The Forensic Association of Ithaca College this week announced the establishment of the Robert Barnett Award to be given annually to the outstanding member of the Forensic Association.

Each year's recipient will receive a silver plate and have his name engraved on a plaque which will remain at the College.

Miss Barnett, head of the Speech division of the Speech and Drama Department, has been teaching at Ithaca College for the last 16 years. She holds the rank of Professor.

The award announcement said in part: "The Forensic Association is pleased that it can make an award in the name of Miss Barnett. This can be only a token of what she has meant to both past and present members of the student body."

Dance Recital

Cornea To Perform In Theater Saturday

Ithaca College dance instructor Vergo Cornea will perform a dance recital Saturday, March 16, at 8:15 p.m. in the Ithaca College Theater. All seats will be reserved at 1.5 per person.

This program will present the dancer in a recital prior to his Carnegie Hall performances in New York on March 26th.

Mr. Cornea is a.getElementsByClassName() Knox, a ballet dancer, studied in several European ballet schools and was a master dancer of German, and a Hirono ballet master. His name came to Ithaca College in 1959.

Also, Mr. Cornea and Don Craig plan to present an opera-ballet, "The Unborn, the Corone, and the Mandrills," by Menotti, on the 19th and 20th of May in the College Theater.

"Guys and Dolls" Selected As Annual Spring Musical

The Ithaca College Drama Department will present "Guys and Dolls" as its Annual Spring Musical to be performed April 24 through 29.

The Damon Runyon play will be directed by Robert G. Bardwell, Robert Davis will be the musical director and Vergo Cornea, the choreographer.

The romantic female lead will feature Joyce Olsen as Sarah Brown. The male part of Sky Masterson has not yet been determined.

Charles Rosolino as Nathan Detroit, Jean Consuela as Simpkins, and Craig McNich as Harry the Horse. The play, a musical version of a farce, involving the singers and dancers, went into rehearsals this week.

College PE Dept.
To Present Dance Clinic April 4

The Ithaca College Physical Education Department will present a dance clinic on April 7 from 4 to 6 p.m. The clinic will be conducted by a faculty I.C. student and instructor, Mr. Arthur Erwin, the former State Kinesiology chief, and Arthur C. Erwin.

The clinic, for all Physical Education majors, with Sophomore students participating, will be arranged by Dr. Edward J. Meaten, Assistant Professor of Health and Physical Education.

Mrs. Erwin received a B.S. at Ithaca, and joined the College teaching staff in 1936, when I.C. was known as the Ithaca Conservatory of Music. She left in 1944 to marry Mr. Erwin, Athletic Director and Coach of Eastern High School, Northport. Her husband has since retired from teaching and the couple are now working as a dance instruction team.

The Erwins are well known in the dance world, with their specialized techniques, with the students being a constant flow.
Curtain Call!

Last week, the Ithaca College Drama Department presented "The Rainmaker," one of its finest productions in recent years. As usual the Wednesday and Thursday evening performances played to a full house, whereas the Friday and Saturday matinees were sparsely attended. Some of the individual performances were superb and deserved much more audience recognition than a single company curtain. We of the Ithacan believe that in future curtain calls, audience recognition should be given an opportunity to express its appreciation for such convincing portrayals and that the actors and actresses be granted their much-deserved awards—curtain calls.

Guest Editorial

We in the United States and all peoples of the world are being faced with a problem that is growing in scope with every passing day. The human race is polluting itself. By allowing inherent physical and mental deficiencies to reproduce their own kind, society is burdened with a group of second-class citizens who are incapable of reproducing any human of a higher intelligence.

I feel this serious and touchy problem must be solved by far thinking individuals. I, in all respect, suggest the enactment of a Federal law making the sterilization of all carriers of definitely transferable mental and physical deficiencies, mandatory. Any law of this sort would of course have to be very strict and humane regulations governing enactment. We must not look at our generation only, but must look at the good to future generations as well.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:
I would like to inquire as to the whereabouts of the column "Letters To The Editor."
I think that the banishment of this column was detrimental to the I.C. readers. Personally, I feel that every student has a right to comment upon and ask questions of this paper. As editor here at Ithaca College, for better understanding between student and faculty or public, I will try to improve this column. For one enjoyed reading "Letters To The Editor."

George Halliday

Dear Editor:
Mr. Canten's editorial in the March 6 issue of The Ithacan entitled "Red China Controversy." I have, however, (referring to HUAC investigations of Wilkinson was clear-cut; his criticism is moving toward socialism more and more each day. The President must submit that this is a reflection of the actual facts.

The "dictionary defines socialism as any plan to create a political or collective ownership of the main institutions of wealth production (land, means of transportation and communications, mines, oil and gas fields, and modern machinery) and to democratic management of the industries by the communities for the benefit of the members."

The definition seems to exclude the unemployment insurance law, public expenditures on farm support, subsidies to industry, nationalization of smaller farms and incomes and a greater need for welfare, because as described, Congress can note that there are three big institutions in the United States, namely, big business, big government, and big labor. One of the main contributions to the market system are checks and balances, thus preventing overall control of the economy by any single one. If we the United States not only is not a socialist state, but in fact has been Socialistic From the start.

If we were to have Socialism in the United States, we would have to throw the people to work which is necessary, with the loss of force of business and labor. Congress could pass legislation as necessary to be able to have Socialism. If we, for example, Mr. Canten, do actually believe that a much more progressive tax law be to office if they possessed socialist beliefs. For one, I can't help but look at the Congressional opposition to the present economic situation in America. It is thus not surprising that many people view these programs as socialistic, we would like to point out that such programs have helped capitalism enterprises in America.

Without the unemployment, welfare and farm support payments, there would be a decline in the demand for consumer goods, which would cause the industries to cut back production, reducing the work force to maintain a high unemployment level. Meanwhile, the public is in the dark and is not aware of the true state of the economy. If, however, we look at the Congressional opposition to the present economic situation in America, it is apparent that many people view these programs as socialistic. In our country, the government, in its present form, could do much more to help the poor and the unemployed. The only thing that we need to do is to set up a system that would be more effective in distributing the wealth to those who need it most. Millions of dollars are spent each year on welfare programs, yet the poor are still left in poverty. It is time that we take action and implement a system that will truly benefit the poor and the unemployed. It is only through a system that promotes social justice and equality that we can truly create a better society for all Americans.

"The Bad Seed"

Maxwell Anderson's THE BAD SEED opened this Wednesday at the Ithaca College Theatre to a small, but most receptive audience.

Time as his focal point, the notion that herefore can and does play a major role in the character of a child. Anderson has swept aside his poetic past to engage in the realistic dramaturgy of the novel by William March. Ithaca Penmark is the object of Anderson's study and, as the play reaches its climax, we learn that this 11-year-old innocent has brutally murdered three people, and Joanathan Joanathan as Miss Penmark, with the exception of Bob Norek, marking their first solo in a major production. I group them together not because they were unimportant but because they were complementary. The three are highly skilled and accomplished comedians. Barbara Campbell was an excellent Christine, giving her character warmth and sincerity, never a false or jarring note. In many ways, Christine is comparable to Reverend Hale in Arthur Miller's The Crucible. Her mood was one of quiet, measured determination, sometimes giving her a rather coy, almost childlike quality.

In 1953, 425 thousand new businesses opened, marking the start of a new era in the economy. The net profit for all industries amounts to $71 billion in 1959, partnerships $8 billion. During the period from 1933 to 1957, the total amount invested rose from $39.5 billion to $232 billion. Also, the net working capital increased from $1 billion to $8 billion. Further, we cannot quantize the advancement of businesses. The steady advance of private enterprise since the "New Deal" operations has added to our concept that private enterprise, not government, is the basic engine of economic growth.

In the next few weeks, Elsa F. Bay, School of Music faculty will have an opportunity to curtail investment and promote economies to scale. This is a more rewarding production, although the mood is one of pleasant contrast to our current mood of transportation, low, allowing businesses to lower their costs of production and increase the demand for operations. The steady advance of private investment since the "New Deal" operations has added to our concept that private enterprise, not government, is the basic engine of economic growth. We will agree that the TVA project is one which may appear to be of social and political nature, but this project too was expensive to be undertaken by private enterprise. Adam Smith, in writing his Wealth of Nations, justified such governmental expenditures as early as 1776. Added to this, we cannot quantify the advancement of private investment, gross private domestic product rose from 1949 to 1959, and the national income increased from $45 billion in 1929 to $72 billion in 1959. We will acknowledge that the TVA project is one which may appear to be of social and political nature, but this project too was expensive to be undertaken by private enterprise. Adam Smith, in writing his Wealth of Nations, justified such governmental expenditures as early as 1776. Added to this, we cannot quantify the advancement of private investment, gross private domestic product rose from 1949 to 1959, and the national income increased from $45 billion in 1929 to $72 billion in 1959.

The dramatic weight, per se, of the show is carried by Christine Penmark. She is such a woman, and her range will improve as her love affair with the third person. Since the TVA project is one which may appear to be of social and political nature, but this project too was expensive to be undertaken by private enterprise. Adam Smith, in writing his Wealth of Nations, justified such governmental expenditures as early as 1776. COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND NSA CONVENTION

Five Ithaca College Student Council representatives attended the Pan-African regional conference of the United States National Student Association at Rutgers University during the weekend of Feb. 17-19.

The purpose of the conference was to study the relationship between the campus community and the Federal government.

The conference will publish the reports of the representatives, the following two articles were submitted by representatives Carol Schindler and Jere Douglass.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Submitted by Carol Schindler

In recent years, discrimination on campuses has been a much discussed problem. Fraternities, apartments, and local establishments are the three areas in which this discrimination is most prominent.

A great number of facilities on college campuses not only discriminate against religious groups, but also will not permit Negro men to become members. However, there are a few fraternities which admit the Negro solely on his merit and character.

In many communities landlords will not permit Negro students to rent apartments. Therefore, the white students are given the more convenient apartments near the college. Certain universities have aided the Negro students in locating suitable housing. For example, the University of Pennsylvania attached stickers to those apartments which had been approved. This aided the Negro by indicating to them which houses would be available to them. But the Negro's freedom is still limited because he is restricted, once again, to specific establishments.

The third problem area is the local establishments. There have been many instances in the South where a group of Negroes sat at a lunch counter requesting equal service. In February, 1960, four students from a Negro college sat down at a lunch counter at a local store. Negro students in other Southern communities soon followed this example. In some cases Negroes were denied service completely; in others, they were served only if they stood at a part of the counter where there were no seats.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has worked to advance the economic, social, and political status of the Negro. Other groups similar to the Ithaca College Committee Against Segregation are also working to further the cause of the Negro.

OPERATION ABDUCTION

Submitted by Jere Douglass

An incredibly slanted film entitled Operation Abduction was shown in the deluxe theater. The film asserts that the hundreds of students who were whipped into an uncontrollable riot in San Francisco in May of 1966 were not enraged over the activities ofHUAC, but rather that the students had come under the influence of the Communist party.

The film was not as significant in the question and answer period which followed. Fulton Lewis III, who is the film's narrator, and Frank Wilkinson, whom he has been accused of being a communist, were on hand to answer the questions.

The first question asked of Mr. Lewis was, "What is an Un-American?" He replied that the committee investigated people who supposedly participate in Communist or other "subversive activities on American soil." Mr. Wilkinson felt that the term was undefinable. He said, "All ideas must be heard." In the United States, he backed up his argument with the United States Supreme Court decision in the United States vs. Watkins case.

Mr. Lewis was asked if there is any documented evidence that Frank Wilkinson is a Communist. His answer was that Anna Belle Snyder, an avowed Communist, testified under oath that she attended Communist Party meetings with Wilkinson. Lewis stated, "Frank Wilkinson is an agent of the Communist party." Wilkinson's answer to the question started with the charge that HUAC violates the First Amendment. He stated, "I refuse to answer them, I refuse to answer them now because of this basic challenge." He then went on to state that he had only one contact with Mrs. Snyder, and that when he was asked to fulfill a speaking position, "She was paid an employee of the F.B.I." He also stated that she may sue him for libel, and he will prove that she was lying.
