WHO WINS?

The Conservatory MUST have a new Studio building for the 1927-28 School Year. They are crowded now to the limit; and cannot hope to take care of even a normal increase with their present facilities. The question is—Which School Shall Enjoy the New Building?

Each of the constituting schools of the Ithaca Conservatory and Affiliated Schools now has a building of its own save only the Williams School of Expression and the Institution of Public School Music. A contest is now being waged between these two schools for the new building.

It has been decided that the new quarters shall be given to the schools which show the greatest advance registration at the close of the present school year.

It listens well!!

Let's go, folks!!

ENDOWMENT ADVANCE NEWS

An Endowment fund for our Alma Mater! Last year this was presented to us as an idea—a beautiful and wonderful possibility—we were all enthused—an option on a campus site was secured—and then—everybody became immersed in other things and apparently forgot all about it. That is all but a few!

Now—these few have called our attention to it again. It is no longer an idea, it has become a tangible something we must either accept now or drop for all time. To be sure it is still in its infancy—but—thanks to the Infinite Law of Progress, it is this minute a good lively, squalling, kicking infant—that demands immediate attention.

At a faculty meeting last week, when President Williams presented the fact that the option on our campus site would expire March 1st, and asked the faculty what we were to do about it—the answer came in no unmitigable terms—by a faculty subscription of $8,000.00, one-fifth of which would be paid before March 1st, 1927.

The Once-a-week says "Thank God for a loyal faculty—but they don't have a "corner" on all the loyalty by any means"! The student body will have a few things to say! In answer to the momentous question—"Will we get an endowment fund?" This little magazine wants to go on record as being one of the first to chirp with all its might—We WILL.

ADVANCED STUDENT RECITAL

Monday evening a program was given by the advanced students of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music and was shown as a superior student performance.

The main feature of the evening was a Paderewski Palonaise for piano and orchestra, played by Gustav Nelson. Leon Sampaix played the orchestra part on a second piano. Mr. Nelson proved his artistic ability by his really masterly performance of this work.

The violin department was admirably represented by the Misses Ann Zeigler and Olga Rita Barina. Miss Zeigler played Ramonza Andaluza by Sarasate with excellent tonal quality and technical control. Miss Barina played Introduction et Tarantelle by the same composer with a fine show of musical ability.

Rowland Cresswell, cellist, was thoroughly enjoyed in his musicianly rendition of Kol Nidree by Bruch. The Band School was represented by Lester Bascom who gave a cornet solo in an artistic manner. Miss Margaret Daum, soprano, was delightful in two vocal selections; Miss Daum has a high and clear voice.

The last number on the program was one of the most enjoyable, a Nocturne by Scott sung by Mrs. Juanita Lane, a contralto with a voice of unusual quality and beauty. Mrs. Lane was assisted by Nicholas De Nardo, violinist and Rowland Cresswell, cellist, with Bert Rogers Lyon at the piano.

THE GUESTS DEPARTED AT A LATE HOUR

On Tuesday night a reception was given by the Faculty to the Presidents of each organization in the Conservatory. During the earlier part of the evening there were tables devoted to various games, such as bridge, donkey, dominoes, or what have you. An efficient committee made everyone feel welcome, and there was a genial atmosphere of friendliness. After a time we were told to arrange our selves like a well-bred audience. Little did we realize what was in store for us.

A masterpiece in the form of a grand opera in five blossoming acts, "The Nefarious Buck" composed, directed, and read by Marshall Whitehead, unfolded itself before our admiring eyes. The plot was extremely complex. It had to do with the love affair of the Lady Lena Leonora Leona, (Lillian Speakman) and the Duke of Cuspidor, (Elwyn Swarthout). Their happiness was constantly being destroyed by the notorious villain, the Buck of Dukingham (James Kavanaugh), and his accomplice, a ferocious Spaniard (Roland Fernand). The hero's complete downfall was brought about by a slightly scarlet woman (Alice Stane) who inveigled him in her meshes. High spots of the tragedy consisted of the famous scheming arrias of the villain, the classical murder trio, and the beautifully pathetic wavering scenes of the heroine, assisted by her maid-in-waiting, Lady Fricasee (Ethel Hadley). The tragedy ended happily, everyone being satisfactorily killed off. Pillars, trees, and necessities were ably portrayed by Floyd Fox. Curtains of refined rubber were in the persons of Thelma Hingre and Elsie Waters. The entire gamut of emotions was run by the orchestra, given on the piano by Genevieve Elliott. We caught glimpses of the various moods of the uproar, ranging from bugle calls to fountains, with passion and pathos thrown in. The costumes were gorgeous, the stage settings exquisite, and the audience was overcome! Need we say more?

—Dorothy S. Walsh.

THE PROMENADE

A pretty girl with a keen looking escort jumped out of a taxi and entered our I. S. P. E. gym. Along down the street came another pretty girl and still another and another until close to 300 couples were dancing in the Gym at the annual Jr. Prom, which was given Friday evening, Jan. 28, 1927. After every one had seen everyone else, time was taken to glance at the decorations of white and black designs and to listen to the splendid music furnished by the Rainbow Men who were decked out in trick new costumes.

A few specialty dances by Mr. Wm. Sproul livened up the party and made everyone feel more at home. And only a Spotlight Dance was needed to bring on that certain sentimental feeling which never escapes Les Promenades.

But seriously speaking it was a good "Prom" even though we only got a 2:00 o'clock permission, and all we can do is hope for many happy returns.

The Prom committee chairmen were as follows:

General chairmen:

Donald Johnson

Herman Taplansky

Chairman of Invitation committee

Gustav Nelson

Chairman of Decoration and Lighting:

"Kitten" Evans

Floyd Fox

Chairman of Refreshment Committee

Esther Kuntz

Chairman of Program Committee—

Marie Louise Barton

| Grey      | Mc Ewan     |
| Schlabach | Taylor      |
| Anderson  | Phillips    |
| Cannon    |             |

After the service refreshments were enjoyed, and instructions were distributed.

Brothers Nettleton and Gelder were seen on the Six Mile Creek highway Saturday. It is rumored they were running away to forget some girl, but the coldness of the weather drove them back to again partake of Ithaca's food and shelter.

Brother Brigham has attended meetings during his stay in Ithaca.

Brothers, A. Smith, Lynch and Angell have been in town, Brother Angell is now fiddling with insurance. Success ole man.

Feb. 22 is All American night. Watch for the programs.

OUTSIDE GIRLS

Sometimes we feel that folks around this school don't even know the Outside Girls are on the Map, but I'll say we're here with bells on. We have it all over the girls that stay in the dorms too. We never have to stay in to proctor. We don't get our rooms inspected every morning and we never, never, never are on "campus". Of course we are supposed to work and it isn't always fun to stay in with the kids or wash the dinner dishes but just the same we have a good time. We'd like to know the rest of you folks better though. Come and see us when you are out walking. You can't miss us for we're all over town.

BLUE NOTES

(A Weekly Colyum by D. J. S.)

Current Comments

Funny, the fuss people are making over long distance swimming nowadays. Let somebody swim 15 miles and the world hands him a good half million, what with vaudeville contracts, movie offers recommendations for cold cream, and signed articles on "My Amazing Marathon", in the Terrible Truth Magazine. But suppose somebody plays fifteen hours of immortal Bach or Beethoven, without stopping, what does he get? Nothing but callouses and the wrath of his neighbors. This is sure an unaesthetic world.

Georgie: "Any poor fish can swim.

Porgie: "Sure, but not on its Bach!"

Dr. Riegger (frowning at the Brass section) What's the matter with you today, Mr. Blank? All we hear from you is blue notes!"

Mr. Blank (apologetically) It ain't me, Dr. Riegger; its this dam horn! (shaking it) I blow in it nice and sweet, and it comes out rotten."

FANCY FRUITS

We are intensely relieved. We hear that the Adam and Eve theory has been exploded, and that instead of an apple causing all the trouble, it was nothing more or less than a green pear. Now we need no longer conceal our secret penchant for apples; people can't tell us now its the Eve in us cropping out. We never did like pairs, green or otherwise.

(Ed: We heard that a peach had something to do with it.)

GEMS FROM THE PHILOSOPHERS, NO. 5.

"Others say love is your joy. I say, it is your sorrow. For when we are enchanted by love, farewell to all happiness."—Alphonse Daudet.

Aha! Hearken to the words of the wise!

And thus speaking of Philosophers, we are seized with poetic inspiration, to wit:

The Ballad of the Young Philosopher

A little boy swung on a gate,

A bawling mournfully,

All dusty was his tangled pate,

His tears were flowing free.

And as he swung, and howled, and wept,

A lady passing by, so

Startled was that up she stept

To ask what made him cry so.

"My poor, mistreated little man,"

She said, "has someone beat you?

I do not see how people can

So incredibly treat you!"

The lad unscrewed his streaming eyes,

"Oh, no," she heard him say,

"I wanna see Her Flaming Sighs,

At the Happy Hour today,

But Pa and Ma won't let me go,"

And he howled at a car that passed then;

"But when they hear you crying so

Do they let you ?" the lady asked then.

"Sometimes they do; sometimes they don't,"

He said as he nearly fell,

"But whether they will or whether they won't—

It ain't no trouble to yell."

Joy

Oh, boy. Let's keep on agitating for the Endowment Fund!

ALUMNI NEWS

Miss Anita Hall '26 spent several days of last week at the Sigma Alpha Iota House. Miss Hall is at present a pupil of Mr. Richard B. DeYoung, Chicago, Illinois.

Bernice Fitzgerald, a former student, is now teaching in Harrisville, N. Y.

Mrs. Laura Hinkley Snyder of Rochester, N. Y., spent several days in Ithaca recently.

We are very glad to hear that Prof. Cecil Clifford is doing splendid work at the Kidder Institute, Kidder, Mo.

Miss Naomi Sobers '23 is a leading church soloist in Bethlehem, Pa.

Miss Helen Canfield, '25 Port Jervis, N. Y., was a guest at the Junior "Prom" last Friday.

Word has been received that Irva Landis, a Conservatory graduate, was married recently to Dr. Albert Marion Hyde, who is Field Manager of the Radcliff Chautauqua, at Washington, D. C. Mrs. Hyde plans to return to the Conservatory to work for her B. O. E. Degree.

Julia Vail and Howard Foster are also planning to come back for Degree work.

We notice in a Tahlequah, Oklahoma paper that Mrs. W. W. Dawkins, formerly Maude Wheeler, an early graduate of the Williams School of Expression, has been prominent in various programs and recitals this winter.

NOBLE COURT

Noble Court opened the season for 1927, with a formal dinner in honor of Miss Louise D. Prescott, and Miss Doris E. Hunt, on January 16. The dinner was to celebrate their birthdays.

After dinner, speeches were made by the Misses Hunt and Prescott. Then we were all very much surprised when Miss Doris Bennett, our guest for the day, confided to us the news of her engagement to Walter Ralph of her home town.

We owe all the credit of a perfectly splendid party to Mother Noble for letting us use her apartment, and for all the help she gave us.

Only one thing dimmed the day, our President, Miss Martha Harrison was ill and unable to join us.

NEWMAN HALL

If anyone should perchance doubt that Newmanites are studious, let him or her enter Newman some night before exams. at midnight! All last week we burned Mr. Johnston's midnight oil. Consequently this week we can't burn the gas grate.

Pat Peters has returned and looks better than ever. Margie Tompkins had her tonsils removed last week-end, and is improving rapidly. The rest of us are recuperating from intensive study.

Ask Janes Woods if she likes caramel lollipops, and how much it costs to phone to Buffalo. And that's that—

F. Kinnear.
