A Time To Come Together

Bright and early on the morning of Saturday September 12, approximately 250 students, faculty and members of the Ithaca community arrived at Butterfield Stadium to show their support for the community and to have fun at the second annual Unity relays.

The stadium was lined with 42 flags from around the world, representing all the countries from which IC students hail. The Ithaca College Pep Band played “The Star-Spangled Banner” to kick off the relays. The first event, in which 16 teams competed, was the 4x100-relay race. Next, the 100-meter wheelchair race and the half-mile run/walk were held. Twenty-eight people, none physically disabled, participated in the wheelchair race, and nearly everyone joined the run/walk. The events of the day concluded with an ice cream social and closing remarks.

Tricia Williamson, interim assistant director of campus center and activities summed up the day by saying, “The most amazing thing about it was the range and number of people there: faculty, staff, and students, all getting out of bed on a Saturday morning and coming together to support this event.”

One student who has made significant contributions to the School of Business is Kimberlee Howe '99. Originally an undeclared major, Kim chose to concentrate in marketing in her sophomore year. She has always had an interest in business, but it wasn't until she took Introduction to Business that she was inspired to major in it.

Kim has contributed tremendously to several organizations on campus. As president of the Ithaca College American Marketing Association she is involved in preparing an annual report and chapter plan that is judged at the intercollegiate conference in April. Kim is also heavily involved in fundraising, including such events as: the chicken wing contest, the etiquette dinner and credit card booths. Another organization that Kim is a member of is the New Product Showcase, which collects new products from various companies. This organization is best known for its vast collection of product failures. Students have been studying these products for years and finding ways to improve them. One of Kim's responsibilities was to organize the banquet for the Association of Marketing Educators.

In addition, Kim has received several honors at Ithaca College. She is a member of the Oracle Society and was inducted into both the Delta Mu Delta and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies in 1998. Kim has also been the recipient of both the RG Fowler and the Douglas Betts Scholarships. Furthermore, she has maintained her Dean's Merit Scholarship for four years.

Kim is an aspiring marketer. Although she has no immediate plans after graduation she hopes to find a job as a buyer. Kim would like to work a couple of years before attending graduate school.

One senior who will most certainly be remembered by the School of Business is Dheeraj Verma. Verma managed to obtain a B.S. in finance and a B.A. in mathematics with a minor in computer information systems and international business while accumulating a 4.0 grade point average, all in only three short years.

While managing this heavy academic load, Verma has also spent a lot of time participating in various activities on campus. For three years he has represented Ithaca College at Harvard University’s Model United Nations debates. He was the president of the European Debate group on campus and is a student justice.

Verma is one of the true international students at the college. Born in New Dehli, India, Verma moved around quite a bit, first England, then back to India for 12 years. He came to Ithaca College having graduated from one of the top junior colleges in Singapore. As for the future, Verma is well prepared. He has been a teacher’s assistant for six different courses in the business school as well as a few in the mathematics department. He is also a student consultant in the Center of Trading and Analysis of Financial Instruments, for which he created a webpage. Having already done an internship with a Manhattan-based firm, Verma is well equipped for the business world. His plans for the next two years however, are to pursue an MBA program.

When he graduates in May, Verma will become the first student in the history of Ithaca College to graduate from the Humanities and Sciences honors program. There is no doubt that Verma will be sorely missed by faculty and students alike as he embarks on the next chapter of his life.

By Suzie O'Rourke

At the age of 13, Josh Rich was invited to participate in a children's pilot television program. After visiting the studio and seeing the behind-the-scenes action involved in television production, Rich knew exactly what he wanted to do in the future post video production. Post video production includes every aspect of producing a video after the initial footage has been shot. To start himself off on the right path, Rich began his own company, Rich Productions, a video production company that he ran out of his home in Stamford, Conn.

Upon coming to Ithaca College, Rich further specialized in the field by majoring in television-radio with a concentration in video production. Since coming to the South Hill Rich has taken advantage of the many hands-on opportunities in the Roy H. Park School of Communications. He worked with ICTV as a technical director and director on various shows like ICTV Presents and Newswatch 54.
Beyond the South Hill, Rich spent a semester in the Los Angeles program. While in California, he worked as a production assistant for NBC Digital Productions as well as the Carsey/Werner Company. Rich also assisted in the webcasts of the 1998 daytime Emmy Awards and the 1998 Primetime Preview in Manhattan’s Radio City Music Hall.

However, although Rich attributes much of his learning and success from his different field experiences, he says college is much more than taking classes; it’s about finding out who you are. As an only child, being away from home gave Rich a chance to be more independent and grow as a person. During that time, Rich has established many lasting friendships, which are what he will miss most about leaving a place he has called home since 1995. After leaving the South Hill, Rich hopes to make his way in the world and eventually be a successful executive at a major television network.

Not many Ithaca College students make history like Karen Schlesinger '99.

A cinema and photography major, Schlesinger became the first undergraduate student at the college to design artwork for the Handwerker Gallery. In late February, her project, “Shadowboxes,” was displayed in the gallery located on the second floor of the Gannett Center.

Schlesinger’s project was designed as part of the advanced photo studio course, taught by Assistant Professor of Cinema and Photography Douglas Holleley.

The project included four plates of glass that were grouped together in geometric blocks.

During finals week in December 1998, Schlesinger said, she displayed her project in the lighting area in the Roy H. Park School of Communications. After Holleley saw the project, he contacted Jelena Stojanovic, director of the Handwerker Gallery, to see if it could be displayed in the gallery.

The project was displayed Feb. 23-28, and a reception was held on Thursday, Feb. 25.

Schlesinger said she plans to produce a video of the gallery installation and market it to other art galleries in hopes of having it displayed.

Schlesinger also took part in a photographic journey this year with Janice Levy, chair of the cinema and photography department, and four other photography students. The group traveled to Pittsburgh and the Dominican Republic. There, Schlesinger and the others documented the work of Global Links, a non-profit organization that provides medical supplies to hospitals and clinics in need.

Upon arriving at Ithaca College, Sarah Anderson '99 was a physical therapy student. Later, she decided to change her major to psychology. (Photo by Melissa Thornley)

Sarah Anderson wanted to come to Ithaca College for the physical therapy program. After being accepted, she realized PT wasn’t for her, but it was too late, and she was stuck coming to the college.

"I’m really glad I did though," Anderson said.

Before graduating as a psychology major as part of the Class of 1999, Anderson wanted to be sure to tie up loose ends by finishing her school work, saying good-bye to people, figuring out who she wants to keep in touch with, and most importantly, finishing her resume. During this time, Anderson described the tying up of loose ends as completing the “little stuff” as a chapter of her life is coming to a close.

“Graduation seems a million miles away because of all the work I do, but time wise, it feels like it’s tomorrow,” she said. “I can’t believe the time went so fast,” Marilyn Anderson, Sarah’s mother, said. “That shocked me more than anything. From my point of view, it’s just exciting to see.”

The elder Anderson also said she has always been impressed that fears never stopped Sarah.

“I’m glad to see she’s trying different things because she’s young and has plenty of time to find herself,” her mother said.

A unique quality about Anderson is her job at Ithaca College. Each psychology major is required to be part of a research team for three semesters. Those projects introduced her to advanced psychology research.

During the summer after her junior year on the South Hill, Anderson looked for a job she could put on her resume. She knew a girl who was a research assistant for professors and asked about it. Because of her enthusiasm for the job, Anderson was hired. She began the summer before her senior year and held the position throughout her senior year, and even had her own office in Williams Hall.

As the sole research assistant for Michael McCall, associate professor of psychology, Anderson’s tasks included data collection, data coding, research for studies and helping the professor with whatever she could.

Anderson has also worked with Mary DePalm, professor of psychology. DePalma said she is glad Anderson has stayed with the research projects because she has the commitment and experience to help new students beginning with research.

"She’s not ‘all work, no play,’ but when the work needs to be done, she’s never let me down," DePalma said.

Anderson said that research is not something she wants to go into as a career, but she really enjoyed the experience. Being a research assistant, "really helped me to understand what research is about and I’ve learned so much," Anderson said.

Although Anderson has a job for the summer as a counselor for Rein Teen Tours, a tour that travels around the country, she doesn’t have a job after that, but said she isn’t worried.

"Maybe I should be," Anderson said laughing.

She doesn’t yet know what kind of job she wants to look for, but Anderson did say she wants to work with kids and in the field of psychology.

“There are a lot of jobs in Philadelphia right now, working with at-risk kids in after-school settings or during-the-day settings, and that really interests me. I’m going to look more into that,” she said.

Graduate school has crossed Anderson’s mind, but she said she is definitely taking a year off to “solidify” her thoughts.

She says at the close of her college career, she will be unsure of exactly what to pursue because she doesn’t know where her main interests lie. That is her next mission—to figure out her main interests before taking another big step and beginning the next chapter of her life.
Within the last few years, Ithaca College has established an affiliation with the Frederick Douglass Academy, a public secondary school in Harlem. This school once was in horrible condition and plagued by student violence. Until a woman named Dr. Monroe became principal of the school and transformed it into a highly successful academic institution. Now more than ninety percent of the Frederick Douglass Academy students go on to college.

Twice a year, Ithaca College students and faculty visit the Federick Douglass Academy to observe the workings of this unique place and even to be a part of the learning process. In October 1998, faculty members and students from a variety of disciplines took part in the program. They observed many powerful teachers at work and saw what it takes to create a successful school in New York City. Some students and professors were able to teach parts of classes. One group from Ithaca College helped create a literary magazine of writing from Frederick Douglass students and titled it Harlem Renaissance, Too.

For physical therapy majors, the ensuing weeks of graduation and job-searching pressure do not exist.

At graduation these students will receive a bachelor’s degree in clinical science but must spend a fifth year in Rochester, N.Y. in order to accomplish a master’s degree.

Physical therapy major Patrice Lyons ’99 said she cannot get too excited about graduation because of the extra year, but she is ready to leave Ithaca.

“Four years was enough here,” Lyons said. “Ithaca is a great town and a great college, but it’s definitely time to move on. It’s just a big world and there’s a lot to do.”

Lyons said the PT program’s structure is the main reason she came to Ithaca College.

“It was nice knowing that, as long as you keep your grades up, you can stay in the program, and it’s only five years and you get a master’s degree,” she said.

During her four years at Ithaca College, Lyons participated in student government, hall council and the Community Service Network. Lyons said her experience at Ithaca College has opened her eyes.

“I’m much more open, much more relaxed,” she said. “I guess I’m much more sure of myself also, just being on my own.”

Attending the college’s graduate school in Rochester includes three 10-week blocks of classes and three six-week blocks of affiliations or internships. Housing is not provided and students are not paid for the internships.

Jokingly, Lyons added, “We pretty much pay to work.”

Even though she is not under pressure to find a job, Lyons said her parents have started to worry. After graduation, Lyons plans on spending a week with her brother who lives in Florida.

“My mom was like ‘oh, you can look for a job when you’re down there,’” Lyons said with a laugh. “So, they’ve already started. I’m not worried, but they are definitely [worried].”

About the additional year, Lyons said, “It’s been nice. Everyone’s all stressed out and sending out resumes, and I haven’t started thinking about it yet.”

Her mother, Portia Lyons, said she is happy Patrice chose Ithaca.

“Ithaca has provided her with a good background and I don’t feel that she’ll have any problem getting a job,” her mother said.

Stephen Lahr, Lyons’ adviser of four years, said Lyons’ future is unlimited and she has a lot of options.

“She’s got both the intellectual ability and personality to be great in the clinic treating patients,” Lahr said.

Lyons said she will probably start looking for jobs next fall and by late winter have her options narrowed down.

“There are so many realms of physical therapy that I could choose to go into, but I have no idea right now,” she said. “I can’t really say until I do another internship, get my feet wet in something else.”

During the summer of 2000, PT majors will have two internships, so Lyons will not need a job until August of that year.

“When I came into this, I really wanted to own my own practice, but just the way the health care structure and environment is nowadays, that’s just almost an unrealistic goal,” she said. “In a perfect world, if I could do that, I would love to.”

The School of Health Sciences and Human Performance went through a waiting period in 1998-99. The college planned to relocate the 31-year old school into a brand-new facility between the Hill Center and Smiddy Hall by the second semester. Although the new building was supposed to be completed by December 1998, delays in construction made the move impossible. This did not stop the school from continuing to prepare the Class of 1999 for professional careers in the health and exercise sciences.

HS&HP has a total of 17 undergraduate and six graduate programs. These range from athletic training/exercise science, to the popular clinical science/physical therapy program, to the long standing speech-language pathology and audiology major. Both the clinical science/physical therapy program and the occupational science/occupational therapy programs offer a five-year Bachelors and Masters of Science degrees for those students willing to commit their extra time to summer study at the University of Rochester Medical Center and full-time clinical fieldwork.

The experiences, such as this fieldwork and other comprehensive internships, prepare HS&HP students for careers as therapists, coaches, clinicians, researchers, educators, and health and fitness professionals.

Music education major Russell Posegate did not plan on attending Ithaca College. He auditioned at the music school in order to practice for the schools he wanted to attend. He never took a tour of the campus, but after the audition knew he liked the school.

"Everything here seemed great and so perfect and nowhere else I went spent as much time, you know, it didn’t seem as if they were as interested in me," Posegate said.

Posegate has played the trumpet for 11 years and the piano for 14, but he concentrated on the trumpet at IC.

His focus has changed a lot through his college years. Posegate said he started out wanting to teach music, but he now likes to perform as well. Although Posegate plans to go to graduate school for either education or performance, he doesn’t want to go right away. He would like to find a junior high band director position.

“A junior high job would give me time to do things I want to do,” Posegate said. “Plus I would have a chance to teach at a pivotal point. Junior high is where kids are still around from the elementary band usually, but it’s where they start making decisions like if they’re going to play soccer instead. I think that would be really neat, to still have a lot of kids around and help them make a choice.”

Thinking back to his years at IC, Posegate said, “I wish I had another spring break or two because I’ve never really got the chance to do that because I always had too much to do and not enough resources.” Over the summer, Posegate said he would like to drive around the country because it’s something he has always wanted to do.

The seventh annual Founder’s Day Concert in the Park was celebrated on Sept. 20, 1999, in DeWitt Park, bringing music to the original site of the Ithaca College campus quad. The concert, sponsored by the Friends of Ithaca College, featured the Ithaca College Jazz Workshop as well as Tuesday-Thursday Jazz Lab and vocalist Lauri Keegan. Directed by music professor Steve Brown ’64, the concert included works by artists such as Cole Porter, Bernie Moten and Bart Howard, drawing a large listening audience comprised of students, faculty and community members. The Founder’s Day Concert in the Park first took place in 1992, marking the centennial of the College’s founding as the Ithaca Conservatory of Music. Today, the tradition continues in remembrance of a time when downtown concerts were scheduled on a regular basis.
“It is my plan to build a school of music second to none in the excellence of its faculty, the soundness of its educational ideals and the superior quality of instruction.”

The Catholic Community of Ithaca College provides opportunities for individuals to deepen their Christ-centered spirituality through participation in the worship life of the Catholic Church.

Under the direction of chaplains Mary Humenay and Fr. Scott Kubinski, members of the Catholic Community are encouraged to participate in the liturgical life of our community as Lectors, Eucharistic minister, mass coordinators and music ministers.

Additional opportunities come in the form of various retreat experiences: ICPeace, Mt. Savior and the Interfaith Experience. The Urban Ministry experience in the South Bronx is both a retreat and a chance to serve the needs of the poor.

Students accept leadership roles on our pastoral council as members of the Executive Board or on various committees that includes Liturgy, Service, Social, Consistent Life Ethic and Retreats.

Without fail, The Ithacan, the weekly newspaper for the Ithaca College community, delivers the weekly campus news every Thursday morning. From the student government elections to restaurant reviews to the latest Bombers win, the paper provides in-depth balanced coverage of what IC students, administrators, faculty and staff need to know.

Completely run, designed, edited and written by students, the paper offers extracurricular opportunities to all students, not just journalism majors. Additionally, all community members are welcome to submit their opinions to be published as letters to the editor.

Every year the paper is nominated for numerous national and regional journalism awards. In 1998-'99 the paper was recognized with a third place Mark of Excellence Award for Best All-Around Non-Daily Newspaper in the Northeast by the Society of Professional Journalists. Additionally, News Editor Robert B. Bluey, Accent Editor Gretta Nemcek and Staff Photographer Melissa Thornley were all recognized for excellence in their respective fields this year.

SAVAW (Students Against Violence Against Women) is a student-run organization that is dedicated to educating the Ithaca College community on issues surrounding violence that occurs in everyday life.

SAVAW runs specialized programs that allow students to explore their feelings and become educated on topics such as incest, rape, sexual assault, mental emotional and physical abuse as well as any topic that the students feel is necessary to explore. They also deal with other issues that women in our society are faced with today, such as eating disorders, discrimination and sexual harassment. In the 1998-99 school year SAVAW’s activities included, Take Back the Night (march and rally), Celebration of Women, Sex Fest, Campus-wide and classroom speak-outs, Annual trip to Seneca Falls Women’s Rights National Historical Park, Retreat, Love your Body day and SAVAW’s publication of the Venus Letters. The Co-Leaders for this year were: Lori Gabriel, Mindy Lais, Jen Reardon and Maxine Silent.
The purpose of the Student Government Association is to serve as representatives on behalf of the students to the faculty, staff, administration, as well as the community.

In the 1998-99 school year, enthusiasm played a key role in the work the Student Government Association set out to do. With multiple projects completed in all areas of concern at Ithaca College, we end this year with much success. From the first Homecoming Pep Rally in over 20 years, to protesting New York TAP funding cuts, to addressing academic concerns with all upper-level academic administrators, great things were accomplished.

The Student Activities Board is designed to provide quality programming to educate and entertain the Ithaca College community. This student-run organization provides different feature films in Textor Hall each weekend, as well as hosts a spring leadership weekend in Syracuse, encouraging members of different campus organizations to share their views and needs regarding the college. This year, the SAB was also involved in hosting The Samples on campus in March of 1999, along with The Bureau of Concerts. SAB has entertained people for the past four years with Fall Madness, Winterfest and speakers, including Gregory Hines in February 1999.
African-Latino Society — one of the long-standing student organizations on campus is about to celebrate its 30th anniversary. The mission of the African-Latino Society is “to promote the economical, social and political welfare of people of color in Ithaca and elsewhere.”

Senior spokesperson, Nigel Graves, has been a vital force in contributing to the stability, prominence and continued success of ALS. As the first senior spokesperson for ALS in five years, Graves contributed a broader perspective and offered more insight as to how things work at the college level of the organization. ALS has proved to be a strong organization this year in collaborating with other groups, bridging gaps and building bridges over the gaps that scarred the organization last year. “ALS usually operates on the personality of its leader. Grave’s personality has been a nice balance of personal and political,” states Office of Minority Affairs Director Keeon Gregory. “Nigel is very positive in trying to work with and for people instead of against them... Thanks to Nigel, through his mission and vision, for the first time this year, ALS and OMA worked with Hillel in providing a Kwanza and Hanukkah celebration, and brought organizations together for ‘The First Annual Black History Month Celebration.’”

Even through the success of the organization this year “there’s a lot that still needs to be done,” as ALS turns 30 and moves into the 21st century.

After originating at Ithaca College four years ago, the Seido Karate Club has made tremendous progress, always keeping the philosophy of its founder in mind. According to club president, Jenna Lane, Seido Karate was founded 20 years ago on the idea that the sport of Karate was too much about strength and fighting. The idea is to train people to be better human beings, the motto, “technique before strength, and spirit before technique.”

Seniors Taralyn Fasqueri Molina, Yvonne Sing and Jenna Lane lead the successful activities that keep this club in business.

The Champion Festival, a tournament for Seido Karate students, is held every year, with the assistance of the IC Seido Karate Club. They have been participating in and helping set up the festival for three years. The festival provides an arena for students to compete and show off their skills, while maintaining the idea of “spirit first.”

The Ithaca College Club Hockey team got off to a fast start this season led by seniors: Jack Cassari, Jim Gallegro, Kiel Harvey, Nathan Keough, Mike Krakowak, Kevin Sabella (captain), Dave Sonce and Steve Wolf. Three consecutive wins, including a hard-fought victory over rival Cortland gave the team high hopes for the season. Unfortunately, three of the teams top offensive players were injured and would be out for the remainder of the semester. Lacking the same offensive punch Ithaca suffered losses to the top two teams in the league and an overtime loss to Syracuse. The second semester started off similar to the first with two straight victories over LeMoune and a 5-5 tie with Colgate. Unfortunately, it also ended similar to the first semester losing four-straight games by one goal each.

The teams 5-12-1 record could easily have been the other way around if the puck had bounced their way a couple more times. This team isn’t only about wins and losses. The team plays because the players love the sport and the little things that go with being a hockey player. Friendships and memories that will last forever are formed on and off the ice.

The Ithaca College chapter of the American Marketing Association (IC AMA) is a student-run organization designed to develop student leadership and involvement in the marketing field. The IC AMA helped sponsor a number of events this year including Career Week, the Etiquette Dinner and various other career-related workshops and presentations. Career Week consisted of hosting different companies that gave students information about entering and being a part of the job world. This event also consisted of career fairs that emphasized different fields. As for the Etiquette Dinner, over 200 students participated this year where they were told what to expect and what is appropriate when interviewing over a meal. Lastly, in April, selected members of the group traveled to New Orleans where they participated in the 21st Annual AMA International Collegiate Conference. At the conference attendees had the opportunity to learn management techniques from leadership sessions and interact with marketing practitioners during different career sessions.

The Ithaca College Men's Choir, also known as Ithacapella, is the only all male vocal arrangement recognized on campus. Advised by voice educator Dr. Randie Blooding, the group is open to men from any major or discipline on the South Hill and chooses its members through auditions each semester. Formed by members of the class of 1999 during the spring semester of 1996, the group has grown and flourished over the past four years and is a testament to the dedication of its members.

A large reason for the choir's popularity and success has been its versatility. Because the group maintains a repertoire that spans many different disciplines, the members can adapt their shows to a broad scope of audiences. An average week for the group may consist of concerts ranging from a doo-wop show in the Coffee House, to a local church's Sunday mass, to a concert at a local elementary school or a formal concert in Muller Chapel.

Besides offering men a platform for performing a variety of music, the choir also allows students to be involved in different aspects of the music business; conducting, arranging, promoting, booking tours and concerts and fundraising. During the middle of February members take part in a singing valentine fundraiser which makes touring possible.

As many of the original members graduate this year, some memories they will take with them, in addition to the friendships they have formed, are moments from their various tours throughout the Northeast and a number of wonderful concerts on the South Hill.

IC Unbound is a student-run performance group, advised by Professor Michelle Cole, and is comprised of student performers and choreographers of all levels. The goal of the dance company is to provide a non-competitive environment in which dancers and choreographers of different levels of experience and backgrounds can perform and create routines together. Some members of the group bring years of experience while others have very little or no dance training. Students become involved by attending auditions and a few general meetings each year, which are held in order to prepare for the two annual performances held in Emerson Suites. Through their involvement in the group, students learn exactly what goes into making a dance performance successful from start to finish. This year the fall and spring recitals featured a combination of jazz, lyrical, swing and ballet performances.
It is the one weekend during the fall that alumni, students, parents and friends of the college gather to celebrate being a part of Ithaca College. Barbecues, tailgating and reminiscing with old and new friends highlight the pre-game activities in numerous parking lots on campus and across the road. The sun shined on Butterfield Stadium on a September afternoon in Ithaca as the Bombers handed the College of New Jersey Lions an 18-16 loss during Homecoming Weekend. It was a thrilling game to watch. The victory over the nationally ranked Lions moved Ithaca to 3-0 on the young season, while College of New Jersey dropped to 2-1.

Quarterback Mike O'Donovan '99 threw for 205 yards and a touchdown to lead the Bombers, who entered halftime with a modest 6-3 lead. Led by quarterback Ed Byrnes, the Lions grabbed a 10-6 lead on his 33-yard touchdown jaunt. Yet the Bombers struck back with two touchdowns of their own to take an 18-10 lead. Greg Carlucci scored on a six-yard run to narrow the gap to 18-16 with 6:43 left in the game, but the College of New Jersey could get no closer. With :02 remaining on the clock, Lions' placekicker Mike McGhee lined up for a 43-yard game-winning kick. But McGhee's kick landed well short of its intended destination and the Bomber crowd erupted into a frenzy. Ithaca held on to win by two points, satisfying the large Homecoming crowd.

The Cortaca Jug found its way back to the South Hill after spending three years in Cortland’s trophy case. The Ithaca-Cortland rivalry added another chapter to its storied history as the Bombers prevailed in an offensive shootout, defeating the Red Dragons, 37-29. On a cold and snowy November afternoon in front of 8,000 chilly fans, Ithaca scored in seven seconds on its first possession, stunning the Cortland defense. But the Red Dragons responded 16 seconds later on a 65-yard touchdown pass. In the second quarter, wide receiver Matt Buddenhagen ’99 returned a punt 71 yards, cutting the deficit to seven at the half. Ithaca’s defense yielded 27 points in the first half as the Bombers went into the locker room down 27-20. However, the defense played a magnificent second half and Cortland managed only two points on a safety in the fourth quarter. The Red Dragons recorded only 40 second-half yards. Cortland was inside the Ithaca 10 late in the game, but a fumble recovered by safety Brian Austin ’99 sealed its fate. Ryan Carpenter ’00 gained 161 yards on the ground and two touchdowns as the Bombers took over in the second half. Quarterback Mike O’Donovan ’99 also tossed a pair of touchdowns. Cornerback Ron Amato ’01 had two interceptions in the second half. Ithaca snapped a two-game losing streak to Cortland with the win and the Bombers moved to 8-1 on the season, while Cortland fell to 4-5.
Much to their dismay, head coach Mike Welch’s football team was knocked out of NCAA playoff contention after a 28-21 loss to fifth-ranked Buffalo State in its last regular-season game. After beating Cortland and the College of New Jersey, the Bombers were sure to receive a bid to the NCAA playoffs. But the selection committee decided otherwise, and Ithaca had to settle for a spot in the ECAC Northwest Championship game. The Bombers triumphed in their last game, beating Hartwick 40-6. Cornerback Jeff Tremlett ’99 intercepted two passes and broke up three others to earn game MVP honors. Running back Eric Amorese ’99 scored on a two-yard run to open the scoring. Punt returner/wide receiver Matt Buddenhagen ’99 returned the second-half kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown.

Quarterback Mike O’Donovan ’99 threw for 2,365 yards and a school-record 24 touchdowns in 1998, averaging 236.5 yards per game. Buddenhagen returned 29 punts for 667 yards and compiled 762 yards receiving. He led the nation in punt return average with 23 yards per return. Running back Ryan Carpenter ’00 led the Bombers in rushing with 639 yards while Amorese rushed for 373 yards.

Buddenhagen led the offense with 13 touchdowns while running back Nick Dibble ’00 added 10. Linebacker Mike Sansone ’99 led the Bomber defense with 100 tackles. Buddenhagen, Sansone and O’Donovan were named to the East Region all-star team. Buddenhagen and Sansone were then named to the Hewlett Packard Division III Football All-America team.

The women's cross-country team's season was highlighted by a first-place finish at the Union Invitational and a second-place finish at the St. Lawrence Invitational. The team then placed third at the NYSCTC championship. Lauren Byler '01 led Ithaca with a fourth-place finish at the NYSCTC meet. Cara Devlin '00 placed 11th and Frances Erway '02 placed 17th. All three runners earned all-state honors. Meaghan Brady '99 placed 25th.

Ithaca completed its season placing fifth at the NCAA New York Region qualifier. Devlin ran to sixth in 18:31, missing an individual berth by one place.

Bill Ware, a 1998 inductee into the Ithaca College Sports Hall of Fame, came out of retirement this fall to coach the team. He was named interim head coach following the departure of Kelli Bert, who accepted a coaching position in cross country and track at Michigan State University.
Jan Golden '99 became the men's cross-country program's first two-time All-American with a 22nd-place finish at the NCAA Division III men's cross-country championship. Golden finished in 25:39.74. His finish was the fourth-highest by a Bomber at the national meet. He also won three consecutive races at the end of the season.

Seventh-year head coach Jim Nichols guided his team to a second-place finish at the Union Invitational and sixth place at both the Oswego Invitational and the St. Lawrence Invitational. The Bombers have qualified as a team for the NCAA championship twice during his tenure. The team placed ninth at the NYSCTC championship. Golden won the race, the first Ithaca runner ever to do so. His personal best of 25:44 placed him six seconds ahead of the runner up. Eric Sambolec '99 finished 9th in 26:49. Golden and Sambolec earned all-state honors. Scott Williams '99 finished 76th in 28:14.

Graduating seven seniors, including six starters, is difficult for any team to overcome in the following season. The men's soccer team was no different. The three-time defending Northeast regional champions coached by Andy Byrne started the season ranked sixth in the nation and first in the region. But inconsistent play and trouble scoring goals plagued the young team led by captains Reade Driscoll '99 and Rob Kaplan '99. Wade Wilkinson '01 led the team in goals (7) and points (20). The defense was led by Josh Hyman '99, and goalie Matt Deskiewicz '00.

The team played at Fredonia in the first round of the ECAC tournament. The game ended in a 0-0 tie, with Fredonia advancing 6-5 on penalty kicks. For the first time in the seniors' careers, Ithaca failed to make the NCAA tournament. But the four seniors on the team have made their mark at Ithaca with three—straight regional championships and the school's first Final Four appearance in men's soccer.

For the first time since making four straight appearances to the NCAA Final Four in 1988-91, the women’s soccer team (15-4-2) advanced to the NCAA semifinals under head coach Mindy Quigg. The team was striving for a national title. The Bombers were one game away from a shot at the title, but the College of New Jersey held Ithaca to six shots and went on to win 2-0 in the semifinals. Back Erin DeMarco ’01 was selected as a third-team All-American. DeMarco and midfielder Jessica DiManno ’01 were named to the all-tournament team. DeMarco was also named to the National Soccer Coaches Association of America All-New York Region First Team. DiManno was named to the second team along with forward Sammie Miller ’01. The awards kept coming for the trio, as they were also selected to the New York State Women’s Collegiate Athletic Association All-Star Team.

Miller started all 21 games for the Bombers and led the team in scoring with 12 goals. Goalkeeper Lindy West ’01 recorded 12 shutouts along with 84 saves.

Seniors Nicole Tropea, Jamie Melser, Katie Overton and Carrianne Gifford ended their careers on the South Hill in 1998. Tropea and Melser started all 21 games for the Bombers. Tropea scored seven career goals and had four career assists.
Seventh-year head coach Janet Donovan led the volleyball team to its sixth-straight appearance in the NCAA playoffs in 1998. The team completed its season at the NCAA Division III New York Regional after it was swept by top-seeded Cortland. Setter Jen Salmon '02 led the Bombers with 20 assists, 12 digs and a season-high four service aces. Outside hitter Rebecca Helmersie '00 added 10 kills.

The Bombers opened the season with a second-place finish at the Springfield Invitational. In the championship match against RIT, Ithaca took a 2-1 lead, but lost in five games. The team then swept regionally ranked Rochester 3-0 in October, winning its fourth match in a row. Ithaca went on to sweep Oneonta in late October, and was ranked third in the New York Region.

Middle hitter Christine Ansley '99 finished her four-year Bomber career in 1998. She played in 139 games in 1998, recording 194 kills, 153 digs and five aces. Outside hitter Julie Rock '99 played in 87 games registering 153 digs, five aces and four kills in her Bomber tenure. Ansley and Rock were co-captains of the 1998 squad.
In her third year as head coach, Tracey Houk led the field hockey team to an 11-10 record in 1998. For the ninth year in a row, Ithaca was selected to play in the NCAA playoffs. The team was defeated 3-0 by Gettysburg in the NCAA Regional Playoffs at Rowan University Nov. 7, 1998. Leading the Bombers offensively was forward Kelli Coppola ’99 with 11 goals and four assists. In her career on the South Hill, Coppola scored 32 goals and added 11 assists.

Jessica Kennedy ’01 was second on the team in scoring in 1998 with five goals and two assists. Erika Nielsen ’99 started all 21 games for the Bombers, scoring two goals and recording five assists. Midfielder Megan Dimond ’00 also started all 21 games for the Bombers, scoring one goal while assisting on four. Goaltender Jen Stoneburg ’99 made 183 saves for Ithaca, allowing only 27 goals for an .877 saves percentage. Stoneburg was selected to play in the 1998 National Field Hockey Coaches Association Division III North/South Senior All-Star Game at the University of Pennsylvania. She was also named to the New York State Women’s Collegiate Athletic Association all-tournament team.

The Bombers are now 12-14 in NCAA playoff competition.

The 1998-99 wrestling team finished its season with a record of 11-3 overall and sixth in Division III. These final statistics met the team’s preseason expectations of 10 wins and a top-10 Division III finish. With a young team listing only two seniors and two juniors on the roster, head coach Marty Nichols is optimistic about the future of his team.

Tom Hall ’01 (133 lbs) led the team in pins with nine, and was the 63rd Bomber to earn All-American honors. Hall, accompanied by Ryan Ciotoli ’01 and Conor Heun ’01, advanced to the NCAA Division III Championship at the College of New Jersey. Hall placed fourth in his weight class but Heun and Ciotoli were eliminated in the first round of action.

Dan Butler ’99 (174 lbs) and Chuck Maragioglio ’99 (197 lbs.) captained the squad during their final season on the South Hill. They finished their final seasons with wins at home. Butler was scheduled to make his fourth appearance at the NCAA Division III Championship, but he dislocated his elbow during practice just days before the tournament was scheduled to begin.
During his second season as head coach, Jim Mullins guided the men's basketball team to a record of 12-13, with six wins in Eastern Athletic Association play. (Photo by Suzie O'Rourke)

In his second season as head coach, Jim Mullins led his squad into the 1998-99 season ranked second in the EAA preseason poll. The Bombers had eight returning letter winners as well as four starters from last season. But tough losses and the inability to win the close games brought a 12-13 record, the first losing season since the 1994-95 campaign.

Led by captains Jay Watts '99 and Brenden Killeen '99, the Bombers headed into the final weekend of conference play with an opportunity to claim the championship and an NCAA playoff berth. But a home loss against RIT ended the chance. The Bombers still had a chance to make the ECAC playoffs with two non-conference games remaining, but losses in both games ended Ithaca's season with no postseason action.

Guard Pat Britton '00 led the EAA in scoring at 16.5 points per game and was named a first-team all-conference player for the second consecutive season. Forward Jamie Darwish '00 was a second-team selection, averaging 11.2 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.

Watts and Killeen leave South Hill as winners, with a 60-44 cumulative record over their four-year careers.

The women's basketball team finished the 1998-99 season 12-12 overall and 7-3 in the EAA. The squad ended the season with three-straight wins over Alfred, Nazareth and RIT, but it wasn't enough to receive a bid to the NYSWCAA tournament. Led by six senior captains Ithaca was sure to reach the postseason. But injuries led to a small bench and the Bombers settled for a .500 record in head coach Christine Pritchard's final season. Pritchard, who has guided the team for the past 14 season, announced her resignation mid-season and is planning to relocate to California to pursue other interests.

Competing in 10 events throughout the season, the men's indoor track and field team's strengths proved to be running events. One challenge the team faced this season was rebuilding its roster after losing several key field athletes to graduation. However, underclassmen attempted to fill the void. Matt Hopp '01 and Mike Henn '00 turned in top performances in middle and short distance events. Drew Davidson '02 placed at several meets in the 35-pound weight throw, while Ian Golden '99 had consistent performances in the mile run.

After competing in a majority of non-scoring meets, the Bombers placed eighth of 14 teams at the NYSCTC championship. In the 500-meter run Joe Messer '99 finished third in 1:08.71. In the 5,000-meter run Eric Sambolec '99 placed eighth.

At the ECAC championship, the team tied for 16th place among 41 teams. In the 500-meter run Hopp became the first Bomber to clinch an individual championship at an ECAC indoor meet.
The women's indoor track and field team won its second straight NYSCTC championship in 1999, outscoring 14 other teams. The indoor state title is the fourth for the Bombers. Courtney Smith '00 won her fifth career state title, finishing first in the 200-meter dash. Jill Prevet '99 placed fourth in the 200-meter dash.

At Cornell's Kane Invitational, Lisa Good '99 broke the seven-year-old record in the 500-meter dash, finishing in 19.41.

Erin Stevens '00 broke her own school record in the 20-pound weight throw, while Lauren Byler '01 finished first in the 800-meter run.

The team also placed eighth at the ECAC Championship at Boston University. The 1,600-meter relay team of Good, Prevet, Smith and Byler placed fourth in 4:01.17. Other highlights from the 1998-99 indoor season were second-place finishes at the Cornell Invitational and the Hamilton Invitational.

At two years old, John McNally became the center of attention at family gatherings as he recited the New York Yankee's line-up by heart. Since then his love for baseball has grown over the years.

McNally credits his father for planting the initial seed and his mother and grandmother for keeping his love of the game alive after his father died when he was five. He began his career playing Little League and continued to play through junior high and high school. After graduating from Island Trees High School, in Levittown, NY, he began concentrating on coaching. His former high school coach, Nick Grande, gave him a position with a team of 13-year-olds for the summer.

Since coming to Ithaca College as a physical education major, McNally began devoting more time to learning the game of baseball and how to coach at a higher level. Now, during the 1999 season, he wears number 14 for the Blue and Gold in his fourth consecutive season as student-assistant coach under head coach George Valesente.

During practices McNally is responsible for rotating players, shagging balls and other odds and ends. On game days he helps umpires, takes care of visiting teams and line-up cards, along with other tasks.

Under the direction of Valsente and the other coaches, McNally said his experience with Bomber baseball has been invaluable. Although he has learned a lot about baseball from the program, some of his fondest memories come from the little moments he has shared with his teammates and coaches and from the friendships he has established. McNally said he is thankful for having the opportunity to become part of the Ithaca College baseball family.

After graduation McNally hopes to find a job teaching physical education while continuing his coaching career.

The women's swimming and diving team finished undefeated in 1998-99 at 9-0, and head coach Paula Miller was named Division III coach of the year after the team finished seventh at the NCAA Division III championship. Her career record stands at 105-24, leading the Bombers to undefeated seasons in each of the past two years. Ithaca has not lost to a Division III opponent since 1990, a span of 57 meets.

The season was highlighted by a first-place finish at the NYSWCAA championship, the Rochester Harvest Relays and the Franklin & Marshall Invitational.

Leading the team were six seniors in their final season on the South Hill. They include: Caroline Arpe '99, Renee Helbok '99, Erin Ouellette '99, Dara Porterfield '99, Julie Steele '99 and Ruth Vesler '99. Steele and Helbok were co-captains of the squad. Helbok placed first 27 times and second three times for 261 points. Porterfield placed first 12 times and second eight times for 177 points. Steele came away with 10 first-place finishes and nine second-place finishes.
With star Dave Balta ’02 joining the men’s swimming and diving team this year, the Bombers had to be pleased with their season. Under the direction of head coach Kevin Markwardt, the men finished with a 12-2 record. Co-captains Jay Morini ’99 and Andy Driska ’00 were happy with the spirit and morale of this year’s squad. The team had a lot of depth even with limited numbers, as they had only 16 swimmers on their roster, a relatively small squad compared to past teams. The men finished fifth in the Upstate New York State Collegiate Swimming Association Championship with 674.5 points. Balta took second in both the 200-yard freestyle and in the 100-yard butterfly. Rob Finne ’00 swam a 58.3 in the 100-yard breaststroke, qualifying him for the national meet. Finne did a successful job representing the squad at the NCAA Division III Championship that took place in Duluth, Minn., placing 21st in the 100-yard breaststroke and 26th in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Head coach Rick Suddaby led the Bomber gymnastics team to the National Collegiate Gymnastics Association Championships for the 13th straight season. Ithaca, the former NCGA Champions, saw this season as a rebuilding year and ended with a record of 2-5 in dual-meet competition. Three of those losses were to NCAA Division I or II schools and the other two were to other 1999 NCGA qualifiers.

Co-captain Judy Skupsky '99 was steady for the Blue and Gold in the floor exercise, posting scores as high as 9.250 all season. Stacey Coleman '01 carried the team with stellar performances on the vault, balance beam and the uneven bars. She earned a career-high score of 9.225 in the balance beam in a dual-meet vs. Brockport. Erin Kahler '01 also produced a career-best score this season. Hers came in the floor exercise with a high of 9.525 during the Harriet Marranca Invitational. The freshman class was large in numbers, making this season the rebuilding year that it was. The youth of the team was led by all-around competitor Celia Moore '02 who returned from a back injury that kept her out of competition for the first three weeks of the season.

The Bombers see this year's trip to the National Championships as a learning experience for the younger members of the squad. The team hopes its journey to Minnesota this season will prepare the young team for later trips to the Nationals and lead to another win in the near future.
The 1998-99 men’s tennis team finished with an 8-8 record. Dave Ludwig ’99 was the only senior on the squad. He finished with seven singles wins and four doubles wins. For his four-year career at Ithaca, he compiled an 11-27 record. Jean-Jamil Rojer ’00 and Matt Schultz ’00 led the team in wins in 1999. Rojer won 22 singles matches and 12 doubles for an overall record of 34-13. Schultz, who missed the fall season because he was studying in Los Angeles, finished 13-4 in singles and 11-2 in doubles. Schultz now holds an 83-19 overall record for three years while Rojer stands at 94-26.

Rick Grubb ’01 won seven singles matches and nine doubles for the Bombers in 1998-99. Ryan Witt was in his first year as Bomber head coach in 1998-99. He also coaches the Ithaca women’s tennis team.
The baseball team made it to the finals of the NCAA Division III New York Region playoffs, but fell to eventual winner Cortland 8-3 and 11-3. The squad finished with a 26-16 record. One highlight of the season was a doubleheader sweep of cross-town rival Division I Cornell in March.

Four seniors led the team: pitchers Justin McEnroe and Bryan Gaal, shortstop Jason Hogan and right fielder Mike O'Donovan. Hogan batted .353 for the Bombers, including 53 hits and a team-leading 44 runs batted in. He crossed the plate 37 times for the team and hit 11 doubles and two triples. O'Donovan hit .312 and finished his stellar Bomber career by becoming a member of the program's 200 hits club. In 1999 he had 48 hits, including 10 doubles, and scored 45 times. Outfielder Tony Farago '00 led the team in hits with 56.

McEnroe finished his career on the South Hill with a 27-10 record, breaking the school record for wins. He was 9-3 in 1999 with a 2.79 ERA. Gaal finished with a 2.25 ERA and five saves.

Head coach George Valesente wrapped up his 20th season as head coach of the baseball team at Ithaca College.

The Bomber softball team won the NCAA Northeast Regional and advanced to the 1999 NCAA Division III World Series in Eau Claire, Wis. The team lost both games in the series, which included the top eight teams in the country.

Two Bombers were named to the All-America team—shortstop Cheryl Wah '99 and first baseman Laura Remia '01 were both second-team choices, marking the first time since 1987 that two Ithaca players earned all-American recognition. Wah was a four-year starter for the team and batted .343 in her senior season. Remia led the team with a .441 average and 15 home runs. Catcher Sharon Orchard '99 was also a four-year starter for the Bombers. Orchard led the squad with her on-field presence and leadership behind the plate. Third baseman Julie McGraw '99 was a co-captain for two seasons. She batted .321 in 1999 with 36 hits and 24 RBI. The pitching staff was anchored by Robin Bimson '01 and Christie Davis '01. Bimson finished with a 1.73 ERA and a 22-8 record, Davis was 7-5 with a 2.84 ERA. The team held a nine-game win streak from March 31 to April 17. Wah led the team in stolen bases with six, while Remia had five. Kristin Muenzen '00 helped the Bomber offense as the designated hitter with a .395 batting average, including four doubles and nine RBI.
The men's varsity crew team, comprised of five seniors and seven sophomores, finished the 1999 spring season 7-3. The team was seeded 18th at the ECAC Champion International Collegiate Regatta at Worcester, Mass., but turned in a 16th-place showing. The Bombers also placed seventh at the New York State Small School Championship on May 1 at Delta Lake.

Leading the way on the team were five seniors: seven seat Karl Braunwarth, six seat Cris Brown, three seat Josh McCarthy, stroke Mike Junkins and Matt Taback.

At the ECAC race, the varsity eight boat placed fifth in its heat and recorded a fourth-place finish in the third-level finals. In the third-level finals, the Bombers crossed the finish line with a time of 6:36.1, beating Mercyhurst by five one-hundredths of a second. They also finished ahead of Cincinnati (6:52.2).

Head coach Dan Robinson has been guiding the program for 11 years. He has been associated with the crew since 1975.

The 1999 women’s crew team placed second at the New York State Small School Championship at Delta Lake with a time of 7:33.6. The squad also placed fourth at the Eastern College Athletic Conference International Collegiate Regatta at Worcester, Mass. The team raced four boats in the race, with the varsity eight boat garnering fourth-place honors in 7:26.4. The Bombers ended their season 8-3.

Leading the way for the Bombers were eight seniors: stroke Suzanne Allen, coxswain Michelle Sathan, six seat Valerie Sudnick, bow Brenna Wiberg, Katie Angelou, Sara Horesco and Ruth Vesler.

In a tri-meet with Cornell and George Washington, the varsity eight boat placed third in 7:46.6. Ithaca then posted two wins the next weekend, competing against Hobart William Smith Colleges and the University of Buffalo. Head coach Becky Robinson, an Ithaca College alumna, is coaching the squad for the fifth year.
Led by seven seniors, the men's lacrosse team finished 7-6 (1-4 SSL) in 1999. The squad ended the season with a 22-6 loss to top-ranked Gettysburg. One highlight of the season came in April with a 12-11 double overtime win over Hartwick.

Attack Mike Seymour '99 led the team in scoring with 15 goals and 30 assists, while attack Jason Pacioni '99 scored 26 goals and handed out 11 assists. Attack E.J. MacCaull '99 notched 19 goals and added 14 assists for the Bombers.

Goaltender Pat Alexander '99 made 98 saves for a .566 saves percentage. He finished with a 10-9 record. Goalie Marc Pascal '00 was 8-2 with 42 saves for a .600 saves percentage.

Other seniors on the 1999 squad include midfielder Gary Mazza (12 goals, 12 assists), midfielder Wes Rush (11 goals, six assists) and midfielder Brian Burghdorf (eight goals, two assists).

Head coach Jeff Long is tied for the program's winningest coach. At the end of the season the team was ranked 23rd in the United States Lacrosse Coaches Association poll.

Head coach Jim Nichols’ men’s outdoor track and field team placed first at the Ithaca Invitational to begin the 1999 season. The team hosted 13 others schools at the event. The Bombers went on to place fourth at the LeHigh Games and third at the New York State Collegiate Track Conference Championship at Hartwick. At the NYSC7C meet, Ian Golden '99 won the steeplechase in 9:23.94. His time was the nation’s 13th fastest for the spring season. Golden was a two-sport standout (cross country) during his four-year career at Ithaca. Dustin Cook '01 placed second in the long jump (6.94).

Joe Messer '99 had a third-place showing in the 800-meter run at the LeHigh Games (2:00.01). Seniors Andrew Austin (sprints), Bob Gibbs (throws), Scott Williams (middle distance), Andy Weishaar (distance) and Eric Sambolec (distance) also competed on the team in their final years on the South Hill.

Nichols has been head coach of the program for 13 years.

The women's outdoor track and field team repeated as New York State Collegiate Track Conference champions, placing first in the meet at Hartwick. The squad also placed sixth out of 35 teams at the Eastern College Athletic Conference championships at Williams. Ithaca started off the season on the right foot, winning the Ithaca Invitational during the first weekend of April. They then went on to place third at the Lehigh Games the next weekend.

Six seniors kept up the pace for the team, including Meghan Brady (distance), Lisa Freitag (middle distance), Leigh Gochenour (jumps), Lisa Good (sprints), Jill Prevet (sprints) and Olivia Weale (throws).

Good and Prevet were part of the 1,600-meter relay team that qualified for the NCAA Championship meet. They ran a time of 3:55.44. At the ECAC meet, Gochenour tied for eighth in the long jump (4-11). Cara Devlin '00 competed in two individual events at the NCAA meet, placing 13th in the 5,000-meter run and 18th in the 3,000-meter run (10:37.48).

The women's soccer team advanced to the NCAA Final Four in 1998, its first appearance since four straight trips from 1988 to 1991. In the semifinal game, the College of New Jersey held Ithaca to six shots, winning 2-0. The Bombers were playing in their fifth semifinal and first since winning back-to-back titles in 1990 and 1991. Ithaca advanced to the NCAA semifinals with a 1-0 overtime win at Tufts University. Forward Samme Miller '01 scored the game-winning goal in overtime. The goal was Miller's second game-winner of the 1998 playoffs, and school-record fourth career postseason goal. Goalie Lindy West '01 made 10 saves to record her 12th shutout of the season.

The volleyball team finished its season with a loss to top-ranked Cortland at the NCAA Division III New York Regional. It was the Bombers’ sixth straight NCAA playoff appearance and 11th overall. In semifinal play, Ithaca upset second-seeded RIT in five games. Middle hitter Christine Ansley ’99 finished with nine blocks.

The field hockey team ended its season with a 3-0 loss to Gettysburg in the NCAA Regional playoffs. It was the ninth year in a row Ithaca was selected to the tournament. Goaltender Jen Stoneburg ’99 made 12 saves in the tournament and finished her Bomber career with 32 saves in NCAA playoff competition.

In the hot days of late August 1995, members of the Class of 1999 moved onto South Hill. Over 1,000 students began the great challenge of surviving college, all strangers to one another and some even unsure of their own identities.

Lessons and ideals were quickly revised as teachers became professors and long papers grew from 5-8 pages to 15-20 pages. With Convocation, Circle parties, and 100-level classes as starting points, they set out on a journey of self-discovery in search of a direction, personally and professionally.
Legacy of Wisdom

We wish that someone had told us...

“No matter what you expect to happen, your life will be completely different in four years.”

“Don’t take anything for granted—it will be over before you know it.”

“Alcohol is not actually your friend.”

“Don’t get caught up in partying too much.”

“Don’t wait too long to go nuts. Get it done early.”

“Get off of the meal plan as fast as you can.”

“Relax, and watch out for seagull poop.”
Strange Brew

Beer is the staple beverage of any college bash... but what is the BEST brew? For some seniors, it took four years to decide. For others, one round of beer golf settled the score.

1999 Top Beer Choices

- Labatt Blue
- Labatt Ice
- Corona
- Guinness
- Dos Equis
- Saranac
- Honey Brown
- Molson Ice
- Coors Light
- Rolling Rock
- Budweiser
- Red Dog

Late-Night Snack

It's 3 a.m. You're hungry. Where do you go after the party's over?

Manos Diner
State Street Diner
Collegetown Bagel
Wegmans
Ithaca Diner
Shortstop
Rogan's
DP Dough
Ginos
The Hot Truck
It's a fresh new day. It's also a weekend. How does a college student choose to spend his or her Saturday and Sunday mornings?

In bed!!!!!!
Watching cartoons on the couch
With your significant other
Sailing on Cayuga Lake
At Collegetown Bagel
At Buttermilk Falls
On the gorge trails
At Manhattan Bagel
On location, shooting a film
At the skating rink
Playing rugby
At the gym
It’s All About Motivation

Every student has once asked himself, “Why even get out of bed?”
But deeper lies the question “Why get up EARLY?”

To eat
To finish studying for an 8 a.m. exam
To take a road trip
To watch the sun rise
To go hiking
To go shopping
To get to practice on time
To ski on fresh powder
To make breakfast for your significant other
To go home
To find a parking spot
Rise and Shine

Nothing gets a drowsy student going like a good cup of Joe and a tasty bagel. But is that a latte or mocha? Sun-dried tomato or sesame seed? With literally dozens of flavors to choose from, selecting breakfast is no longer a simple decision of decaf or regular, cream cheese or dry... For those students stuck on campus, the Coffee House or Management Club bagel table in Textor Hall would have to do for a quick fix. But these could not measure up to IC students' favorite downtown bagel haunts. For the best bagels, stop by:

Manhattan Bagel
Collegetown Bagel
Brueggers
Ithaca Bakery
Study Breaks?

You have some time to kill, or you just don't want to do your homework. What is the best way to waste an hour (besides the old standbys of sleep and TV)?

- Making cookies
- Twiddling thumbs
- Taking a bubble bath
- Watching people on the Commons
- Playing cards
- Shopping
- Flying a kite
- Hiking
- Playing guitar
- Cuddling
- Having sex
- Talking on the phone
- Nintendo/Sega
- Internet
- E-mail
- Playing pool
- Drinking

Pranks for Posterity

People have pulled some pranks that we will never forget...

--- Priceless Phone Calls ---

• “I had seven pizza guys show up at once.”
• “I asked every hotel chain if their beds are handcuff accessible.”
• “We answered the phone ‘Hello, Rogan’s’ to the Rogan’s delivery guy.”
• “Any call from the phone or credit card company always turned into a lust for phone sex.”
• “Is your refrigerator running? You’d better catch it.”
• “I played Chipmunk Christmas carols.”

Kevin Kurz ’99 presents his driver’s license to Joe Law ’99 and James Ninni ’99, who inspect the date. It is indeed his 21st birthday. With so many fake IDs floating around Ithaca, one can never be too sure...

Bomber Pride in seniors presses through no matter what the circumstances. Many devoted fans show their support at all sporting events through banners and cheering, and by their fourth year, seniors will go to any extent to display enthusiasm. Seniors leading cheers for the crowd, proclaiming themselves as mascots and arriving in costume or makeup are all commonly seen at games.

Words to live by

Life is never textbook, but sometimes you just need to keep a single thought in mind.

"Always tell the truth—that way you don't have to remember anything."
—Mark Twain

"You're not in the mood; you get in the mood!" —George Costanza

"Try not. Do, or do not. There is no 'try'." —Yoda

"Know yourself. Don't accept your dog's admiration as conclusive evidence that you are wonderful." —Ann Landers

"You never know when you are making a memory." —Rickie Lee Jones

"Plain underwear is boring." —Cynthia Copeland Lewis

"There are people who will always come up with reasons why you can't do what you want to do. Ignore them." —H. Jackson Brown, Jr.
Lack of Intelligence

It has been said that there are no dumb questions, but dumb actions are a different story.

“Walking through a screen.”

“Naked three-legged race around a baseball diamond.”

“Calling the info desk to ask how to work my coffee machine because I thought it came with the room—it was my roommate’s.”

“Running into my RA holding two pitchers of ice, daquiri mix and wearing a lampshade on my head.”

“Asking strangers to push me out of a space because I thought I was stuck in the snow—I was really in neutral instead of reverse.”

“8 shots of Ice 101 in 40 minutes on an empty stomach.”

“Throwing a garbage can at an opposing team player at a hockey game.”
The Most Important Thing I’ve Learned in College ...

“If you just breathe, you can keep your sanity.”

“You can get wasted before a test and still do OK.”

“Just because you are friends with someone doesn’t mean you can live with her.”

“Grades don’t mean anything.”
Moving On

After four years of classes, parties, and countless memories, many seniors finally had concrete directions. Others were still unsure what path they were headed down, but all had learned about life, love and college—Textor Ball is not really a fish, Fountain Day was the most fun as a senior, Wegmans at 2 a.m. is a good study break or procrastination tactic, D.P. Dough delivers after most other places have closed, wearing sunscreen is a good idea and the easiest way to add one more page to a paper is by changing the font.

Strangers became close friends, the prospect of living in the real world took hold, and brand new journeys awaited on the dawn of a new millennium.

Dear Rachel,

You just couldn't wait to get to school.
You read at four and broke every rule.
You enjoyed Europe, monologues,
music, "coffee," China and clothes.
Psychology filled the gap.
How about that?
So Rachel...

Fasten your seat belt as you fly to your future.
Healing the "old" nature and/or nurture.
We love you and are very proud of you,

Of opportunity Winston Churchill once said ...
"Remember the story of the Spanish prisoner. For many years he was confined in a dungeon ... One day it occurred to him to push the door of his cell. It was open; and it had never been locked."

Of panic he once said ...
"It is very much better sometimes to have a panic feeling beforehand, and then quite calm when things happen, than to be extrememly calm before hand and to get into a panic when things happen."

Of persistence he once said ...
"We shall come through! We cannot tell when, we cannot tell how, but we shall come through."

We’re very proud of you ... Thanks for being such a wonderful son. We love you Ryan.
Eric,
May the exuberant and joyful Taylor part of you guide you in exploring those uncharted territories that are ahead.

Dear Gregory,

One door opens
Another closes
To let you see what life proposes

Choose with your heart the path you desire,
And you shall find you will never tire.

Keep striving for more knowledge,
for this is your power,
And share it with others each and every hour.

Keep your mind open and feel your way, but balance it with your wisdom and logic everyday.

Look for the good in the seemingly bad and joy in everything you’ll found you’ve had.

A new adventure has just begun
This is the key to life’s magic,
my son!

Courage is adversity's lamp
A man with courage is more than himself
He is himself plus valor
He who loses wealth loses much
He who loses friends loses more
But he who loses courage loses all.

Excellence can be attained if you...
Care more than others think is wise.
Risk more than others think is safe.
Dream more than others think is practical.
Expect more than others think is possible.

Congratulations Scott,

Dear Graduates of the Class of 1999:

Congratulations and welcome to the Ithaca College Alumni Association!
You have now officially joined the ranks of 37,000 active and loyal Bombers across the county!

One of our primary goals is to keep you connected to the College. Our door is always open and we encourage you to stay in touch. We want to know what is new and exciting in your life. Please keep us in mind when you receive that promotion, get married, or expand your family ... this is all information you will want to share with your Ithaca College classmates.

We also want to hear back from you whenever you have ideas for events or suggestions or how we can make Ithaca College a better place.

So please, don’t forget your alma mater!

Sincerely,

Right: In the beginning, Jennifer Quinzi '00 came to the yearbook office to help the existing staff with the layout and design of the 1999 Cayugan. When the book was not finished over the summer after graduation as planned, Quinzi took charge due to the lack of progress. (Photo by Melissa Bloomrose)

*The 1999 Cayugan was started in the fall semester of 1998 by former Editor-in-Chief Katie Bromley and was finished by the editorial team in the fall semester of 1999 after she left the book incomplete.

Throughout the year and after graduation, Obreza helped conclude the Sports section of the book by writing articles and some captions, as well as copy editing other staff members’ work. Colophon

The 1999 Cayugan, Volume 71, was created by the Ithaca College Cayugan Staff. The 256 page book was published by Josten’s Printing and Publishing Division at the Winston-Salem plant in North Carolina. The Josten’s representative was Ithaca alumnus Eric Ludermann. The Cayugan was produced on three Macintosh computers using Aldus Pagemaker 5.0 and Adobe Pagemaker 6.5. Individual senior portraits were done by McGrath Studios Inc., located in Brockton, Mass.
