Kolmin Appointed Assistant Dean

Prof. Frank W. Kolmin of Ithaca College has been appointed to the newly created post of assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The appointment has been announced by President Howard I. Bingham of the College. Kolmin will continue his duties as chairman of the Department of Economics and Business.

Studying for Doctorate

Kolmin completed his undergraduate studies at the School of Business and Commerce, University of Vienna, and earned a masters degree in business administration at New York University. He has been studying toward a Doctor of Philosophy degree at Bryn Mawr.

For four years Kolmin was a member of the Education Department of the British Colonial Government in Tanganyika, East Africa. His work included that of economic control officer.

 Joined College in 1954

He held positions in American industry as an accountant and also was a public accountant. He joined the Ithaca College staff in 1954 as an assistant professor of accounting. He later was promoted to associate professor.

The College of Arts and Sciences at Ithaca College has an enrollment of 65 students. It includes those majoring in liberal arts, business, speech, drama and television-radio. Dr. Warren L. Hickman is dean.

2nd Annual Greek Sing

Scheduled For February

At 8 p.m. Friday, February 5, at the Ithaca Gym, Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will sponsor the annual "All-Greek Sing." All fraternities and sororities on campus are invited to participate, singing with each other the popular fraternity and sorority songs. The objectives of the second annual affair are to promote fraternity and sorority student body support of the fraternal organizations on campus.

The judges are Mrs. Virginia Howard, Dean of Women; Earle W. Clarke, Dean of Students and a representative unaffiliated with Ithaca College. This year Mr. Fred Wilcox of Hickory's Steak House will be the third judge.

The Master of Ceremonies will be Chet Curtis, popular entertainer of campus, and star of WICB's "Showcase." The trophy is awarded by Sigma Alpha Iota to that fraternity which the judges feel presents its event in the most original, musical and entertaining way.

Also, included in the events of the evening will be community singing by the entire attendance with Fred Rock on the piano. Following the competition, there will be a dance with stereo music provided by Alcor.

Production Cast, Crew Selected

Scampers 1960, in the original student musical "Oh, Say Can You See," will be presented by a cast of 55 students. It includes most of the upperclassmen, Jared Brown, who was chosen last spring as "Mr. Scampers" of the year, was selected by the author and director of 1959 Scampers, Fred Wilcox of Hickory's Steak House.

Versatile Jared Brown Co-authors, Directs Scampers Production Second Straight Year

Let's get acquainted with Brown — Jared Brown. This is Jared Brown, a young man of medium height and stature, but by no means of medium ability.

He is the son of the late John Brown, the successful Radio actor of the 1920's and 30's. Jared was born in I.C. in 1945, as a freshman. He interrupted his education for a taste of professional work. He returned in 1957, and will graduate in June. Jared is a Californian by birth and intends to return there next year.

To most of the upperclassmen, Jared would be known as the co-author and director of 1959 Scampers. In the Social Event of the Season, "Oh, Say Can You See," that musical will be featured in February. Jared will be remembered as Mr. Turtuff in Turtuff, the first major production this year.

Those who have been around Scampers Theatre will agree that Jared is a more than capable actor in such major productions as the show's musical, Oh, Say Can You See.

Production Manager, Bernie Ruttenburg, also appointed by Scampers, has since then worked tirelessly at the many jobs involved in the preparation of Oh, Say Can You See.

Sign of Progress

With the announcement this past week of Professor Frank W. Kolmin being named to the new position of Assistant Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Ithaca College took one "giant step" forward in the eyes of the student body.

Any undergraduate student having anything to do with the Dean's office in the past could have related the need for additional administrative help in that office.

Literally, for years, there has been more work than people to do, in the growing Arts and Science department, but miraculously, the work always seemed to get done.

With the addition of Dr. Kolmin as Assistant Dean, it looks as if the Dean's office will be able to take on a new, well deserved, appearance.

The staff of The Ithacan would like to congratulate Dr. Kolmin on his appointment, and extend its wish for success in the future.

Cut System

In the past few weeks, The ITHACAN has carried a number of editorials concerning the cut system. It is about time someone advanced a plan rather than sit back and toss around a lot of words about the benefits or non-benefits of unlimited cuts.

While in the past there has been a policy of favoring unlimited cuts, I believe that most people would agree that a limited cut system is perhaps too radical and is pushing things a bit too far for Ithaca College.

I propose, therefore, that the present cut system remain as is for all Freshmen and Sophomores, with the exception that Sophomores on the Dean's list be given unlimited cuts. Also, all Juniors and Seniors should be allowed unlimited cuts, with the exception of students on academic probation.

The Loyalty Oath

In the past few months we've heard many comments about the so-called "loyalty oath" provision of the National Education Defense Act. (This is the act of Congress which established the now famous federal loan program to certain colleges around the country, including the state colleges in Ithaca.)

Since we are presently replying to objections to this program, and since we happen to know that many other Ithaca College students are taking advantage of this program, we decided to do a little research into the matter.

Last month a small group in the mail a pamphlet entitled "Worse Than Futile". It was published by the undergraduate paper at Harvard University, the "Crimson". It presented the objections to the "loyalty oath" provision. It also included a statement written by Senator John Kennedy.

The pamphlet was well written and contained an altogether concerning argument that the NDEA, in its present form, is contrary to the spirit of academic freedom in this country.

Here are some of the arguments presented in the pamphlet:

1) The "loyalty oath" provision of the NDEA is the so-called "loyalty oath" provision. Critics named the "loyalty oath" provision of the NDEA that college students are being singled out as a group which must sign a loyalty oath. To encourage the fact that college students should be required to sign an oath is not their country by signing an oath. They dislike the idea of students having their loyalty questioned as a group. They say that, in effect, students who are required to do so are being discriminated against.

2) The particularly objectionable to the "loyalty oath" is an alligation, in principle, to the disclaimer affidavit section of the oath. That section states that a student is not eligible to receive money under the NDEA unless he is "an executed and filled with the commissioner an affidavit that he does not believe in, and is not a member of and does not support any organization in the United States Government by force or violence, or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods."

This was the provision that was denounced by certain colleges around the country who refused to participate in the NDEA program. The argument was that the student himself is the administrator of all funds and decisions and how they will be disposed of. It was the right to refuse to participate in the program that was important. Many of the colleges who refused to participate in the NDEA program are: Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Brown, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, Amherst, and Reed, and recently, Oberlin, Colgate and Yale.

These colleges said, in effect, that by accepting the principle of such an oath they would be compromises their belief in the tradition of academic freedom and independence of thought in higher education. They rejected the "loyalty oath" because it is an affidavit that "believes" (meaning a privately held conviction) in an organization or in the "beliefs" of that organization was grounds for being labeled subversive and senile.

For clarification: There is a great difference here between the private "belief" of an individual in an organization and an organization itself which "believes" in the principles of the present government by force and violence. In other words, you may believe in the principles of the communist party in the privacy of your home, but not actively practice this belief in any way as to force belief in the United States Government in obedience to the "beliefs" of the Supreme Court has ruled as subversive those groups whose "beliefs" state that they aim for the overthrow of the present American Government. But has never stated that mere "belief" by an individual in the rightness of that aim is grounds for being labeled subversive or senile.

1) Critics also state that the loyalty oath could never be an actual practice, serve any useful purpose and could not be effective. The simple reason for this is that if communists, if they were anti-communist, would not hesitate to lie about their party affiliations. In reality, the oath would only make those people who are communists feel under the act. On the other hand, those students who would have to sign the oath would, in many cases, resent having their loyalty to the country questioned by signing an oath.

The secretary of the American Association of University Professors, William P. Fidler, summed up most of the objections to the loyalty oath when testifying before a congressional committee last year. Here are his objections:

1) First, our belief that it is a denial of the principle of a person who may influence upon the first amendment protection of an organization or association; third, our repudiation against test oaths of any kind; fourth, our objection as educators to being singled out and being required to take an oath. Obviously, this question of the "loyalty oath" goes deeper in its implications to American life than most of us who are recipients of federal grants, at first tend to realize. The issue involved here is one of the most basic in American constitutional democracy: namely, the protection and preservation of civil liberties which pressure for increased efficiency in labeling and uncovering enmities are the constitutional guarantees. There is much to be said for each side.

Bombers Gain Revenge Over Cortland State

Atone for Loss in Opener; Defeat Red Dragons by 78-72 by Jim Aversa

Sweet revenge was had last Thursday night at Boynton Gym as the IC Cagers turned the basketball tables on their only previous conqueror, Cortland State, 78-72.

The closely-contested battle saw the lead change hands seven times with IC enjoying its biggest margin (9 pts) just seconds before the final whistle.

Cortland Leads Briefly

The teams exchanged goals throughout the first half, and after 18 minutes had elapsed Cortland held a slim 24-22 lead. Ken Biesis, Phil Leibrock and Paul Mueller hit with consecutive IC tries to put the locals out front by four, but Cortland's Lee Neilson wasn't to be outdone as he countered with a neat 3-point effort. Mueller and Leibrock added more, with less than a minute remaining in the half and Murray capped the scoring for the visitors as IC reached the rest period with a not too comfortable 32-30 edge.

Wambold put the Bombers ahead with 4 quick points, and Leibrock and Slonis added fouls, and the Bombers were ahead to stay. The final moments of the contest found the Dragons and Condors close the gap to five, but Leibrock's foul shooting accuracy (15-12) could not be suppressed and the Bombers had their 6th consecutive victory of the season, 78-72.

Frosh Win

In the preliminary, Paul Costabile led the Freshmen team to its 6th win as it drubbed the Condors, 90-70. Gregorka and Hughes contributed 19 and 17 pts. respectively.

Paul Mueller is all alone for a 2-pointer against Cortland. Bombers were game, 78-72. Other Ithaca player in background is sophomore Jim Ruskin.

College Matmen Defeat Cortland

College Matmen, Defeat Cortland by Pete Peterson

After a short layoff for exams, the Ithaca College mat squad made the trip to Lock Haven, Pa., on Feb. 3, for a meet with the always powerful Lock Haven State Teacher's College Matmen.

The Bombers upped their season's record to 5 wins, 2 losses with a resounding 27-3 victory over arch-rival Cortland last Thursday.

Ithaca jumped off to a quick 9-0 lead at 138-lb. Joe Sangiorgi, 130-lb. Jim Valentine, and 137-lb. Dick Bona came up with decisions over their respective opponents.

Bob Ricks on a 9-0 decision.

Canough Wins Again

After Larry Cook, a Red Dragon 147-pounder, picked up Ithaca's only points of the afternoon with a decision over Ithaca's Gary Hatch, Weldy Canough kept Cortland's only points of the afternoon intact, scoring, and Cortland's Bill Winkly in the unlimited class, pinning the visiting heavy in the second period and quickly pinned the Cortlander, assuring the Ithacans of the victory in the meet.

Endrebons Gains Forefeit

The quick temper of the Red Dragons' 177-pounder, Hayes Overcash, gave Paul Endrebons of Ithaca a 5-point forefeit decision in the following match.

Jack Stanbro, formerly a Cortlander himself, finished off the scoring, and Cortland's Bill Winkly in the unlimited class, pinning the visiting heavyweight in the second period, making the final score 27-3.

The Cortland J.V. wrestlers picked up the only consolation for the visiting Red Dragons sports aggregations last Thursday, as they hung a 23-13 defeat on the I.C. frosh grapplers.

Kolmin Heads Africa Study Abroad Program
by Leida Kiosonkele

Once again the Ithaca College graduate studies department under the directorship of Dr. William Grimshaw announces another "Study Abroad" program—in Africa this summer.

This program leads the study group through the Central and East African countries of Belgium Congo, Tanganyika, Kenya, and Uganda. It is designed for teachers and mature students of economics, sociology and related fields in order to allow the gathering of first-hand data and information and the exercise of independent study and research.

Kolmin to Supervise

The program will be supervised by Professor Frank W. Kolmin, Chairman of the Department of Economics and Business at Ithaca College. Mr. Kolmin, who comes from Austria, studied at the University of Vienna, Austria, for his undergraduate studies. He later received his M.B.A. degree from the Graduate School of Business Administration of New York University. Professor Kolmin has been a member of the staff at Ithaca College since 1954, and is completing his doctoral work in economics at the Maxwell Graduate School, Syracuse University.

Ex-Economic Officer

Professor Kolmin, who was in Africa for over four years, is well fitted for the leadership of this study group. From 1943-45 he served as Economic Officer in the Education Department of the Tanganyika Government. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kolmin can speak and write Serikat, the trade language of East Africa, fluently.

The "Study Abroad" program scheduled for Africa is probably the most colorful. Its variation is not likely to be equaled on any continent. Its wild life is especially a treat. This is the Africa that contrasts its city skyscrapers to its village mud huts, its rats and bugs to elephants and lions.

The program is also unique in that it is a two-in-one tour as the group will be visiting two continents. The itinerary shows departure from Idlewild International Airport for Brussels on July 4th.

Three Day Stop

This hop to the European continent, especially to Brussels the seat of last year's World Fair, is but one of many experiences planned.

A stay of three days together with a whole day field trip to Ghent and Brussels is planned while in Brussels.

July 8, following a briefing session with representatives from the Belgium Congo, the group will fly via Sabena Airlines to Leopoldville, the twin city of the Congo Republic.

To Visit Congo

This is the Congo that has dominated the news for the latter part of last year and has recently boomed to the young monarch "Independence for Congo" more than it did "Viva Rex Boudoulus". Congo's modern cities are a revelation to behold.

July 10, the group will fly to Nairobi, capital of Kenya, the pot of the fiery Mau Mau activities, will be found in a different light—one of a constitutional struggle for self rule. Here, a lot of sightseeing will be punctuated by lectures and orientations given by the Kenya Government Officials.

To Visit Kampala

July 20, the group will motor to Kampala, the commercial capital of Uganda. Enroute $70 million hydro-electric dam, probably the largest on the Nile, and one of the largest in the whole of Africa, will be seen.

While in Kampala lectures on economic and political changes will be given at Makerere College, the University College of East Africa affiliated with the London University of England.

July 22, the group will board a steamer on Lake Victoria for the
