.

Conduct code violation
Location: M-lot
Summary: Officer observed two subjects smoking marijuana. One student judicially referred for responsibility of guest and underage consumption of alcohol. Sgt. Ronald Hart.

Conduct code violation
Location: Terrace 7
Summary: Caller reported intoxicated person. Student transported to the Health Center and judicially referred for irresponsible use of alcohol. Patrol Officer William Kerr.

Criminal mischief
Location: Smiddy Hall
Summary: Caller reported unknown persons damaged light pole. Pending investigation. Patrol Officer Donald Lyons.

Conduct code violation
Location: College Circle Drive
Summary: One student referred for open container of alcohol in a public area. Patrol Officer Richard Curtiss.

Conduct code violation
Location: Farm Road and physical plant buildings
Summary: Officer located two intoxicated students. Ambulance transported one student to Cayuga Medical Center and officer transported the other student to the Health Center. Both students judicially referred for irresponsible use of alcohol. Patrol Officer Bruce Holmstock.

The complete Public Safety Log can be found at www.ithaca.edu/ithacan.

For more information, attend one of our RA Informational Sessions:

Monday, September 15th: Terrace 5 Lounge
Thursday, September 18th: East Tower Lobby
Wednesday, October 8th: Hood Hall TV Lounge
All Info Sessions Begin at 9PM

Applications Available Now in the Residential Life Office, Each Area Office, or Your Residence Director.
Editors

Offer free bus rides
Use extra revenue to fund pilot program

Transportation for Ithaca College students has become a hassle. Parking lots on campus, especially in the College Circle apartments, are crowded, the price of an on-campus parking permit has risen 150 percent and the TCAT is now 50 percent more per ride. Something needs to be done.

Anyone who sets foot in the new Circle apartments agrees these beautiful, on-campus residences are exactly what students were looking for. However, finding a parking space near them is a difficult task. Poor transportation makes it even more of a problem. Finding a parking space near them is a difficult task. Poor transportation makes it even more of a problem.

The college employs around 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

Unfortunately, many students were left unaware of their right to the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides. The college left students unaware of the free rides.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.

The college employed 1,500 people and they used 11,709 free rides between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. If right now they would only pay $133,320 to the city, that comes to $11.428 a day. This means that, at most, an average of 10 percent of the college’s employees use the program each day. The $133,320 in extra revenue would more than cover offering 12 free rides for every student this spring. After the pilot program, the college could use this extra revenue to fund a pilot program.
Democracy in danger due to declining interest

The reality of 9/11 still escapes many

Today marks exactly two years since the infamous terrorist attacks that came to be known simply and collectively as "9/11." After my initial apparent judgment, I've decided to join in on what will undoubtedly be a day jammed full of remembrance, reflection and media-driven nostalgia.

Surely, the anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

Emily Paulsen

GUEST WRITER

ACLYA SHARMA

A high school student and member of the Student Government Association, Alycia Sharma is the Guest Writer for this edition.

STUDENTS GATHERED OUTSIDE the television lounges in the Campus Center to watch newscasts, meet friends and find comfort in others' reactions on Sept. 11, 2001.

During the attacks, Alycia made extensive notes in an effort to grasp her feelings for this day.

The Way We See It: Experiencing Sept. 11 as a college freshman

On September 11, 1986, my life changed forever. As I was in medical condition, I was forced to have a surgery. I've been on the earth ever since.

On September 11, 2001, my day took yet another turn. It was my first day on campus at Ithaca College, the first time I was away from home, and on my own.

I've never forget that day. I had woken up and gone to my 8 a.m. class, History of Life on Earth, as usual, and as usual it was very boring. After that class was over, I went straight to U.S. politics with Marty Brownstein.

Everyone seemed especially lively that morning, and I heard whispers and murmurings about an airplane hitting the towers. "Being a native freshman, I thought that the Ithaca College airport, where I lived, was hit."

When the class officially started, all Marty wanted was 5 minutes for administrative "stuff" before we talked about current events as we always have. The whispers continued and my fellow classmates badgered Marty until he finally agreed to turn on the television in the classroom.

He struggled with the AV equipment for about five minutes, until the signal finally came through. As he flipped channels, we caught glimpses of TV news reports and talk of the towers until Marty finally decided upon NBC's sporting news program. As I looked around the room, I saw gasps and tears and then I saw a plane hit the second World Trade Center building. I don't think I'll ever forget that class, and as long as I live, I'll never forget the faces the people were with. At that moment there was a bond formed between each and every person in that room, which we would never ever forget.

I can't recall what happened next, but that I do remember is running from Park Hall to the East Tower, desperate to get in because he stopped at the post office to mail her and her sister a package. That night, we attended candlelight vigils and watched the news as it were a new addictive drug.

Two years later, many things have changed. The United States has grown wiser and more cautious creating new security systems and renewing a faith that was almost lost. As for myself, I can now relate to generations past, having lived through terror, war and an aftermath that has made me stronger.

Alycia Shauman is a junior television and radio major. E-mail her at ashauman@ithaca.edu.

Debates and commentaries will appear on this page weekly. To contribute, please call Opinion Editor Nathan E. Wilson at 274-3208.

The Ithaca 11

EMILY PAULSEN

IT ISN'T surprising that vendors and manufacturers of "nine-eleven" stuff, I'm stunned to think of how many people are actually buying it. An endless stock of souvenirs has inspired tourists and residents alike to carry around pocket-sized memorabilia and build their own "nine-eleven" shrines. But why would anyone, actually want a three-inch plastic twin tower trinket that was, ironically, not even in the United States?

It seems to me that many Americans have developed romantic attachments to the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the World Trade Center. And the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

It seems to be that many Americans have developed romantic attachments to the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.

A Washington Post poll published last week indicated that 60 percent of American adults believe Saddam Hussein was personally involved in the World Trade Center attacks and the interface between good and evil that those attacks represent. The immortalized image of the twin towers has become a sort of secular crucifix, an icon representing the destruction and survival of a core of set values and virtues.

Surely this anniversary will be milder than the last, but we can still expect plenty of speeches, ceremonies and souvenir sales.
"Hello Neo. We've been waiting for you."

MATRIX RELOADED

Textor 102
Fri 9/12 7, 9:30 and 12am
Sat 9/13 7, 9:30 and 12am
Sunday 9/14 8pm
Monday 9/15 8pm
$3.00 at the door

---

KARAOKE NIGHT!!

SEPT. 17TH PUB/COFFEEHOUSE 7:00PM

FREE!!!

---

SAB Music presents...

The Return of Blu Sanders

Thursday September 18th
8pm
pub/coffeehouse

FREE!!

check him out at www.blu.net
Students encounter wild animals in their own backyard

BY EMILY KEIZER
Contributing Writer

Shortly before students migrated back to Ithaca College in the fall, an unusual visitor from the animal kingdom took a tour of the campus. Though the black bear that trundled quietly through the Terraces parking lot on July 17 was undoubtedly one of the rarest animal visitors, more common sightings include bats over Boothroyd and raccoons outside of Park. There has been only one other bear sighting this year, but stories of animals or campus abound.

Yolanda Payne, a first-year student living in Boothroyd Hall, said that seeing animals around her hall has been exciting. “I’m from the city so all we see are bugs and cats,” she said. “I didn’t expect [deer] to be that big!”

The presence of wildlife at the college comes as no shock to Susan Greene, a lab technician in the Department of Biology who deals with many of the campus’s animal-student interactions. Central New York’s vegetation with wildlife, and animals frequently venture into more urban areas.

“Students shouldn’t be surprised that there are deer in downtown Ithaca— they just are,” Greene said.

Overall, the fawn wandering through the Commons poses less of a threat to humans than humans do to it. Even larger animals like bears are unlikely to bother students unless provoked, Greene said. However, an animal’s natural lifestyle can be seriously disrupted by handouts and harassment from students.

“Students’ responsibility to those animals is to allow them to live in the wild as much as they possibly can,” Greene said.

Canada geese are typically a picturesque addition to the pond. But even geese can become a problem when they are fed and partially tamed by humans. They may linger in the area instead of flying south for the winter, if they become ly centered in the apartment’s bathroom. Mark Darling, supervisor of the college’s recycling program, said that the camper’s landscaping is in fact inviting to birds and deer.

A DEER WANDERS out from the woods near Boothroyd Hall.

“We actually create a lot of habitat for birds and for other animals because we create so much ‘edge’ where they can get into the woods and hide, but then come out onto an area and feed,” he said.

Birds eat the berries from bushes on the quads, and other animals dine on grasses outside her window. Schoonerman shares her Garden Apartment with a family of pigeons that constructed its nest right outside her window.

“They poop a lot,” Schoonerman said, “but it’s out on the back balcony. If it were on the front balcony, we’d have a problem.”

Rory Lyons, a freshman living in Boothroyd, was surprised to see a hummingbird hovering outside her window. “All of a sudden, I look out of the corner of my eye and I’m like ‘That is the biggest bug I’ve ever seen,’” she said.

Now she’s planning on putting up a hummingbird feeder.

Greene said that if students enjoy animals—from bears to hummingbirds—from a distance, they can keep the college a wildlife-friendly environment.

“We have lots of animals on campus,” she said. “And chances are, in the future we will have even more.”

Matthew Quintonilla, Lindsey Kas, Tatia Kates and Kristen Leatign contributed to this report.

If bitten or scratched by an animal on campus, clean the wound with soap and water and contact:

Campus Safety (274-3333) or
The Health Center (274-3177)

Off campus call:

Tompkins County Health Department at 274-5888.
College theater lifts curtain on new season

BY VANESSA SCHNEIDER
Contributing Writer

A n eclectic season of productions, ranging from mysteries to comedies to operas, is sure to please both the drama buff and the ca scat theatergoer at Dillihanger this year. Known as one of the University of Iowa's assistant professors of acting, voice and speech, came across the dark comedy, "The Waiting Room," while working on a develop ment committee for gender studies at an Egyptian university.

Scott said the play written by Lisa Loomer, addresses the health risks women take in order to "match whate ever that culture's aesthetic is of fem ininity and sexuality." The play follows the struggles of three women to conform to an arbitrary standard of physi cal perfection, but it ultimately affirms a woman's individual choice about her body and her health.

A slightly different approach to the theater world is taken in Robert Holmes' "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." Directed by Greg Boriswick, a professor for 25 years, the play allows the audience to choose one of the enig ma's 30 endings. By a show of hands, the audience determines Drood's murderer.

Boroswick said the play addresses the themes of persistence and justice.

"We all have different faces that we present to different people in different situations," said Boroswick. "Life is not what it appears to be."

Audiences who choose to become play

*The Fire Department mandates we tell you that our Ouch! sauce is Ithaca's Hottest Wings!
Try Our Tofu Wings.
Available with any of our 10 chicken wing sauces.
Sauces
Mild, Medium Buzzin', *Ouch!, Honey Mustard, Garlic, Extra Blue Cheese $0.70
Extra side of Ranch $0.92
*The Fire Department mandates we tell you that our Ouch! sauce is Ithaca's Hottest Wings!
Try Our Tofu Wings.
Available with any of our 10 chicken wing sauces.
Sauces
Mild, Medium Buzzin', *Ouch!, Honey Mustard, Garlic, Extra Blue Cheese $0.70
Extra side of Ranch $0.92

FREE DELIVERY UNTIL 3 a.m.!
Try G.P.'s DOUGHLICIOUS Calzones!
Why settle for a zone... when you can have a CALZONE! They're twice as BIG for ONLY $6.70! Tax included. *SPECIAL: 3 CALZONES for ONLY $16.55!
2. Ham Mozzarella, ricotta and romano cheeses.
3. Veggie Mushrooms, olives, peppers, onions, spinach, broccoli, mozzarella, ricotta and romano.
5. Spinach & Cheese Mozzarella, ricotta and romano cheeses.
7. Meat Bacon, hamberger, sausage and mozzarella cheese.
8. Ham Burger Hamburger, bacon and mozzarella.
9. Eggplant Baked, breaded eggplant, mozzarella, ricotta and romano.
10. Mixed Pepperoni, sausage, peppers, mushrooms, mozzarella, ricotta, onion, mozzarella.
11. Chicken Blue Barbecued chicken, blue cheese, mozzarella.
12. Hot Buffalo Hot wings, hot sauce, mozzarella, ricotta, onion, mozzarella.
13. Greek Calzone Spinach, tomatoes, black olives, and mozzarella.
14. Chicken Pimientos Chicken pimientos, mozzarella, ricotta, onion.
15. Meatball & Pepperoni Meatballs, pepperoni, mozzarella, ricotta, onion.
17. Veg Parmesan Tomato sauce, mozzarella, ricotta.
18. Pepper Tomato sauce, pesto sauce, mozzarella, ricotta.
19. BBQ Smoke Grilled steak, smoked barbecue sauce, mozzarella, ricotta.
20. Carolina Low Chicken, ham blue cheese, mozzarella.
23. Buffalo Wings Grilled chicken, hot sauce, blue cheese, mozzarella.
24. Spiedie Calzone Diced chicken, spiedie sauce, mozzarella.
25. Chicken-N-Broccoli Diced chicken, broccoli, mozzarella, ricotta, onion.
26. Kebab Calzone Sausage, meatball, pepperoni, hot peppers, hot sauce, tomato sauce, mozzarella.
27. Spiedie & Mushrooms Spaghetti, mushroom, mozzarella, ricotta, onion.
28. Chicken-N-Pesto Grilled chicken, pesto sauce, mozzarella.
29. Chicken-N-Bacon Grilled chicken, bacon, barbecue sauce, mozzarella.
30. White Garlic Calzone Our white garlic sauce, mozzarella, ricotta, onion.
31. Pizza Calzone Pepperoni, mozzarella, tomato sauce.
32. Chicken Parmesan Grilled chicken, mozzarella, ricotta.
33. Chicken Spaghetti Diced chicken, spaghetti sauce, mozzarella.
34. Oyster Calzone Diced chicken, oyster sauce, mozzarella.
35. Tomato Calzone Tomatoes, mozzarella, ricotta.
36. Reconstruction Calzone You create your own calzone.

BUFFALO STYLE CHICKEN WINGS Small (6) $3.50, Medium (60) $20.95
Single (12) $6.25 Wing Ding (100) $29.95
Double (24) $10.25 Wing King (250) $64.50
Triple (36) $14.25 Wing Pack (500) $125.00

Sauces
Mild, Honey Mustard, Garlic, Extra Blue Cheese $0.70

BUFFALO STYLE CHICKEN WINGS Small (6) $3.50, Medium (60) $20.95
Single (12) $6.25 Wing Ding (100) $29.95
Double (24) $10.25 Wing King (250) $64.50
Triple (36) $14.25 Wing Pack (500) $125.00

Sauces
Mild, Honey Mustard, Garlic, Extra Blue Cheese $0.70

Meat Deals!
1. Large cheese pizza, one dozen chicken or tofu wings & two Pepsis. Only $13.90
2. Medium cheese pizza, one dozen chicken or tofu wings & two Pepsis. Only $11.95
3. Two medium cheese pizzas & four Pepsis. Only $14.70
4. Two large cheese pizzas & four Pepsis. Only $17.50
5. PARTY PACK – grilled cheese sheet pizza, two dozen chicken or tofu wings & two Pepsis. Only $20.25
6. GIAN'T PACK – grilled cheese sheet pizza, four dozen chicken or tofu wings & two Pepsis. Only $25.55
7. 100 buffalo style chicken wings. Only $29.95
8. G.P.'S DOUGHLICIOUS CALZONES! for ONLY $16.55
9. Large cheese pizza ONLY $8.05 PICK UP ONLY!
10. Medium cheese pizza. Only $6.20 PICK UP ONLY!
11. Large Pizza, 2 toppings, 2 Pepsis. Only $11.00
12. Large Pizza, 2 toppings, 2 Pepsis. Only $14.00
13. Large Pizza, Unlimited toppings, 2 Pepsis. Only $15.95
14. Medium Pizza, Unlimited toppings, 2 Pepsis. Only $14.05
15. Four for Forty-Four – Four large pizzas, 4 dozen wings and 4 Pepsis. Only $41.05

No coupons necessary. No limit when ordering.
BY ELIZABETH QUILL
Assistant Accents Editor

Kern, a biology major, went to Barrow with Susan Allen-Gil, assistant professor of biology. Allen-Gil has been studying arctic contaminants for 10 years and has been to Alaska 25 times. She has brought students with her before and said that, upon arrival, they don’t understand why anyone would want to live there.

“They think it is among the ugliest places they’ve ever been,” Allen-Gil said. “Once they get beyond that, they see the Arctic in a different way. It is an expanse of largely undisturbed wilderness.”

After receiving a grant from the National Science Foundation four years ago, Allen-Gil began collecting data in Alaska in conjunction with Oregon State University. Her studies in Alaska are based at the Naval Arctic Research Laboratories. She said her research is focused on Alaska because pollutants migrate north and are trapped there in the cold environment.

“The people who are at the top of the food chain, the Inupiaq, are then exposed to higher levels of pollutants,” Allen-Gil said.

Data samples that Allen-Gil collected are being examined for different toxicities and metabolites, but the purpose of this year’s trip was not research. Allen-Gil traveled to Alaska to develop a plan to release the results of her studies to the community. During the week-long trip, Kern was responsible for keeping records of meetings and discussions.

Allen-Gil said that usually scientists go into an area, get their samples and leave.

“We didn’t want to do that,” Allen-Gil said. “We wanted to pursue a partnership where we took advantage of our traditional ecological knowledge.”

Allen-Gil said she established a partnership with the Inupiaq because they accompany her into remote field situations and act as her primary liaisons to the community.

Kern said he and Allen-Gil were close friends. Kosak and Joshua.

“Whenever we were with them, it was like we were automatically accepted,” Kern said.

He spent a lot of time with Kosak and her husband Walter. Both spoke English as well as Inupiaq, their native tongue.

Kern said he was especially interested in traditional whaling practices.

“I just kept asking Walter all these questions about whaling,” he said. “He was warm and eager to share with me.”

Walter showed Kern the tools Inupiaq use to kill whales, including the harpoons they use to kill whales and the metal spikes they drive into the brains of the 30-foot animals.

Kern did not see a whale, but he did see other animals including caribou, seals and snowy owls. He also saw whale bones everywhere, especially when he went on midnight walks on the beach.

Kern said the temperature ranged from 20 to 75 degrees, but the wind was always blowing and the ground was permanently frozen rock and soil. But the cold temperatures and cold winds he did not find Kern from swimming in the 40-degree Arctic Ocean.

“I cut my leg open, but I didn’t know it until I got out, because my leg was numb,” he said.

He said he would love to go to Alaska again and even take another dip in the Arctic.

“If I go, I would like to stop in Anchorage and Fairbanks,” he said. “It was a tense flying overhead — it was so beautiful.”

Allen-Gil said the week was successful. She was writing another proposal for funds to work on an outreach component and to create a video with Park Productions, a professional video production company operated by Ithaca College students. Without funding, she said she will continue her work by making a bilingual brochure and holding community meetings in Barrow.

---

See more photos of Kern and Allen-Gil in Barrow on www.GreatLinkPeaks.com

---

Check out The Ithacan online: www.ithaca.edu/ithacan

---

Center Haircutters

Open Everyday.

Guy’s Haircut $10 with ad
Regular Price $12 Mon-Thurs

Located in Center Ithaca

The Commons

phone: 272-8685

---

ARGI Cheese Pizza

Above the Arctic Circle

BY ELIZABETH QUILL
Assistant Accents Editor

Snipes and birds flitted into one dark pine forest, interrupted only by the giant white beaks and pristine icy lakes that shaped the landscape.

Senior William Kern could only look down that day, get their samples and leave.

Kern traveled to Alaska this summer with an Ithaca College biology professor as part of the professor’s research project.

On July 31, Kern left Newark on a plane to Minneapolis. From there he went to Anchorage, then to Fairbanks, and 15 hours after setting off, he gladly landed in Barrow, a city of 4,000 people on the Arctic Ocean.

“It was just so barren,” Kern said. “Barrow is nothing like the scenic south Alaska that we think of. The Coastal Plains are very flat.”

Weather in Barrow changes by the hour, but summer temperatures average around 40 degrees.

The wind whips constantly off the ocean and ice chunks drift along the shore.

Allen-Gil said that usually scientists go into an area, get their samples and leave.

“We didn’t want to do that,” Allen-Gil said. “We wanted to pursue a partnership where we took advantage of our traditional ecological knowledge.”

Allen-Gil said she established a partnership with the traditional ecological knowledge.

Allen-Gil said she established a partnership with the Inupiaq because they accompany her into remote field situations and act as her primary liaisons to the community.

Kern said he and Allen-Gil were close friends. Kosak and Joshua.

“Whenever we were with them, it was like we were automatically accepted,” Kern said.

He spent a lot of time with Kosak and her husband Walter. Both spoke English as well as Inupiaq, their native tongue.

Kern said he was especially interested in traditional whaling practices.

“I just kept asking Walter all these questions about whaling,” he said. “He was warm and eager to share with me.”

Walter showed Kern the tools Inupiaq use to kill whales, including the harpoons they use to kill whales and the metal spikes they drive into the brains of the 30-foot animals.

Kern did not see a whale, but he did see other animals including caribou, seals and snowy owls. He also saw whale bones everywhere, especially when he went on midnight walks on the beach.

Kern said the temperature ranged from 20 to 75 degrees, but the wind was always blowing and the ground was permanently frozen rock and soil. But the cold temperatures and cold winds he did not find Kern from swimming in the 40-degree Arctic Ocean.

“I cut my leg open, but I didn’t know it until I got out, because my leg was numb,” he said.

He said he would love to go to Alaska again and even take another dip in the Arctic.

“If I go, I would like to stop in Anchorage and Fairbanks,” he said. “It was a tense flying overhead — it was so beautiful.”

Allen-Gil said the week was successful. She was writing another proposal for funds to work on an outreach component and to create a video with Park Productions, a professional video production company operated by Ithaca College students. Without funding, she said she will continue her work by making a bilingual brochure and holding community meetings in Barrow.

---

See more photos of Kern and Allen-Gil in Barrow on www.GreatLinkPeaks.com

---

Check out The Ithacan online: www.ithaca.edu/ithacan

---

Center Haircutters

Open Everyday.

Guy’s Haircut $10 with ad
Regular Price $12 Mon-Thurs

Located in Center Ithaca

The Commons

phone: 272-8685

---

ARGI Cheese Pizza

Above the Arctic Circle

BY ELIZABETH QUILL
Assistant Accents Editor

Snipes and birds flitted into one dark pine forest, interrupted only by the giant white beaks and pristine icy lakes that shaped the landscape.

Senior William Kern could only look down that day, get their samples and leave.

Kern traveled to Alaska this summer with an Ithaca College biology professor as part of the professor’s research project.

On July 31, Kern left Newark on a plane to Minneapolis. From there he went to Anchorage, then to Fairbanks, and 15 hours after setting off, he gladly landed in Barrow, a city of 4,000 people on the Arctic Ocean.

“It was just so barren,” Kern said. “Barrow is nothing like the scenic south Alaska that we think of. The Coastal Plains are very flat.”

Weather in Barrow changes by the hour, but summer temperatures average around 40 degrees.

The wind whips constantly off the ocean and ice chunks drift along the shore.

Allen-Gil said that usually scientists go into an area, get their samples and leave.

“We didn’t want to do that,” Allen-Gil said. “We wanted to pursue a partnership where we took advantage of our traditional ecological knowledge.”

Allen-Gil said she established a partnership with the traditional ecological knowledge.

Allen-Gil said she established a partnership with the Inupiaq because they accompany her into remote field situations and act as her primary liaisons to the community.

Kern said he and Allen-Gil were close friends. Kosak and Joshua.

“Whenever we were with them, it was like we were automatically accepted,” Kern said.

He spent a lot of time with Kosak and her husband Walter. Both spoke English as well as Inupiaq, their native tongue.

Kern said he was especially interested in traditional whaling practices.

“I just kept asking Walter all these questions about whaling,” he said. “He was warm and eager to share with me.”

Walter showed Kern the tools Inupiaq use to kill whales, including the harpoons they use to kill whales and the metal spikes they drive into the brains of the 30-foot animals.

Kern did not see a whale, but he did see other animals including caribou, seals and snowy owls. He also saw whale bones everywhere, especially when he went on midnight walks on the beach.

Kern said the temperature ranged from 20 to 75 degrees, but the wind was always blowing and the ground was permanently frozen rock and soil. But the cold temperatures and cold winds he did not find Kern from swimming in the 40-degree Arctic Ocean.

“I cut my leg open, but I didn’t know it until I got out, because my leg was numb,” he said.

He said he would love to go to Alaska again and even take another dip in the Arctic.

“If I go, I would like to stop in Anchorage and Fairbanks,” he said. “It was a tense flying overhead — it was so beautiful.”

Allen-Gil said the week was successful. She was writing another proposal for funds to work on an outreach component and to create a video with Park Productions, a professional video production company operated by Ithaca College students. Without funding, she said she will continue her work by making a bilingual brochure and holding community meetings in Barrow.

---

See more photos of Kern and Allen-Gil in Barrow on www.GreatLinkPeaks.com

---

Check out The Ithacan online: www.ithaca.edu/ithacan

---

Center Haircutters

Open Everyday.

Guy’s Haircut $10 with ad
Regular Price $12 Mon-Thurs

Located in Center Ithaca

The Commons

phone: 272-8685
Professor slides into music

By MEGAN WEBSTER
Contributing Writer

Harold "Doc" Reynolds has come a long way since his days in junior high orchestra, a group he joined to escape the boredom of seventh-grade study hall. He served as a radar man for four years, sold organs and pianos for eight months and taught band at three high schools before becoming a college professor. And after 15 years of teaching trombone at Ithaca College, Reynolds was promoted to full professor this year.

Reynolds started his career as a trombonist relatively late. He didn't get into music until seventh grade and didn't receive private lessons until his senior year in high school. He said his high school band director encouraged him to improve.

"He was kind of a dictator," Reynolds said, joking. "I don't know if it was because I had to play the horn because he was going to kill me, but I got more serious about it."

By graduation, Reynolds had decided to become a band director. "I just knew I didn't want to do anything else," he said.

Reynolds' love for trombone and teaching sustained him throughout the next stage of his life. After his first year of college at Sam Houston State College in Texas, he experimented "harmolodic" and dropped out of school altogether.

Fortunately, the band director at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, Texas, heard about Reynolds' musical abilities and contacted him, urging him to go back into music. Reynolds received a full scholarship to St. Mary's.

PROFESSOR HAROLD "DOC" REYNOLDS was promoted to full professor this summer after teaching trombone at Ithaca College for 15 years. He sold pianos and organs for the undergraduate degree in 1967. While he attended St. Mary's, the Vietnam War was going on, and if a college student's GPA was low, the government could draft that student. While Reynolds was at St. Mary's, his father died, and although Reynolds stayed at school, his grades suffered. He was sent a draft notice and passed the draft physical shortly after.

Not wanting to go into the army, Reynolds joined the Navy Reserves. This enabled him to continue with college while working as a radar man. He stayed in the reserves until he graduated and served in the Navy for four years.

Reynolds was released in November of his final year of service. "If you have a teaching degree, [November] is deadly," he said.

Eventually, Reynolds got his first job directing bands at a high school in San Antonio. In five years afterward, he taught at several high schools while going to school part time. He earned his masters degree in performance at Southwest Texas State University in 1976.

Next Reynolds stopped teaching and headed to the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., where he earned his doctorate. After building up his resume as a college professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and the University of Texas, he came to Ithaca College in 1988.

Arthur Ostrander, dean of the James I. Whalen School of Music, said that Reynolds is an outstanding professor. "First of all, he embodies all the qualities we look for in a performer/faculty member," Ostrander said. "He is a dedicated teacher who works carefully with each student, trying to bring out their maximum potential. But that's complemented by the fact that he is one of the most active professional performers on the faculty."

Reynolds is the principal trombonist of the Cayuga Symphony Orchestra and the Tri-Cities Opera and also plays with the Syracuse Symphony, Glimmerglass Opera, the Ithaca Brass Quintet and various jazz ensembles. On campus, he conducts the Trombone Troop.

His latest project, the International Trombone Festival, will bring in several hundred professional trombonists from around the world and will be hosted at Ithaca College in June of 2004. Reynolds is the chairperson for the conference, and he organized the proposal that attracted the group to Ithaca, Ostrander said.

Lauren Minis, a sophomore trombonist with the Trombone Troop, said Reynolds is a down-to-earth teacher. "I don't want to push us to our limit, but he wants us to push to our potential," she said. "He accomplishes a lot in a single practice session."

Reynolds said he wants his students to be unimaginative first and trombonists second, but most of all he wants them to be "functioning members of a society that is changing every minute."

"We're not teaching trombone, we're not even teaching music," Reynolds said. "We're teaching people."

---

I Choice Award

Please take a few minutes to read about this opportunity to recognize a person or group of employees for their significant contributions. The IC Choice Award is designed to reward those individuals or a group of employees who initiate, commit, or accomplish have contributed greatly to the College's success or who have made a difference in the lives of students, employees, or other members of the Ithaca College community. Do you know someone who has demonstrated these traits? If so, please take a moment to nominate this person or group of employees for an IC Choice Award.

All staff members are eligible to participate, but to be considered for one of these awards: an employee must be nominated by a supervisor, a co-worker, a faculty colleague, student, or be self-nominated. The nomination will need to show accomplishment in at least one of the following criteria categories:

- Initiative — This criterion is used to recognize individual creativity in proposing new or improved work methods, ideas, projects or approaches that contribute positively to individual or department results.

- Commitment — This criterion is intended to reward individuals who demonstrated commitment to their department and the College by regularly making a full and positive contribution for a number of years.

- Support — This criterion recognizes individuals for giving their talents and efforts in support of others in an extraordinary way.

- Accomplishment — This criterion recognizes individuals for creating and/or producing a substantive project or program for a department or the College.

To help you in making a nomination, we have developed a web-based nomination form located at http://www.ithaca.edu/hr/compensation/choice/ICChoiceForm.htm. Please clearly articulate the circumstances or the accomplishments achieved by the individual or group that you are nominating. It is important to include specific examples that clearly identify and demonstrate that the nomination meets at least one of the criteria outlined above. The nomination should be a half page to one page in length or no more than 500 words.

If you are not comfortable submitting your nomination on-line, please submit your nomination in writing and address it to the Review Panel. The nominations should be sent in care of Cindy Reckdenwald, Director of Compensation and Organizational Design, Office of Human Resources.

All nominations must be received by September 25, 2003 in order to be considered for this round of IC Choice Awards. In the event a nomination was submitted last semester, but was not selected, you should resubmit the nomination if you would like it to be considered for a 2003 award.

After nominations are closed on September 25th, a review panel will be selected from a list of volunteers. Staff members who are nominated and selected to receive an award for their distinguished performance or contributions will receive $1,000. In the event a group of employees are nominated and selected, each member of the group will receive $250.

For more information regarding the IC Choice Awards program and a list of past recipients, please visit our web site at http://www.ithaca.edu/hr/compensation/icChoice.htm or feel free to contact Cindy Reckdenwald, Director of Compensation and Organizational Design.
Elmar Oliveira, violin
Robert Koenig, piano

“It is clear that Oliveira’s heart is in this music, and there are many moments when I felt like holding my breath to listen as closely as possible.”
—American Record Guide

“Simply astonishing. His technical command, musical understanding and intensity of feeling were beyond criticism.”
—Chicago Tribune

“First-rate Beethoven—intelligence in every note and phrase, consistent purity of tone in every register and a sense of fresh and unaffected inspiration.”
—Baltimore Sun

Former professor keeps the faith

BY STACEY COBURN
Assistant Accent Editor

Archimandrite Epiphanius Periáles used to be known simply as “Gus.” When he worked at Ithaca College as a professor and vice president of student and campus affairs, he wore black jeans and a sweatshirt. In his new position of authority in the Eastern Orthodox Church, Epiphanius will have to wear a black cassock and a stovepipe hat with a black veil in the back.

Epiphanius, who took early retirement in 1996, is now in Madrid, where he will be the first metropolitan of Spain and Portugal for the Eastern Orthodox Church. He was enrobed to this position (which is the equivalent of Cardinal in the Catholic Church) on June 7. During his first month on the job, he will be marrying the niece of the king and queen of Spain. Epiphanius said he kept his house and office to be known simply as “Gus.” When he changed into his collar and vestments, trav­eling as far as Detroit to preach.

Former professor, who had a reputation for being tough, has some learning to do. At a professor at Ithaca College,Epiphanius said he kept his house and office to be known simply as “Gus.” When he changed into his collar and vestments, trav­eling as far as Detroit to preach.

Harold Emery, a history professor at Itlia­ca College and a longtime friend of Epiphanius, said he didn’t want to believe that this time his friend was going all the way to Spain. He also struggled with calling this friend by the name the church has given him.

“I call him Gus,” Emery said. “My moth­er called him ‘Gus Gus.’ We’re not about to change. I guess I should say ‘your grace’ or something, but to hell with it. I mean, he’s just one of the guys.”

Epiphanius’s new position calls for him to establish a presence in Spain and Portugal for the Eastern Orthodox Church. Epiphanius said that there are many Eastern Orthodox Christians there who need a church of their own. There are approximately 300,000 Ukrainian immigrants in Portugal, and most of them are Orthodox, Epiphanius said.

Epiphanius has already set up an advisory board to raise funds to build churches. He said that he intends to try to attract priests from Slav­ic countries and Greece to serve.

Establishing the Eastern Orthodox Church abroad is something Epiphanius has had experience with before. Epiphanius spent three and a half months in Hong Kong in 1996 trying to persuade the government to recognize the church there. Epiphanius said he adapts to new countries by establishing relationships with the people.

“You get to know them, and they have to get to know that you love them,” Epiphanius said. “It’s the same with teaching. The students have to know that you’re there for them and that you care for them.”

At a professor at Ithaca College,Epiphanius said he kept his house and office open to students. Epiphanius said what he misses most about teaching is those student visits. He said he is grateful that many of his students still remain in contact with him. In 1997, the Department of Speech Communi­cation established the Periáles Prize, a $500 scholarship contest given to three students each year, in his honor.

Epiphanius said students used to call him mean names because he was “so nice out­side of the classroom, and so mean inside.”

The former professor, who had a reputa­tion for being tough, has some learning to do in Spain.

“I guess I have to become a student my­self when I come back now, and take class­es in Spanish,” Epiphanius said, chuckling.
It isn't The Onion—it's idiot journalism

I happened to come across these headlines while surfing The Onion on Friday afternoon: "Baby Turtles Lured to Disco While Surfing the Web on Friday afternoon: "Baby Turtles Lured to Disco While Surfing the Web." I thought I had found them. I'm sure it isn't The Onion—"Cranky loser points out pop culture's ills, from this anytime soon. So I say embrace the need to exist. If you need a hearing aid in irresponsible.

"I was watching the 11 o'clock news this evening: "Baby Turtles Lured to Disco While Surfing the Web on Friday afternoon: "Baby Turtles Lured to Disco While Surfing the Web." I thought I had found them. I'm sure it isn't The Onion—"Cranky loser points out pop culture's ills, from this anytime soon. So I say embrace the need to exist. If you need a hearing aid in irresponsible.

I was watching the 11 o'clock news this evening. The news media's discomforting where I thought was The Onion, a safe-haven for outlandish and remarkable facts. These headlines definitely achieve their immediate goal. They dumb down the story's content and give the audience a small taste of what they "need" to read.

"It's nice to see something positive on the news every once in a while. Everything's always so negative."

Well, we're flipping it off. That story, which appeared on a station that shall remain nameless, was downright annoying. It was about two local stories that are placed in cell phones came. Some more idiot journalism for sure, but a friend of mine said something strange right after those three minutes of life that I'll never get back ended.

"What's this all about good surprise live Music?"

"By John Brhel Staff Writer"

"You know how they say the nerds are the ones who go on to bigger things? Well, the maxim holds true for Ithaca-based geek rock band Pocket Protector. Saturday night, Inventive and self-deprecating, the foursome was the last of three bands to perform and they turned on the otherwise sleepy evening of music at WowWet Cafe into something credible.

So as not to stir the sleeping Saturday night crowd, WowWet gave the opening slot to crooner Ben Costello. Undercover and purely for fun, the band's lead singer came to the microphone and began singing into the guitar.WowWet staff

"It wasn't an easy task, covering one of the most beloved and inventive bands on the planet. Charming hips and beaches as hollow wood sounds wild, but Costello danced on the band's pop-singer's melodic interludes. Costello's love for the songs was apparent in more than just his choice to perform them. He radiated smiles as he drifted from his hit to his to B-side, from depressing dirge to hallowed hook.

"The most significant was his take on the band's hit 'Paradise Android.' For a song that relies heavily on distortion and noise, Costello did it without a flinch."

The soundbreak was a short one, since the bands set up quickly during sound checks, and the crowd was suddenly face to face with Missing Marcus. A standard shuffle of bar-rock, female falsetto and tossed funk whatever, the band's imagination wasn't vast enough to support the audience any further than the door.

"The members of Missing Marcus were more than happy to knock-off, folk-punk rockers building their best to alien the crowd with free-flowing verse and Ains Difranco ideals. Thumbs up to the drummer for actually caring and to the bassist for his bouncing, bouncy work. Other than that, the word for the band is cookie-cutter. Nothing else comes to mind. If the band is really Missing Marcus, let's hope they find him.

"It was pretty clear where the show was heading as Pocket Protector set up. Keyboardists headsets and nameplates were good indicators that they were neither bar-rock, folk, indie, or anything else remotely serious. The need of Pocket Protector was easy to eat, but a bit pushy. Fans were tired, held space, and responded to cheeseball banter.

"But looks aside, they really rock."

"Nasally vocals, Floydian licks and Mr. Rogers keyboards were a strange but familiar mixture. We've seen this before with Weezer and Crash and the Bird in such a diversity. Rather than committing to one sound, Pocket channels energy from all the disciplines: funk, rock, rap, blues, and Hendrix."

"Heath Abney, the band's front man is, to put it in Geek, zany. He's the classic "can't get the girl" guy, the ridiculous animal party and the class clown all in one. His theatricals and enthusiasm give a little bit to cloud his slightly too whiny voice. Jordan White, the alternate front man, is just as weird and talented. Their showmanship is stupid odors to friendship and goodm, but catch all the while. In the end, Pocket Protector had the last laugh, drawing more applause than anyone else, while putting on a very silly show."

"Costello coated on his love for Radiohead, and Missing Marcus relied too much on ferocity. But Pocket Protector, no matter how awfully dumb they seemed, laughed it all off and came out on top.
Movie Review

By Sara Zerner

As the lights dim in the theater and the video begins to roll, an ominous black figure stands in the darkness. The camera slowly pans around, creating a sense of unease as a priest’s gloomy voice tells the story of a broken man. Though this seems like an interesting way to begin a movie, it would have been more gripping without the overly dramatic tone of the narration.

Perhaps Brian Helgeland (writer/director) should stick to adapting novels to screenplays. With an “L.A. Confidential” writing credit on his resume, he seems to have a knack for adaptation. Sadly, “The Order” is about Alex Bernier (Heath Ledger), a member of a small order of priests known as Carolingians. When he discovers that the Eve of his order, Dominic (Francisco Carone), has been kidnapped, he begins to piece together the curious circumstances surrounding his father’s death.

The film begins as a clever, harried, brotherly relationship between Bernier’s world, Mayan, and his brother’s interest in her order. The Order is written by Alex Bernier (Heath Ledger), wielding a gun and speaking in a language that is suddenly hit by song. When Addy goes to view the body in the car, the man cuts his last words and disappears into a demon-like corpse. But unfortunately the movie soon loses its allure. The plot bounces on oblivion, which turns the film into a series of meaningless events.

Bernier discovers strange symbols on the priest’s body, which bear the markings of a Sin Eater (Benjamin Farmanders). The film starvers the Order, the Church of the Order, the Sin Eater (Benjamin Farmanders), and the markings on the bodies that possessed her.

To their credit, Ledger and Sossonan create sparks as their love blossoms. Yet it is hard to accept the Order as a Catholic priest, despite the fact he is being heard speaking mass in Latin to his congregation. Farmanders also has a slightly humorous performance as the Sin Eater — sometimes he is too dramatic in his monologues and sometimes he unnecessarily fills each word with fire and brimstone. The first clue to the swellness of the movie comes with the knowledge that the film was meant to open in January. That is the reason when audiences put out their flop products to try to make as much money as they can before the Oscars, and it shows. The release date was delayed to improve the special effects, which are still meagre. Their low quality is particularly evident in the scene where poorly animated birds attack Ledger’s character.

Helgeland apparently can’t decide whether he wants to make a comedy, drama or thriller. The film opens as a narrative, continues with a noir style, and finally changes to a straightforward build that leaves the audience feeling unsatisfied. As “The Order” was written, produced and directed by Brian Helgeland, the film stars Heath Ledger and Shannyn Sossmanan.

New Eve 6 album goes with pop-punk flow

Music Review

By Sara Zerner

Eve 6 is back with its third installment, “It’s All in Your Head,” following two albums that were not as well received in the pop-rock industry. The band’s latest offering is a mixture of genres that combines elements of pop-punk, hip-hop and mid-tempo rock.

The album opens with the upbeat track “Here’s To The Night,” which features Collins’ distinct vocal style and catchy melody. The next track, “Girlfriend,” is a pop-punk rock number with a catchy chorus that is sure to get stuck in your head. The song features Collins’ powerful vocals and the band’s tight musicianship.

The album continues with the track “Good Lives,” which features Collins’ distinctive delivery and the band’s polished production. The song features a catchy melody and a driving rhythm that is sure to get you tapping your feet.

“Good Lives” is followed by the track “Girlfriend,” which features Collins’ powerful vocals and the band’s tight musicianship. The song features a catchy melody and a driving rhythm that is sure to get you tapping your feet.

Despite the band’s success with their previous albums, “It’s All in Your Head” is a disappointing release that fails to live up to the high standards set by their previous work. The band’s sound has changed significantly from their debut album, and while some fans may find this change refreshing, it is difficult to find common ground with their new style.

Overall, “It’s All in Your Head” is a disappointing release that fails to live up to the high standards set by their previous work. The band’s sound has changed significantly from their debut album, and while some fans may find this change refreshing, it is difficult to find common ground with their new style.
Today

Weekly Jazz Club Performance — 12 p.m. in the Pub, Campus Center.
Students in Free Enterprise — 12 p.m. in Friends.
Interfaith Prayer Service for World Peace — 5 p.m. at the Muller Chapel lawn.
Latino Heritage Month Kickoff Dinner — 6:30 p.m. in Klingenstein Lounge, Campus Center.
Buzzsaw Haircut Meeting — 7 p.m. in Friends 209.
Social Enrichment for All — 7 p.m. in Friends 205.
Anime Society — 7:30 p.m. in CNS 115.

Friday

Thaler Violinist Concert — Elmar Olivera, violin, at 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.
Sports
Volleyball at Brockport Invitational in Brockport, N.Y.
Field hockey at 11 a.m. at Utica.
Women's tennis at 1 p.m. at St. Lawrence.

Saturday

Violin Master Class — Elmar Olivera at 11 a.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Sports
Volleyball at Brockport Invitational in Brockport, N.Y.
Men's tennis at 9 a.m. at Flower City Tournament in Rochester, N.Y.
Field hockey at 11 a.m. at Utica.

Women's tennis at 1 p.m. at St. Lawrence.

Women's cross country at 1 p.m. at Pat Peterson Invitational in Oswego.
Men's cross country at 1 p.m. at Pat Peterson Invitational in Oswego.
Men's soccer vs. Nazareth at 1 p.m. at Carp Wood Field.
Football vs. Alfred at 1 p.m. at Butterfield Stadium.

Sunday

Junior Recital — Neil Fromheiser, violin, at 1 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Ensemble X Concert — 6:15 p.m. in Hockett Family Recital Hall, Whalen Center.
Sports
Men's tennis at 9 a.m. at Flower City Tournament in Rochester, N.Y.

Monday

Lecture Series — Ed Rivera '88, at 6 p.m. in Emerson Suites, Campus Center.
Asian Culture Club — 7 p.m. in Friends 201.
Students for Christ — 7:30 p.m. in CNS 112.
BiGayLA — 8 p.m. in Friends 207.
Ithaca College Environmental Society — 8 p.m. in Friends 203.
Red Cross — 8 p.m. in Friends 210.
Faculty Recital — Steven Mauk, saxophone, at 8:15 p.m. in Ford Hall, Whalen Center.

Tuesday

Last day PASS/FAIL semester courses
Students for a Just Peace Teach-In — 12 p.m. in Textor 103.
Students Against Destructive Decisions — 5:30 p.m. in Friends 102.

Wednesday

Sports
Men's soccer vs. Hobart at 4 p.m. at Carp Wood Field.
December 2003 application for degree due to registrar.
Eucharist for Peace and Healing — 1–2 p.m. in Muller Chapel.
Gerontology Workshop Series — 1–3 p.m. in Glen, Lounge, Campus Center.
City Rhythms — 6:15 p.m. in Campus Center.
Friends of Israel Falafel Party — 6:30 p.m. in Closer, Klingenstein and McDonald Lounges, Campus Center.
American Advertising Federation — 7 p.m. in Williams 218.
Democracy Series: "Activism, Democracy, and the Role of the University in Troubled Times" — Ed Quevedo, speaker, at 7 p.m. in Park Auditorium.
"Surviving Life After Park: the View From Recent IC Grads" — 7 p.m. in Park 220.
Students for a Just Peace — 7 p.m. in Friends 210.
SAB Event — 6 p.m. in the Pub, Campus Center.
Circle K — 8 p.m. in Friends 202.
Residence Hall Association — 8 p.m. in North Meeting Room, Campus Center.

Field Hockey at Brockport.

Women's soccer vs. Oswego at 4 p.m. at Carp Wood Field.

Not all Ithaca College events are listed in the calendar.

Send information to The Ithacan, 269 Roy H. Park Hall, Ithaca College, by Monday at 5 p.m. For more information, call Calendar Manager Christa Lombardi at 274-3206 or fax at 274-1565.
The Downtown merchants welcome this opportunity to offer Ithaca College students FREE BUS RIDES to acquaint you with the shopping, entertainment and cultural events offered to our diverse community, including all students.

For this special weekend the following discounts apply:

- $60 discount on a 14k ring purchase,
- $130 on an 18k ring purchase.

Pay in FULL and we’ll DOUBLE your discount!

Dates: Thursday, Friday & Saturday
September 11th, 12th & 13th
Time: 10:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m.
Place: Ithaca College Bookstore

FREE TCAT Shuttle to downtown

Saturday, September 13
Saturday, September 20
Saturday, September 27
Saturday, October 4

Green St.
12:45 p.m.  1:00 p.m.  1:45 p.m.  2:00 p.m.  2:45 p.m.  3:00 p.m.  3:45 p.m.  4:00 p.m.  4:45 p.m.  5:00 p.m.  5:45 p.m.  6:00 p.m.  6:45 p.m.  7:00 p.m.  7:45 p.m.  8:00 p.m.

Textor
1:00 p.m.  1:45 p.m.  2:00 p.m.  2:45 p.m.  3:00 p.m.  3:45 p.m.  4:00 p.m.  4:45 p.m.  5:00 p.m.  5:45 p.m.  6:00 p.m.  6:45 p.m.  7:00 p.m.  7:45 p.m.  8:00 p.m.

Towers
1:04 p.m.  1:49 p.m.  2:04 p.m.  2:49 p.m.  3:04 p.m.  3:49 p.m.  4:04 p.m.  4:49 p.m.  5:04 p.m.  5:49 p.m.  6:04 p.m.  6:49 p.m.  7:04 p.m.  7:49 p.m.  8:04 p.m.

State and Cayuga
1:15 p.m.  1:50 p.m.  2:15 p.m.  2:50 p.m.  3:15 p.m.  3:50 p.m.  4:15 p.m.  4:50 p.m.  5:15 p.m.  5:50 p.m.  6:15 p.m.  6:50 p.m.  7:15 p.m.  7:50 p.m.  8:15 p.m.

The Downtown merchants welcome this opportunity to offer Ithaca College students FREE BUS RIDES to acquaint you with the shopping, entertainment and cultural events offered to our diverse community, including all students.
OUR COMPETITORS FOUND A WAY TO SEND BROADBAND INTERNET TRAFFIC OVER THE POWER GRID.

I WANT YOU TO FIND A WAY TO SEND DATA VIA THE SEWER SYSTEM.

I THOUGHT YOU ALREADY WERE DOING IT.

ASOK, WOULD YOU LIKE TO JOIN A DOOMED PROJECT FOR SENDING INTERNET TRAFFIC OVER THE SEWER SYSTEM?

ABSOLUTELY! I MIGHT BE YOUNG AND INEXPERIENCED, BUT I KNOW A GOOD THING WHEN I SEE IT!

I NEED YOU TO WORK UNDER THE SEWAGE AND BREATHE THROUGH A STRAW.

I GET A STRAW??!

I'VE PUT MY HEART AND SOUL INTO THE HIGH-SPEED-DATA-SEWER PROJECT.

BUT I BELIEVE IN DEVELOPING OUR TALENT POOL. SO I RECOMMEND PUTTING ASOK IN CHARGE OF THE PROJECT. I WILL BE HIS MENTOR.

WOW! WHAT SHOULD I DO FIRST?

I WANT YOU TO FIND A WAY TO SEND DATA VIA THE SEWER SYSTEM.

Absolutely! I might be young and inexperienced, but I know a good thing when I see it!

I need you to work under the sewage and breathe through a straw.

I've put my heart and soul into the high-speed-data-sewer project.

But I believe in developing our talent pool. So I recommend putting Asok in charge of the project. I will be his mentor.

I would not rule out panicking. Get fuzzy by Darby Conley.

ACROSS
1. Mo. for Libras
2. Enrages
3. Plant ending
4. Surf co.
5. Play the part of
6. Am used to
7. Referee
8. Main man
9. Call to a horse
10. Prev. name of
11. Bridesmaid
12. Get back
17. Woodsman
18. Tug of
20. Bride's part
21. Trail VIP
22. A Little
23. Woman
25. Vanishing sound
29. To Pedro
32. Green-themed fruit
33. Not as fast
37. Conservative hue
38. Play a guitar
39. Walt
40. Nickel or dime
41. Not flighty
42. Univ. preceder
43. Attention-getting call
44. Wed in haste
45. In the closet
46. Dry.
47. Smuggle
48. Spat
49. Rich.
50. Broke.
51. Bearded.
52. Flattened.
53. Mongol dwelling.
54. “Stop!”
55. Bunt.
56. Drab.
57. Stooge.

DOWN
1. My cats.
2. Enrage.
3. Plural ending.
4. Soho co.
5. Psyche’s beloved
6. Canine, maybe.
7. Offender
8. Man band
9. Call to a horse
10. Prev. name of
11. Bridesmaid
12. Get back
17. Woodsman
18. Gripper
20. Bride’s part
21. Trail VIP
22. A Little
23. Woman
25. Vanishing sound
29. To Pedro
32. Green-themed fruit
33. Not as fast
37. Conservative hue
38. Play a guitar
39. Walt
40. Nickel or dime
41. Not flighty
42. Univ. preceder
43. Attention-getting call
44. Wed in haste
45. In the closet
46. Dry.
47. Smuggle
48. Spat
49. Rich.
50. Broke.
51. Bearded.
52. Flattened.
53. Mongol dwelling.
54. “Stop!”
55. Bunt.
56. Drab.
57. Stooge.

LAST WEEK’S ANSWERS

OUT ARA ENA
KAN BAG ARA
RESO GAI ARIZ
HEDGED STOLE
AVAST GUARD TOLL
COLDEST SLICE PHANTOUF
CAVALRY SERGE
BOO ZIP
TAPE BIBLE
ALOQ CAL CAL
CAANING STORE
AMO ASH TOPS
Idea of Felicetti free from injury helps put Bombers in national poll

BY JON ROTHSTEIN
Contributing Writer

On Sundays, coach Mike Welch makes time to do his weekly chores and — most importantly — cut the grass. “Call me old-fashioned, but I really enjoy it,” said Welch. “It’s something I’ve done for a long time and it always feels good.”

No matter what the circumstances are, Welch always has a worker’s mentality, whether it’s on a Saturday afternoon during a football game, or a Sunday morning cutting his grass. So when his football team is ranked No. 13 in D3football.com’s Week 1 poll, without having played a game, it doesn’t get him too excited.

“It’s important to stay focused on the task at hand and right now that’s Alfred University,” said Welch. “We just need to take things one game at a time, one week at a time.”

Contribution to Ithaca’s previous publicity was the prospect of sophomore quarterback Josh Felicetti returning to his pre-injury form, which he appears to have done. Felicetti, who earned Empire 8 and ECAC Rookie of the Year honors in 2002, threw for 3,311 yards and 15 touchdowns last season. Junior Jamie Free returns to start at fullback after averaging 4.4 yards per carry. The backfield is polished, but Welch said the key to any offensive success remains up front.

“All year you want to have success, you need to be able to run the football, and that starts with the offensive line,” said Welch. “Their production is vital to our offense as a whole.”

The line should be up to the task with senior tackle and tri-captain Tariq Ahmad leading the pack. Ahmad started each game the past two seasons and should anchor a line that includes returning offensive lineman, you take added pride in your responsibility,” Hill said. “Anything less than the absolute best will not be acceptable.”

A young, yet semi-experienced receiving corps returns for the Bombers. The loss of senior Pete McCaffrey due to ineligibility rules means junior Jeff Welch will lead the pack after catching 11 passes last season, including two for touchdowns.

Sophomore Dustin Esposito will also start for the Bombers. Esposito began to scratch the surface of his potential toward the end of last season. The leaper from Syracuse developed during the finale against Cortland, hooking up with Felicetti five times for 51 yards. Seniors Chris Hagemeier and Lou Magrone will provide added depth at the position.

One position that the Bombers are relatively thin is at tight end. Junior Vinny Dargush will be the starter, but he served in more of a blocking role last season and caught no passes. Brett Gilona, last season’s starter, did not report to camp.

The defense should be the backbone of the team, led by 2003 preseason All-American and three-year starter, Robert Truman. However, the line-backing spots surrounding Truman have seen recent changes. Junior Tor Inagard, a starter last year, left the team for personal reasons, and junior Jose Colon, named a preseason All-American by Football Gazette, has been suspended for the year. Sophomore Dustin Ross and senior Brett Campbell will fill their places.

Stability on the defensive line will come from junior defensive end Bryan Steele, a starter in 2002 when he recorded five sacks, senior linebacker Cory Coady, and junior defensive tackle Alex Shaffo.

The secondary features four players who all have plenty of game experience. Senior free safety Peter Mayer had three interceptions last season, and strong safety Jon Edgcumbe reached his peak at the end of the year. Senior Jeff Molisani and junior Matt Tosh will man the cornerback slots.

Dave Nelson/The Ithaca Bomber defenders swarm a Cornell rusher at Saturday’s scrimmage on South Hill.
Fanatic fútbol fans lack class and courtesy

As I sat watching an intense match between Ithaca and Cortland Saturday night — which the Bombers eventually lost 0-1 — I was reminded of one constant that always haunts the enjoyment of a soccer game.

The fans are idiots.

It's really an unbelievable thing. Sure, every sport has stupid fans. But soccer seems to have a rare combination of stupidity, lack of class, and utter ridiculousness when it comes to its fans.

BRIAN CARR

From my vantage point Saturday's game, when the Bombers' junior Dave King had his legs bunched up behind him by a Red Dragon player — and King didn't even have the ball. It was a dirty, classless play that should have resulted in a red card but only drew a yellow. While the Bomber bench erupted in anger, two Cortland players a few rows back decided to cheer their player's "hustle" in an egotistical, spiteful manner. Those parents got me thinking about my experiences with soccer fans. And I've got an assorted stories of things that will make you shake your head in laughter, disbelief, and disgust.

I went to a high school game, my teammate, Vinny Gallo (note the obviously Italian name here), got called for a trip and foul. The infraction was announced, play was about to resume when the father of the player who was tripped yelled to the ref in a loud, obnoxious voice, "Threw that dirty Mexican out of the game!"

At another high school game, we were losing with time running short but pressuring for a goal. We had possession of the ball to an opposing fan, who picked up the ball, smiled at me as I went to get it for the throw-in, then promptly tossed the ball over the fence and down the hill in an attempt to knock off time to help his team win. The genius obviously thought he was safetying the goal with the clock run out.

During a college game last year, two players were fighting for a ball, headed out of bounds. Both players, in an attempt to slow down the ball playing, rolled their eyes and blamed the team's losing the game on the other team.

Thus those stories are the norm. What's wrong with soccer's fans?

"I know they're not going to change, it's just the way it is," said senior captain Tariq Ahmad. He's right. There isn't much that's going to change for the foreseeable future with soccer fans. But until there is an increase in class and courtesy on the part of fans, soccer is doomed to remain a sport for soccer idiots.

BY JON ROTHSTEIN
Contributing Writer

FRESHMAN BRANDON DECHENE attempts to evade several Cornellers closing in on him during Saturday's scrimmage.

Bombers set to sack Saxons

Dog day doldrums end with Homecoming contest against Alfred

BY MATT RICE/THE ITHACAN

A pre-season All-American pick at line­backer by D1Football.com, Truman will have added responsibility to contain Raynor. Tru­man's role will be heightened since his team­mate at linebacker, Jesse Colon, has been sus­pended for the year.

Raynor only appeared in four games last season due to injury, but despite only see­ing limited action, Raynor still rushed for 391 yards and five touchdowns. This Week I per­formance last season against St. John Fisher makes the highlight reel.

But Truman said one man's abilities don't make an entire team. "It's assignment football, it al­ways has been," he said. "I'm confident we will be able to make plays.

The Saxons running game should provide a stern test for the Bombers front four. Con­sidering the deepest position on Ithaca's roster last season Felicetti said. "I'm confident we will be able to make plays.

I'm confident we will be able to make plays.

ROBERT TRUMAN
Senior linebacker

WHERE IS HE NOW?

"I'm confident we will be able to make plays.

Former starting quarterback and junior Ryan Steenberg has switched to the other side of the ball. He is now trying to find his niche at the linebacker spot.

Most of the time, you only hear of the stu­pidity of fans at world matches, from riots to uncontrollable hooligans. But soccer fans in the U.S. do not have that luxury.

Listened more intensely to the crowd.

You'll be sure to find some more.

Press Box Box appears in this space every week at The Delones sense and ut­ter deland1@ithaca.edu.

Press Box appears in this space every week at The Delones sense and ut­ter
deland1@ithaca.edu.

Press Box appears in this space every week at The Delones sense and ut­ter
deland1@ithaca.edu.

Press Box appears in this space every week at The Delones sense and ut­ter
deland1@ithaca.edu.
Blue and Gold drown Lakers, 5-0

BY JIM HAWVER
Contributing Writer

The smallest Bomber had the biggest game Wednesday. Five-foot junior forward Sarah Gibble scored the game-winning goal 15 minutes, 18 seconds into the first half, as Ithaca blanked Oswego, 5-0, in the Bombers’ home opener.

Ithaca’s win came three days after The College of New Jersey trounced the Blue and Gold 5-1 in its season opener.

“To come off a loss like that with a shutout like this really shows the character of this team,” Gibble said. “It shows that we don’t give up.”

The blowout allowed several freshmen to play in their first ever contests for Ithaca. After senior Heidi Holgate scored with 12 minutes left to give Ithaca a 4-0 lead, freshman Andrea Baraiola made her first career appearance, replacing sophomore Nicole Blum in goal.

“That was a great opportunity for Andy to come in,” Blum said. “I wanted the shutout real bad so I was putting all my pressure on her, and she was aggressive and came through.”

Blum recorded 11 saves and improved her starting record to 0-2-2.

Although the Blue and Gold took a 2-0 lead when she scored with less than four minutes until the break, Ithaca was able to get everybody in the second half and I didn’t have to play decreased. We got some nice goals,” Gibble said.

Gibble said the difference in the squad’s performance from the first half to the second half was like night and day.

“I had a lot more control,” she said. “I had the last 35 minutes of the match and I felt I was a lot smoother after halftime. Hopefully the rest of the season will go that way, too.”

Ithaca’s offense took advantage of an Oswego defense that allowed 13 goals in their previous three games.

“We got some nice goals,” said Assistant Coach Andy Byrne.

“Junior midfielder Brooke Aldrich gave Ithaca a 2-0 lead when she scored with less than four minutes until the break,” Byrne said.

The Bombers were able to come away with victories in each match, including last season’s 3-0 win.

The Bombers will try to carry their momentum into their Empire 8 conference opener Saturday at 11 a.m. at Utica.

Ithaca beat the Pioneers, 5-1, last season.

The smallest Bomber had the biggest game Wednesday. Five-foot junior forward Sarah Gibble scored the game-winning goal 15 minutes, 18 seconds into the first half, as Ithaca blanked Oswego, 5-0, in the Bombers’ home opener.

“I think he was a little nervous at first, Ward pegged a first of his 13 saves in a physical contest Wednesday for the first Bomber attack," Gibble said. "His keepie, and Corvi made the first of his 13 saves in a physical contest Wednesday for the first Bomber attack." He was that it was a physical contest Wednesday for the first Bomber attack.

“Bombers vs. Oswego

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>1st</th>
<th>2nd</th>
<th>Final</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Oswego</td>
<td>0-0</td>
<td>0-0</td>
<td>0-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bombers</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ithaca goals-assists: Heidi Holgate 1-0, Sarah Gibble 1-0, Brooke Aldrich 1-0, Tamara Payn 1-0, Kelly Palmer 1-0, Sami Davis 1-0, Andrea Baraiola 1-0, Nicole Blum 0-1, Tiffani Vattiato 0-1. Saves: Oswego - unavailable, Ithaca - 29.

Women’s soccer

Senior Becca Becca’s ferrytime blasted the ball into the back of the net, the shot was scored by Ithaca in the 2nd half, after the second overtime.

The referee disagreed.

"My perception was that it was a pretty bad call," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two overtime periods.

"We stepped it up and we totally dominated them," senior Dawn Rathbone said. “We played the whole second half in their half (of the field)."

Despite the quick turnaround, Berry's goal was called back because of a handball, and the Empire 8 contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

"My perception was that it was a very good score," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two overtime periods.

"We stepped it up and we totally dominated them," senior Dawn Rathbone said. “We played the whole second half in their half (of the field)."

Despite the quick turnaround, Berry's goal was called back because of a handball, and the Empire 8 contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

"My perception was that it was a very good score," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two overtime periods.

"We stepped it up and we totally dominated them," senior Dawn Rathbone said. “We played the whole second half in their half (of the field)."

Despite the quick turnaround, Berry's goal was called back because of a handball, and the Empire 8 contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

"My perception was that it was a very good score," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two overtime periods.

"We stepped it up and we totally dominated them," senior Dawn Rathbone said. “We played the whole second half in their half (of the field)."

Despite the quick turnaround, Berry's goal was called back because of a handball, and the Empire 8 contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

"My perception was that it was a very good score," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two overtime periods.

"We stepped it up and we totally dominated them," senior Dawn Rathbone said. “We played the whole second half in their half (of the field)."

Despite the quick turnaround, Berry's goal was called back because of a handball, and the Empire 8 contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

"My perception was that it was a very good score," said coach Mindy Quigg. “We got robbed on that one.”

"It's not just the win, it's the end of an offensive crescendo for the Bombers. After a slow first half in which the Blue and Gold only managed five shots, the offense came alive, launching 26 shots at the Soaring Eagles' net during the second half and two over. 　...
Bomber Roundup

Men's cross country Saturday

The Blue and Gold finished sixth out of 11 teams with 271 overall points at Saturday’s Daniel Walker Invitational at Buffalo State. Lithaca sent only its freshmen to the meet. Geneseo won the race with 40 total points. Lithaca was led by freshman Patrick McGreal who finished 29th with a time of 27 minutes and 34 seconds.

Lithaca had four other runners who placed in the race. Freshman Nick Paicos finished 56th with a time of 26:55. Freshman Jeff Abbott finished 59th in 28:55. Freshman Monty Caster completed the race in 61st place crossing with a time of 29:07, and sophomore Tim Billias finished 66th in 29:38. The next race for the Bombers will be on Saturday, Sept. 14, when they travel to Oswego for the Pat Peterson Invitational.

Women's cross country Saturday

The Bombers placed fifth overall in a field of 12 at the Daniel Walker Memorial Invitational in Buffalo, N.Y. The Bombers’ 120 points earned them second place among the Division III teams. The Blue and Gold finished 169 points ahead of host Buffalo State, but missed first place Edinboro by 70 points.

Senior Amanda Laytham led the Bombers by placing within the top-50 runners and finished 45th with a time of 20:02. The rest of the Bomber squad, led by junior Bridgette Pilling with a time of 20:02, placed within the top-50 runners and finished within two minutes of each other.

Field Hockey Saturday

The College of New Jersey dropped the visiting Bombers, 5-1, on Saturday. Lithaca took an early 1-0 lead when freshman Bryce Meck scored her first career goal on a pass from senior Brooke Aldrich at 20:26 of the first half.
New Jersey senior Lauren Wooster tied the game, 1-1, with 33 seconds left in the first half.

The second half belonged to the Lions as they rallied off four consecutive goals for the win.

Senior Jessica Hamway gave New Jersey a 2-1 lead at 48:47 in the second half, which proved to be the game-winner.

The Lions outshot the Blue and Gold, 33-3.

Sophomore Nicole Blum recorded a career-high 19 stops in goal for Lithaca. Thirteen of those stops were recorded in the second half.

The Bombers played their second game of the season yesterday in their home opener against Oswego.

Men's soccer Friday

The 14th-ranked Bombers blanked Penn-State Altoona 2-0 Friday in the Cortland Red Dragon Classic, as junior goalkeeper Ted Meyer picked up his first shutout of the year.

Senior captain Ben Visnyei had his second career two-goal game, scoring just two minutes into the contest off an assist from junior Brooke Aldrich.

It didn’t take Visnyei long to strike again. It didn’t take Visnyei long to strike again. The hot hands returned for the Bombers with ten total blocks. The Blue and Gold stumbled in the late game, getting swept by Concordia State (30-19, 30-27, 30-12). Roth led the team in kills with 13, and also added 12 digs. Junior Jen Cramer commanded the defense with 28 digs.

Saturday

The Bombers picked up their first win of the fall season last Saturday, beating Nazareth, 5-2.

Senior Blair Watkins led the way at No. 1 singles, beating Ben Klumpka (6-2, 6-3, 6-2).

The win followed a trouncing from Division-I Binghamton (7-0) Thursday. The Bombers will travel to Nazareth Saturday for the Flower City Tournament.

---

Networking 101- Pre-requisites: A Desire to succeed in making useful career connections.

Join us on Homecoming weekend for a chance to learn the Art of Networking, and then enjoy some free food while possibly making the connection of a lifetime.

Networking Panel: Friday September 12th from 4-5pm in Emeson Suites C.

Homecoming Brunch: Saturday September 13th from 10:30-12:30pm in Dillingham Lobby

Women’s tennis Saturday

The Bombers picked up their first shutout of the year. Senior Kris Abbott recorded a career-high 10 saves in goal for the Blue and Gold.

Junior Christine Dorney opened up the scoring for Lithaca with her first goal of the season in the 47th minute. Senior Becca Berry put the Bombers ahead, 2-1, in the 79th minute. This was also her first goal of the season. Both goals were unassisted.

Logan Hadick of Geneseo scored the tying goal in the 85th minute for the Knights.

The Bombers will play their fifth game of the season Wednesday at Oswego.

Women’s volleyball Friday

The Blue and Gold traveled to Rochester to take on Nazareth, and fell to the returning Empire 8 champs 6-3.

Both Narguess Arjomand and freshman Erin Chapman improved their singles records to 2-0 with their victories, while freshman Melissa Walsh notch her first career singles win.

The loss, which was the team’s first of the season, dropped the Bombers’ Empire 8 record to 1-1.

Sunday

Sunday the squad returned to South Hill hoping to have better luck against the Thorogoods of Skidmore, but to no avail.

The Bombers’ lost 7-2 against a powerful Skidmore team that took down the Blue and Gold 9-0 last fall in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

The loss dropped the Bombers to 1-2.

The women will be back in action next Saturday as they will be going up against the St. Lawrence at 1:00 p.m.

Homecoming Brunch

Join us for a casual networking session with IC Alumni before the football game.

Free food will be served!

Networking Panel sponsored by Career Services, Office of Alumni Relations, Alumni Association and the Senior Class
Homecoming Brunch sponsored by Career Services and the Office of Alumni Relations
Homecoming 2003

FRIDAY, 9.12.03

4:00-5:00 p.m.  Networking 101, Emerson Suite C
Learn the art of networking from IC alumni.

5:00-6:30 p.m.  Senior Class Happy Hour, Pub/Coffeehouse

5:00-7:00 p.m.  Professionals Symposium Alumni/Student Meet-and-Greet Pizza Party, Clark Lounge

6:00-7:00 p.m.  Athletic Hall of Fame Reception, Emerson Suites Lounge

6:30-8:30 p.m.  Pep Rally and Bonfire, Campus Center Quad
Featuring the hot alumni band Four Side Letter.

7:00-9:00 p.m.  Athletic Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony, Emerson Suites (tickets required)

8:00 p.m.  Alumni Wrestling Match, Ben Light Gym

8:15 p.m.  Violin Concert by Elma Oliveira (free), Ford Hall

8:30 p.m.  Alumni Comedy and Magic Show, Pub/Coffeehouse

SATURDAY, 9.13.03

9:00 a.m.  5K Fun Run/Walk
Meet outside the main entrance to Phillips Hall.

10:00 a.m.  Alumni Men's Lacrosse Game, Allen Field

10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.  Alumni and Student Networking Brunch, Dillingham Lobby

11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m.  Alumni Tent, Food, Prizes, and Kids' Fun, Butterfield Stadium Entrance
Prizes: kayak, mountain bike, a Josten's class ring, . . . !

1:00 p.m.  Men's Soccer Game, Ithaca vs. Nazareth, Wood Field

1:00 p.m.  Homecoming Football Game, Ithaca vs. Alfred, Butterfield Stadium

After the game  Senior Class Gift Dedication, Academic Quad

3:00 p.m.  Women's Soccer Game, Ithaca vs. Scranton, Wood Field

9:00 p.m.-2:00 a.m.  Professionals Symposium After-Party, Forest City Lodge, Downtown Ithaca (tickets required)

www.ithaca.edu/HC-03
Bombs away

The Blue and Gold’s passing game will be a key to the team’s success

Pages 23 and 24