Dr. Conrad Rawski Attened NASM in Cleveland

Dr. Conrad H. Rawski, Dean of the School of Music, attended the Thirty-Second Annual Meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music at the Sheraton Hotel, Cleveland, Ohio on Friday and Saturday, November 22 and 24. The Association of Schools of Music was founded in 1924 by a small group of schools for the purpose of establishing educational objectives in music and has grown until it now includes over 300 institutions, colleges and conservatories in the land. The Association has been successful in its efforts to establish educational standards in this country by the National Commission on Accrediting, the School of Music at Ithaca College.

The two-day session opened on Friday with the business reports, followed by a panel discussion led by Howard Hunzak, Director of the Eastern School of Music, on ways of improving efficiency in teaching through audio-visual aids, use of radio-TV, and techniques for reaching the talented student. Regional group meetings and a discussion of the Northeast in Music was scheduled for the evening of the first day.

The education of music conductors was discussed on Saturday by two or three well-known conductors who had been invited to speak, and a revision of musicianship requirements in the schools was presented under the direction of Dean Thomas Cottam of the University of Kansas in the afternoon, and Dr. Joseph Hardcastle, Secretary of the National Commission on Accrediting, together with representatives of the regional associations presented a Saturday afternoon session on the relationship of the Regional Associations, the National Commission on Accrediting, and the National Association on the whole.

The delegates were guests of the Cleveland Orchestra on Thursday evening at the Cleveland Orchestra Ball. Educators who are associated with non-member schools were invited to attend at the general sessions as guests.

Officers of the NASM are: Pres.- John C. Walsey, Austin College, Waco, Texas; Vice-President Roy Underwood, Michigan State College; First Sec.- Robert Butcher, Texas Christian University; Second Sec.- Thomas Gourley, Colgate University; Treas.- William E. Doty, University of Texas, Austin; Vice-President Roy Underwood, Michigan State College; First Sec.- Robert Butcher, Texas Christian University; and Secretary, James Carter, Colgate University.

Scampers Press Agents Resign Position in Protest of Conditions

The Directors of Publicity, Ed Girmsick, and Ewett Shneman, have announced the resignation this week of all 12 Scampers Press Agents in a protest move. This protest was allegedly prompted by a series of acts of bad behavior, out of interdepartmental friction within the Scampers working organization. In a statement to the ITHACA, Mr. Girmsick and Mr. Shneman said, "Certain elements, within the executive organization, have repeatedly tried to publicize the department, such information necessary to the smooth operation of this department. While the cry for adequate publicity has been echoed over and over again, it is usually impossible to determine any significant news-worthy accomplishmants. I refuse to be a part of this 'do-nothingism'!"

Mr. Shneman added his comments on the situation by saying, "We have restored strictly in the interests of the traditions of Scampers. This worth while program has become mired in the mud of 'do-nothingism', and 'stagnation', and 'do-nothingism'!

Mr. Lappin, executive producer of Scampers '57, was unavailable at press time for comment.

As an official Student Publication, it is the responsibility of this newspaper to inform the student body that Scampers '57 is tottering on the brink of destruction.

Politics to TV takeoffs to who knows where... and we find that long awaited and long overdue house cleaning. Consequently, we dissolve all work connected with the type represented by Scampers.

Musically Speaking

by a Smith named Pete

Few students are aware of the many wonderful advantages that arise from the enjoyment of class music at Ithaca College. Types of music with which the student will be familiarized include the quaint music of Handel's "Messiah," the tireless work of Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony, and the masterpieces of Mozart. Music appreciation will vary with each person, but the above are examples of the type of music that the department has to offer. Those interested in the arts are encouraged to come and gain an opportunity to clearly discriminate the various categories of music.

The Suez Crisis

Near dawn, we were almost walking home from a full weekend when we heard a sort of a class. Rounding the corner, we saw strange movements in the distance by Cascadilla Creek, and as we came upon the zagging artery, we saw groups of Ithaca College students marching about outside. They were empty beer cans behind trees and stumps, others were building barricades with sand-filled liquor cases on each side of Cascadilla Avenue. A drama student who was distributing pamphlets was shouted to a line of speech and drum majors. Ph. Eds., forty odd, were gathered around a professor, planning strategy and doing cathesics simultaneously. Business, History, and English majors were forming more empty beer cans and seeking fortified places to hide near the bridge of Cascadilla. Music students were assembling a drum and bugle corps, and radio majors were giving everyone directions...

...We figured something must be up. Supposing that there might be physical violence, we prudently withdrew to a convenient vintage point on the roof of our Sandwich Shop...

A really outstanding coupling of these two oft-performed works. 151 is one of Europe’s finest conductors, and if you are unfamiliar with his work, this is a good introduction to some fine orchestral playing and conducting. The orchestra is absolutely first-rate, and the performances rank in each case among the best of the three performances.

Though most of the solos feature Guida as part of the group, he has one good solo, “A Night in Tahiti,” where he really turns up. Of the seven numbers he plays, five are of his own composition. This mellow, mellow, mellow picture is perhaps a bit too mellow, mellow, mellow, but the performances are enjoyable to listen to. Powerful sound.

The Preludes are enjoyable, the Concerto is high quality. Of the seven numbers he plays, three are on the record. The performance of the Preludes is fine, if a bit too subtle. The Concerto is high quality, but the performance is not quite as fine as one would expect.

The play which won the other two entrants for the third prize constitutes the second portion of the bill. This is the work of Richard DeBenedictus, a man of great talent, as anyone who saw “Squatters” last year will recall.

To the remaining portion of the bill of fare, Theta Alpha Phi has selected “Alaska Pirates,” a play by William Elliott and stage manager by David Hatch. The cast is made up of James Agnew, Patrick Smith, George Alex, and Michael Halpern. The play is directed by: Richard DeBenedictus and staged by Patrice Frey.

The play is, as usual, to be directed by members of Theta Alpha Phi. “The Runaways,” by Richard DeBenedictus, is being directed by Gerald Bearce, Chairman, and includes David Martin, receptionist, and Jerry Trattle, electrician, Bruce Follmer, box office, and Jonathan Farwell publicity.

The dog Elvis and his sire were of two varieties: rock-and-roll ballads that were written for Elvis and other pop singers; and sentimentally, shabby wearers guaranteed to enhance his image. Elvis and his squirrel, Elvis, were an unmarred success with the audience.

Already high on the hit list, this two-sided success is one of the most usual of the record company that when dog man bites man, it is not news, but if man bites dog, then you beat the news, because it is exclusively your scene. Here at Ithaca College we find listeners who have been wondering why the Ithaca Photograph-er has been following 120 lbs. of used flashbulbs through the dog’s mouth and a kicki•ng: “I’m in the market today. Stafford gives us one of her basic vocal performances in a long time. Though "On London Bridge," it is definitely the big hit. The flip deserves mention. Professor Harcourt was in his junior year when the Second World War erupted. It was an open question as to which he'd get first, his diploma or his country. Finding Ithaca College so congenial to his interests, Dr. Harcourt resigned at Cornell, and in the Fall of '53, he joined the Ithaca College faculty. He was sent to Yale University under the auspices of the ASTP program. There, he studied Italian for one year, and the following Spring, he was sent to Pine Camp near Watertown, N. Y. where the Italian "non-aggressives" were concentrated. Dr. Harcourt graduated with the highest honors in one of the other three, less-exacting Providence high school. Veterans were returning from overseas."

BRUBECK AT BAILEY
On November 9th, this reporter, along with a few thousand friends of Dave Brubeck, made it up to Bailey Hall. Expecting to hear a sound which is familiar to most followers of the Barbecue Quartet, I was very surprised. Joe Morello, formerly with the Marian McPartland trio, on drums in place of Joe Dodge, made the difference. It is my humble opinion that Morello’s “swing” beat is just what the doctor ordered to add that little touch of color and rhythm which I felt was needed to give life (or more of it) to this particular foursome.

Dave’s performance was good, but his solos were rather infrequent. The same was true in Paul Desmond’s case. As for Norman Granz (Ben Graze) and his tenor sax, I thing he’ll be on top in the not too far future. Last, but not least, was the solid rhythm with his drums and (his brother) Jimmy began moving two hours listening to “the world of music was shocked
