The College A Capella Choir took part in the evening service at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday, April 2, Director Ewing was in charge. This choir is an offshoot of the music of the College Choir, the famous choral group of the college. The choir's director, Mr. Frank Herbert, has gained national acclaim for his work with the choir. The choir's activities include a variety of performances, both on and off campus. The choir's repertoire includes a wide range of music, from classical pieces to contemporary compositions. The choir is known for its high level of musical skill and its dedication to providing a platform for the expression of diverse voices. The choir is also involved in community outreach, performing at local events and participating in workshops and guest lectures. The choir's members are dedicated to their craft and have a strong sense of community, working together to create a vibrant and dynamic musical experience.
For the delight (?) of those students who intend to possess the Easter holiday in the metropolis, I submit a list of current happenings in what is sometimes called "The field of dreams." (The field has been producing a generous crop of words this season. However, there are a few flowers blooming to relieve the scene.)

You will be able to see shows at a lower price than has greeted the playgoers in ten years.
Fair is available at fifty cents, good ones at seventy-five, and excellent ones at a dollar to twonight.

Dr. Lightner Witmer, clincial director of the University, in his treatise on intelligence, says that education is intelligence. In his elaborations on education, Dr. Witmer would no more accept the notion that intelligence, such an abomination as it is, can be taught by education or by the most rigid sectarianism than the necessity of conforming to some standard of appreciation. This may be self-appreciation.

There are no rules or ideals which Dr. Witmer explains. In connection with intelligence, and success, are just the things to write home about. Trained competency for old age, through the help of a jujitsu school on upper Broadway, near the sixties. Spectators are welcome.

If you're good at snubbing, let me suggest that you walk along the left hand side of West 42nd Street until you come to the side-out showing cumed in there in winter quarters—everything from a great blue moon to a fish of logic and intelligence. The circus will give you something to talk about. Trained flyfishing; living on human blood, perform such intellectual feats as they may; the football game, and juggling. Each flea is an expert in his specialty and the Professor has the patience to fiddle about with them. It is more than any human can imagine. But he gets the crawdads.

And if you're flat broke, like a few others who come to town, you might take a subway uptown to see the "Rooftop." It's a hit, and a good one.

"(Note to various creditors: I get into these places on passes or tickets. Don't care, nor notes that I'm spending cash on them. O.K. — the show we're rehashing make money for all of us— including you, of course)."

Katharine Cornell, generally considered the finest native American actress, is at her peak. The play is only so, Cornell herself is superb.

The new modernist, Frank Lederer, begins his twentih week in support of Dorothy Gibson in "Anna Christie" at "Theatre Five," 45th Street. Margaret Atwood, who plays the beer-drinking woman, is greatly dashing my typewriter, so I have to include this show; but she is merely附urated to Lederer's popularity, and not to the play itself. All means taken go in "Goodbye Again." It is worth the price of admission to watch Osgood Perkins consume ten minutes making his bed without leaving it—good seats at a dollar on Wednesday or Saturday afterwards.

"Design For Living" stars Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt. No more need be said. You'll be lucky if you get a seat, as the show is absolutely booked.

Ithaca Delegates Attend Conference at Cortland State

Teachers, American Poultry League, issues, and the White House conference on recreation appointed by President Roosevelt. Mr. Brown has written several books in the field of recreation. His address on "Lodger in Physical Education" was not only inspirational but filled with practical suggestions for teachers of Physical Education.

Dr. Hiram A. Jones, the new head of the Physical Education Bureau of the state began the afternoon conference. He was graduated from Beaver Falls, Pa., high school and completed his pre-professional course in Allegheny College in 1922, receiving the degree of bachelor of science. He then took post-graduate work at Northwestern University, where he received the degree of Master of Arts in the field of school administration. For a year and a half Dr. Jones was at Teachers' College, Columbia University, serving work for the doctor's degree in Health and Physical Education.

Mr. C. Chamberlain, Director of Physical Education at Benjamin Franklin High School in Rochester, N. Y., presented the subject, "The Determination of Individual Needs."

Mr. Chamberlain is an undergraduate student at the University of Rochester, Cornell University, and Ithaca College. As a graduate he did post-graduate work at the school. Mr. Chamberlain is a graduate of the Cornell University College of Arts and Sciences, and completed work at Columbia University in the summer of 1921.

Mr. J. C. Carter, Director of Physical Education at Longbrook, Ithaca, reviewed the second topic, "The Differentiation of Programs to Meet Individual Needs."

Mr. Carter in 1916 received his diploma from the Department of Physical Education at Battle Creek College and came to New York State the first year of the physical education course. Since then, he has taught continuously in the state except for the years spent in the World War.

For the past 12 years Mr. Carter has been located in the city of Longbrook as a director of Health and Physical Education. During this time he took extension courses at New York State University. Mr. Carter is also a member of the New York State Board of Education.

Mr. Arthur J. Lynch, teacher in Brunswick, New York, and Mr. Issac Yatkin, Professor of Physical Education in Ithaca College, supplemented the material presented by Mr. Carter and led the discussion following his talk.

Alumnus Cosey writes Letter to Aunt Sarah

"can't, for wouldn't be columns - columns - no columns - no columns!" And on his way he went, white for myself, sad, sad, sad, and deeper in thought, I walked down on the street, still more "puzzled" than ever, that I, an old scholar, should be getting on with such discouragements, and would be crowded at and stared at by these two gentlemen. But at the corners of the street, my hopes ran high and my spirits lifted, when I met the best friend I have, New Haven, Helon, and when I turned to my heart's content. When I put the question to him about the two "columns," he replied in a most cheerful and pleasing manner, "Oh, no, Joe, you know as well as I do that these two columns are not so high. It was with a feeling of dead! By his art of make-up and character delineation he brings before your eyes the immortal personalities of Stevenson, Twain, or other literary geniuses who have long since passed from this earth.

His lecture is not an experiment. It has been given from coast to coast before audiences that have experienced genuine appreciation; he has presented his performance throughout the United States, Canada, and Mexico—as a matter of fact, so far, at least, every state in North America!

His lecture is the result of long酝酿 minute speculation which is a deceptive feature of most lecturers. It may be true that books offer literary interpretation of three great men, though oftentimes false impressions. The true interpretation and conviction vision comes as the result of actual interviews with authoritative people and as the result of visits to scenes which are closely associated with the lives of these men of letters.

In preparing his lecture recitals, Professor Landon performs a most worthy service in behalf of English literature. By his unpretentious interpretative art he has made men like Hug. Tennemeyer, Bill Nye, Artemes Ward, portrait, Longfellow, Brett Hart, F. H. Smith, Josh Billings, and Whitman live again.

I hope you all enjoyed the "battle of the columnists." It was going to be continued but will not be since some of the students are of the opinion that we are using the paper for personal use. In view of this argument we shall desist.

The Senior class meeting... male cat models (allape students)... the natural gifts proposed to offer school... fixing the stage... increasing the equipment of the Dramatic School by the addition of a spotlight... and less but not least, the proposition that we are to be allowed to drink a drink at the college... all the secretaries to the executive committee in the college are drinking... the three rahs for the Phy Ed. assemblies... what executive's office is called the "Fortune Teller's Den" and which thirstily... three cheers for "Swanee" in that block... three cheers for "Swarzie" in that block... sign up quick for The Ithacan and get a chance at a scholarship... "Dude" Ellington and his "jazz" band... for all the girls... the "Pink Cadillac" here at this other end of the hall... you will be searched for contraband grapefruit as you enter the hall... for... bees... furry and buy one of those ducky tickets for the Manhattan... etc. etc.

relief and gratification, that I had at least met someone with whom I could converse and three we stood for hours talking with one another in a most pleasant manner.

Now the time has come when I must bring this letter to a close, but not before I send you my best regards and wishes for good health and good luck. I remain, Your loving nephew,
