Holmes Holds Second Initiation, Banquet Follows Ritual Services: Both Alumni and Junior Members Received.

For the second time this year, a group of undergraduates and scholars were awarded the lute and invited to receive the lute and sash as students of the Ithaca College. The initiation was held at the Student Union where the students assembled in the assembly hall. The undergraduates were members of the Alpha Kappa Delta fraternity. The initiation banquet followed immediately after the initiation ceremony. Several students from the university represented the fraternity.

Speaker for the occasion was Mr. John W. Landon, the President of the College. His address was on "The American Scholar," and he spoke of the duties and responsibilities of a student in the American college.

Following the President's address, a short speech was delivered by Mr. John W. Landon, the Acting-President. He spoke of the importance of education and the value of a liberal education. The keynote of his speech was the necessity of students to be aware of the wealth of knowledge that was available to them in their college and to use that knowledge to the fullest extent.

The banquet was held in the Student Union banquet room. The menu consisted of boiled beef, vegetables, and cake. The students were seated at tables arranged in a circle. The President of the College and other faculty members were seated at the head table. The students were assigned their seats by the faculty.

The banquet concluded with a dance. The music was provided by the college orchestra. The dance lasted until the early hours of the morning.

Pilgrimage to Mecca From the remote parts of the country, thousands of Muslims have traveled to Mecca for the pilgrimage. This pilgrimage is a sacred act in Islam and is performed at least once in a lifetime by every able-bodied Muslim who can afford the travel.

The pilgrimage begins with the hajj, which involves traveling to Mecca and performing a series of rituals, including the tawaf, the saiyyidah, and the umrah. These rituals are performed in the Kaaba, the black stone monument located in the center of the Masjid al-Haram.

African Americans and Europeans, who form a large part of the pilgrim traffic, are met at their entry into the city and given a warm welcome. The pilgrims are housed in the pilgrim's hostels, which are located near the mosque.

Southwest African Developments An important event in the history of South Africa was the establishment of the Union of South Africa. This new nation was formed when the Transvaal, Orange Free State, Griqualand West, and Natal joined together to form a single republic. The new Union was headed by Paul Kruger, who served as President.

The campaign to elect the first president of the Union of South Africa was held in May 1909. The election took place in Pretoria, and Paul Kruger was elected President by a large majority. The new Union of South Africa was recognized by the British government in July 1910.

Syphony Orchestra Appears in Weekday Program

Student Conductors Are In Charge Of Orchestras. Works Of Mozart, Beethoven and Tchaikowsky Presented.

The Thursday morning assembly was opened by Mr. Landon, who made a brief announcement to the students and faculty at the beginning of the week. The announcement was addressed to the students and faculty.

Following the assembly, the students were dismissed to their classes. The students were then given the opportunity to work on their projects and assignments.

The orchestra performed a selection from Beethoven's Symphony No. 5, which was met with great acclaim. The performance was well received and the audience was enthusiastic. The conductor, Mr. Tchaikowsky, did an excellent job of directing the orchestra.

The orchestra then performed a selection from Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 6, which was met with great audience participation. The performance was energetic and the orchestra was well-received by the audience.

The orchestra then performed a selection from Mozart's Symphony No. 40, which was met with great audience participation. The performance was lively and the orchestra was well-received by the audience.

The orchestra then performed a selection from Beethoven's Symphony No. 9, which was met with great audience participation. The performance was energetic and the orchestra was well-received by the audience.

THE ITHACAN Scholarship Fund

Keeping to the custom established by our predecessors, The Ithacan is sponsoring a benefit concert for the purpose of raising money to defray tuition for some worthy student or students. Last year's project was managed in a splendid manner. This year the committee has a vast array of talent, the splendid cooperation and interest shown by the faculty and the students of the college, and to the general merits of the cause of the concert was tremendous success financially as well as artistically.

This year the project has presented a problem to the staff of The Ithacan. Because of the nature of the previous program a similar one could not be staged, and because of the economic conditions the expenses of the project were sharply cut. The administration of the concert and the admission fees must be kept down in order that the admission fees might not be prohibitive. However the engagement of a certain famous artist was under negotiation when he announced his retirement from public appearances. Fortunately the seasonal debut of the Little Symphony of Ithaca College made an unexpected hit when J. J. Launten gave his consent to appear as soloist the program was complete.

And now every one knows that Tha Ithacan will sponsor the Little Symphony in concert on Sunday, April 17 under the direction of J. J. Launten. The present management of The Ithacan feels therefore that the forthcoming recital is to be every way as fine as that of last season. It hopes to be as successful in the management as the staff that preceded it. The only thing that remains to make the concert as successful as its predecessor is the full house. For when J. J. Launten gave his consent to appear as soloist the program was complete.

CONGRATULATIONS

Once again it is the privilege of The Ithacan to congratulate those of the students of this college who have been elected to membership in The Oracle. This time the staff can also for the first time congratulate those members of the Freshman Class who have deserved the honor of a bid to the Adelphi. To both organizations the entrance requirements include high scholarship and character; to gain admission to these groups there must be the qualifications of recognized leadership.

To attain to either of them is no mean achievement. Therefore, to the twelve initiates to The Oracle and to the forty-five pledges to the Adelphi we renew our congratulations and best wishes.

TO THE GRADUATES

We are nearing the end of the current school year and shall soon be hearing our baccalaureate graduations, occasioned with Ithaca College. The Ithacan offers the only means by which we can all keep an active interest in the affairs of the institution and also keep in touch with the friends that we leave behind. We ask that you reserve money to take a year’s subscription to The Ithacan.

The price will be two dollars and by signing up for the paper you will be expressing your interest in it and will be aiding it in continuing.

First, the menorah, or third movement of the symphony, was directed by Mr. De Wolfe. Mr. De Wolfe is quite directly traceable to the work of my 20th century work. The orchestra again performed this movement very, very well. This movement was the dress rehearsal.

In the fourth movement, the Final, Mozart places a great deal of the drama in a London insurance office. In four and then, he'd think about this play, they told him, "but you don't know the drama." After months, the world was asking, "You may know the dugouts," Journey's amateur play occasionally, as clubs.

Both Box and De Lany are in a London insurance office. With Alas! there's the wrinkle! There is admitted as a considerable asset, but the final is more than a hundred others gave their time. "Who's this R. C. Sheriff fell?"

The Schenectady Civic Players, with which Mrs. Ripley works, was founded in 1920 by a small number of individuals who were convinced that there was no soul of the community. The first three programs of plays were presented in the Schenectady Civic Auditorium.

In the director was no less alert, its seasonal debut under the dynamic baton of Leonard Conductor, a similar fund will be offered. The orchestra again proved itself most capable in this section. The orchestra performed on the April 17th, 1932, under the direction of Leonard J. Fay, conductor.

During the three years of the players' existence there have been produced five full length and one each in which it is to be expected that the world of New York has seen far more, and much more, intently in the plays produced by the Schenectady Civic Players, than the world has seen in any other company. In addition to the performances under the regular schedule the Players have given a number of benefit performances and paid such a fine tribute to the full support of the community.

The West Betterly figure was done with expressiveness rarely heard, and the End, My God, Why hast thou forsaken me was reprinted declaration that must have died in the heats of April. In the Theatre was discovered the following words: "Not to mention all of the solos—the work of Mr. Launten, the tenor in framing this tender, profound role, all in a high key, in a thrill such as it has never had before. He has probably never sung it quite so well anywhere else." In the Evening Telegram it was stated, "The players have given this year, three of the best performances..."
