Seventh Annual Spring Festival
To Host 43 Centralized Schools

On Friday and Saturday, May 6-7, Ithaca College will host students attending the 1960 Spring Music Festival. Forty-three centralized schools will be represented at this Seventh Annual Festival, sponsored by the Student Chapter of Music Educators National Conference.

Visiting students will participate in instrumental and vocal ensembles, as well as presenting solo performances. Each performance will be judged and rated. Rating forms will be returned to the students and their instructors.

Two Fold Purpose

The Music Festival has a two-fold purpose. Public school students are given an opportunity to perform before an audience and be evaluated by qualified judges. Also, all music students at Ithaca College will be afforded an opportunity to serve in the organization and administration of the Festival. Success will be assured if the festival is run as a cooperative venture.

Official hosts for the Festival are Dr. Howard I. Dillingham, Dr. Craig McFerrin, and members of the Music School faculty. The Official New York State School Music Association representative to the Festival is Mr. Robert Hammond of Johnson City.

Pottington is Chairman

Faculty advisors for the Festival are Mrs. Celia M. Siewert and Mrs. Helen R. Wickstrom. Student-Chairman is David Pottington, with Larry Goodfellow serving as Assistant Chairman. Other students on the planning committee are Barry Brooks, Irene Pumansky, J. Neil Consalvi, Fred Boch, Carol Karl, and Mary Ann Hightower.

Mary E. Campbell

Appointed Faculty Advisor of Oracle

Miss Mary E. Campbell, librarian at Ithaca College, has been appointed faculty advisor of Oracle, senior honorary society. She succeeds Mrs. Helen R. Hild, associate advisor of the society.

VARSITY TRACK TEAM TO MEET ALFRED MAY 10

Getting off to a good start in defeating three upstate colleges, the Ithaca College varsity track team met the Alfred squad at Alfred Saturday afternoon, May 7.

In front of a large Ithaca College student crowd, the Bombers took on the visiting New York State College at Buffalo and the Alfred University track and field teams.

Ithaca had its first home meet in the 1959-60 year. This game, which was adopted as the "High Society," will be played May 14-21 in I.C.'s Coliseum Theater.

The plot centers around Tracy Lord (Barbara Gresen), a high society divorcée who is planning her marriage to a high society gentleman, George Kittredge (John McCabe). All goes well until her ex-husband Dexter Haven (Roger Ahrens) returns to try and win her back.

While this is going on, Tracy's dad is trying to divert the attention of two reporters for a confidential magazine to Tracy's up coming wedding and away from his "outside family interests." When these two reporters, Liz Linnb and Mike Connor (Jared Brown) are introduced to the family the plot begins.

"Why Must You See The Dean?"

During the school year, I.C. students are advised to see the Dean of their college, either Arrond, Sciences, Music, or Phy. Ed. concerning any academic problems or questions they may have. However, getting to see the Dean of their school is next to the impossible. On entering the Dean's office, a student is confronted with the Dean's secretary who immediately asks "Why must you see the Dean!?" No answer seems to be the right answer. View the student's politely ushered out of the office with a few choice words, "he's busy," "That's not that important," or just plain "no." Thus the student leaves the office knowing no more than when he entered a few minutes before.

A Job Well Done

Today, the "Ten Top Seniors" of the graduating class of Ithaca College were announced. These seniors were selected on their "leadership qualities, extra-curricular activities, and contributions to Ithaca College with departmental contribution taken into consideration." One of the students named "Ten Top Seniors" began last year to give recognition to deserving seniors. It has been found that in previous years many students who have contributed a great deal of time and effort while in college are left unmentioned.

Thus annually through "Ten Top Seniors" Ithaca College and its students can give thanks for a job well done.

Letters To The Editor

To The Class of '61:

In theory, every couple who went to Spring Weekend this year paid ten dollars for two dances and food for a picnic. But, there was an awful lot of us who paid our money for the two dances, but not because we didn't go to the picnic, but because the price of the picnic was too high. When we went to get our food we were told there was no more food.

Evidently you didn't plan on feeding everyone. Obviously, your methods of taking tickets made it easy for too many people to get too much food.

Poor planning seemed to be the perpetuating theme of this Spring Weekend. Perhaps too much powder was placed in too few shoes.

Please favor classes please take note that Spring Weekend is a clean project and that people expect to see those who paid for it was clean.

To the class of '61, thanks a lot for making this our last Spring Weekend a poor memory rather than the happy one we had hoped for.

Criticism of Pajama Game

The Pajama Game, directed by Charles H. Randall and produced by Ithaca College this past week, proved to be one of the most enjoyable and exciting experiences of theater goers in Ithaca.

Willard Brasok and Vergil Cornia both did exceptional jobs as Music Director and Choreographer. Barry T. Pottle provided interesting settings for each scene particularly the Jealousy Ballet. Costumes by Barbara Campbell complimented the sets.

Seeing no exceptions to a fine show, each and every member of Pajama game must be congratulated. Charles Moss, a good comedian, turned in a hilarious performance, although it seemed to be slightly overdone at times.

Sandra Lee Paolini again demonstrated her fine and unusual talent in the role of Babe Williams. Miss Paolini demonstrated the vigor and freshness her role required in such numbers as "There One Was A Man," a role as well suited for her as the name was required for her part. One exception to this was in "Hey There" where she portrayed the tender emotions required. Jim Miller was another who ranked highly. Although not outstanding in voice, he gave a good performance in the character of Sid Sorokin. In addition, he was a pleasure for the female audience to view.

The two most outstanding performers were Kathy Keating and Joyce Chumbley. Miss Chumbley was a saucy cute character throughout Pajama Game. Her dance numbers were a pure delight to the audience. Kathy Keating as Mabel, demonstrated a fine talent, particularly in her number with Charles Moss entitled "I'll Never Be Jealous Again." Their complete number was a tremendous show stopper.

Others in the cast worth being mentioned for minor parts were Doris Schafer as Mae and Craig NacNab as Pop. To the entire cast, it must have been a fun show to work in, because it was a fun show to watch.

Moments To Remember

Some people think that all Spring Weekends are merry, mirthful affairs, but I tend to think that each Spring Weekend is a little bit different, for all the others. I know for a fact that the ways in which particular weekends affect the people who attend them vary to an extreme degree. And the weekends do affect the people who attend them, make no mistake about that. Often those effects are very personal and original and are strange, but they are always there. For instance, there is the story about one Sophomore who became very disillusioned after going to one Spring Weekend. He told his friend of the after the weekend was over that never again would he go to any of those foolish parties. He said he was through with drinking. He swore that he would never touch another drop again. He was finished—for all time—forever. And if this wasn't enough he added as an afterthought, "and all women are now damn right good." Spring Weekends are very often very disillusioning. But on the other hand occasionally they can be, and in fact often have been, occasions for great new found happiness. A pretty co-ed I knew confessed to me that she had fallen in love on Spring Weekend. She saw her Wonder morning to the shock and, although she didn't look as if she were in love, she said to me in a dreamy but somewhat

Pete’s Page

Well, now, it’s getting down to the real end of the year, so that will be the final edition of Pete’s Page for this Spring. But be popular, I’ll be back in the fall to take up more space.

Did I mention something about the Bombers to end up with a 9-5 record this year? If luck’s boys keep going at their present pace, (as he sophomore righty looks good, the road trip wasn’t too bad) Saturday’s portia is well over the January Bombers to end up with a 9-5 record again this year. 38 runs in 28 hits on their first two-game weekend isn’t too bad. . .

Club batting average is well over the .300 mark, and a big part of it is due to big Jim Russell. . . picture for the sophomore righty looks good, with on South Hill and in Bonneuw Sports Arena. . .

Drew game, rallied out last Wednesday, is not likely to be rescheduled. . . There is a chance that the Bombers will make up Saturday’s rainout against Robert and G. McRae, . . . Next home game scheduled for this Saturday against Hartwick, and game after that is a doubleheader with St. Lawrence. . . The Larries gave the Bombers one of their rougher battles last season, I. C. winning 6-4.

Russin still unbeaten . . . Harvey’s Newman team now, they’re taking on Brockport and Cortland this afternoon. . . Trackmen also show an all-winning record, having
