Cosmopolitan Opera Company Well Received

Humperdinck’s "Hansel Und Gretel" and Bizet’s "Carmen" impressed a large audience last night at the"Cosmopolitan" Opera House. The orchestra was under the direction of Mr. Van Dusen and the vocal ensemble was directed by Mr. Mitchell. The performance was well recognized by the public and the audience was unanimous in its appreciation of the work.

THE ITHACAN:
OFFICIAL Publication of the Students of Ithaca College

VOLUME II

[Single Copy Price $1.00]

[Yearly subscription, delivered $2.00]

NUMBER 15

THE ITHACAN:
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1932

Bert Rogers Lyon To Conduct Chorus In Presentation Of Oratorio On Sunday Evening

"The Beatitudes" by Cesar Frank will be presented on Sunday evening in Congregational Church by student Chorus. Directed by Bert Rogers Lyon, it will be under the auspices of the Student Council and Faulty Council. The choral ensemble will be conducted by Mr. Lyon and will be supported by a large orchestra. The performance will be presented in the evening and is expected to be a notable event in the musical life of the college.

\[Continued on page four\]

THE ITHACAN:
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1932

student of cosmetology who has taken the classes in the school has a special significance.

\[Continued on page four\]
THE ITHACAN: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1932

Sensless Sermons
An Ithaca Feature
Sonny Durham

MUCH ADO ABOUT PRACTICALLY NOTHING

As far as I can see (which isn't too far, right at the present day), the chances are that eat a big meal at

Some tea; there will be other forms of entertainment-which we ought to know, comes the time for a last fling before the school year.

The upperclassmen might also profit by a correscoration has been made. Publicity from the National Broad-

ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK; and musical features as the

The charge that this generation's child is losing his ap-

The mere knowledge of a way to avoid the worry of tomorrow and the costs that are charged on it... It's

The old adage: "He's not much of a man if he can't have a little fun.

"If he'd spend as much time as we do at the taproom he might learn something.

CORNET SOLOIST
GIVES FEW HINTS

(Continued from page 4)

CORNET SOLOIST
GIVES FEW HINTS FOR PERFORMERS

at 7 p.m. By the time the concert starts the food will all be digested and you have the benefit of all the food you

C#," "D"

In my opinion, the music isn't at all necessary. It's not for that reason that I four-stroke meter, and the piece has been

Three years ago when I first got that job I

When Will Wanting

FRUITS

WAFERS

CHEESE

CIGARETTES

PICKLES

OLIVES

Go To...

E. H. Wanker

The Grocer

Dreadkona's re-adapted

The president's orders: "We have to be orderly and not be

It becomes easier with each

Mr. Phillips, the president, said that the concert will be

If you have a way out, you will not be worried about it and the chances are that you will be

The mere knowledge of a way to avoid the worry of tomorrow and the costs that are charged on it... It's

"If he'd spend as much time as we do at the taproom he might learn something.

It makes me wonder why; the proof-reader makes the fingering more difficult,

All in all will not

If you have a way out, you will not be worried about it and the chances are that you will be

The mere knowledge of a way to avoid the worry of tomorrow and the costs that are charged on it... It's

We can't spend our good time that is intended for work or real rest and sleep punching the "every" up and down on the green cloth or "knocking "em down" and expect any bargain rates from nature on our foolishness.

Nature has a most complete system of bookkeeping—she has an account opened for every individual when he comes into this world—and altho she sometimes allows a fellow to stretch his credit to the limit, Nature always exacts full payment and final settlement from all of us, alike.

Nature's rates for excessive indulgence in all things are very high. Her price is measured in health, mental alertness, endurance, loyalty, faith, hope and love—not in dollars.

Only by strict adherence to the best that is within us and by keeping faith with our own consciences, can we hope to keep ourselves "out of the red" in Nature's scheme of things.

This is the basis of which this man's ship is run. We do not mean to stop practicing our Religious Beliefs: first and foremost...
The ITHACAN: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1932

Phi Epsilon Kappa
Gill Coolard

Not much to write about this week. The brothers are all studying for the final exams next week. Good luck to all. Last week it looked as if the house was going to be evicted, but the "House of Soror" as the brothers are all working very closely together, is "Robin Hood."

Phi Delta Pi and Phi Epsilon Kappa are sponsoring a tea dance during Junior Week at the Phi Epsilon Kappa house, and we hope to have many of you come to see us all dance.

Some of the brothers attended the Vesper services at the Phi Mu Alpha Sunday afternoon.

Kappa Gamma Psi
Sunny Deshler

You have probably noted by this time that we are held in the same theorem of calculus, or perhaps I should say theories. If it isn’t one thing, it’s something else.

Perhaps it is a little late but we wish to offer congratulations to Alpha Sigma Chi on their recent achievement in becoming affiliated with Delta Psi Kappa.

And it is probably a little late to begin studying too, but the boys seem to be going for that in a big way—too bad there isn’t a course in astronomy offered, I know there are a few fellows who feel that first hand knowledge picked up here, there, and everywhere can be picked up by this method.

The occupants of the third floor front porch don’t seem to worry very much about which line I can’t name at the present writing, but it is said that another plan of salvation might be called it, but that might call it misleadership. The Kappa Gamma string quartet is now going in for club entertainment. With and without their own music. They recently played at the Masonic Temple for an evening program there.

Somebody tells the writer that they had a Victoria dance at our house Friday night, and the information came too late, and we have always wanted to see a Victoria dance, even if it is first saw a bow fly—damn clever, those Chooze. I suppose that just one of Life’s little disappointments next to Niagara Falls and the Grand Canyon.

Very smart opera on the hill the first night of the week, provided you could afford it.

We hope you all (just can’t get away from the Mason-Dixon accretion) are contemplating a grand time the week after exams. The dance will prove quite entertaining, you may be assured, even if you can’t get your hat on next morning in time for school.

Initial initiation was held Monday evening January 25. Formal dinner was at the Sigma Chi house that night. Twelve men, were given the ritual and are now members of Kappa Gamma Psi.

Phi Delta Pi
Catherine Cronin

On Monday afternoon the Phi Delta girls received an invitation to join Mother Goose in Fairchild and to bring their friends, on one condition, that all cats be laid aside.

The date was set for Wednesday evening. We asked Grace McNeil, Pauline Basert, Marion Kilpen, Sylvia Hauzer, and Dorothy Farrington to come in with us to visit Mother Goose.

As we were awaiting the arrival of the golden chalice pulled by the six white horses, I heard into resounding of the days, when all of us were such good friends at Mother Goose —and I realized just now it was so long since we had called upon her. While we were talking, a transmission seemed to take place and we found ourselves in a strange land—but old landmarks gave us a hint as to our locality—which of course was Fairchild. Why to be sure, there was Mother Goose ready to take us into all her arms; and there

TRENDING, KING OF

The New Stirling Model
SMITH-CORONA

In black, green, maroon $65 Sterling ($67.50) (sold for $125)

This new Stirling Model brings you dozens of improvements at no increase. Complete with platen, never again shift and the new "piano key" action. Pick it up—it’s in a portable width and size. Type it on its "standard" in touch and feel and quality. It’s what YOU need in a portable writing appliance.

SPORTS SHOP, Second Floor

Junior Week Means a Round of Formal Gayness
Men’s Arrow Hawk Dress Shoes, 3.50

Arrows’ latest dress shoe bears many new features—it has an open back, roped toe, and is made in the finest French paper. The heel collar is correct and comfortable.

Dress Shoes, $7

Ties, $1

Tux and white tie

Dress Ties, $1

For Comfort

Rothschild’s

Department Store

STORAGE

DEAN OF ITHACA, INC.

PROM

HEADCAMER STORE

110 North Aurora Street

Furs Furs Furs DAILY SERVICE

The Monarch Restaurant

New delicious, quick, efficient service, and reasonable rates make for the popularity of Ithaca’s favorite restaurant.

Watch

For All Occasions Response of "Hansel and Grett

DEAN OF ITHACA, INC.

DEAN OF ITHACA, INC.

401-409 East State Street

Dial 2551 . . . ITHACA, N. Y.

B U S S E S F O R C H A R T E R

THE NORTH SIDE PHARMACY

507 N. Cayuga St.

Sundays put up in Individual Dishes take out.

THE NORTH SIDE PHARMACY

507 N. Cayuga St.
Bert L. Ryan

GIVE GRATUITOUS
IN LOCAL CHURCH

(Continued from page one)

1. Blessed are you in spirit, for there is the Kingdom of Heaven.

2. The first Beatitude opens with an enigmatic chorus of angelsinging in praise of riches and pleasures:

"All the wealth of the Earth is our desire!"

To this the celestial voices softly respond:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?"

The Voice of Christ declares that he who trusts in the earth will perish from worldly pride; the celestial voices take up the theme, and in a moving and uplifting chorus, bring to heaven the Holy Names of Jesus, Mary, and Joseph. Blessed are he in whose grace will rise to the heavens of the Blessed Mother.

3. In this first Beatitude, Jesus summons all by a subject, first sung by the Angel of Death, and then by the altos, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"Blessed be the pure in heart and humble in spirit, for they shall see aliens."

The Angel of Death summons all be-those who are persecuted for righteousness sake are heirs of the Kingdom of Heaven.

The eight Beatitude brings an end to the heavenly chorus as he who hurls superfluous at Christ is called to repent. It is the chorus of the heavenly choir, heard singing, invocating Eternal Justice with unshakeable faith.

"All those who have been the best of the righteous, and with ringing voice, in the great assembly in the heavens, give praise to the kingdom of heaven."

The celestial choirs are arrayed in such a manner: (foll. Ango, Thelma Cautin, Rolla Coral, Thelma Cautin, Rolla Coral, Edna Furr, Gladys Reiner, Josephine Jacuzzo, Catherine Krusa, Marian Taber, Alma Wilcox, FareTo the BOS Us of Ears, etc.

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.

tissimo, expressive of utter hopelessness:

"When our hearts are oppressed in the midst of our troubles and despair without measure that filled with weariness, you, oh, where is your blessedness?

"When death's cry is heard! Give me help everlasting."

Our sacred song bears ever brightly.

"We love not, we deny our ears, and yet we wish more helpfully."

"This voice of Christ proclaims the same message of the Gospel of the New Testament.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The fourth Beatitude is given in a solemn and crushing voice: "You are the only enterpriser of the soul's desire, to ascend to heaven with a pure heart.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Blessed are they that are the child of God, for they shall be comforted.

The fifth Beatitude opens with a lament by pagan and Jewish women who mourn their departed God. Philarites unite in a quartet of vain self-transcendence. The choral arrangement is so vast as to fill the heavens with a single sound, a"n joyful and serene theme.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The second Beatitude is introduced by a chorus, first sung by the al.
