Kappa Gamma Psi

Junior Weekend proved to be one of the most successful of all student activities. This was particularly for Kappa Gamma Psi. The younger members of Delta Phi Zeta on Friday evening was very enjoyable. The money which was donated to the worthy cancer drive must have been most appreciated.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITY

Many questions have come this way recently in regard to voting and appointment of various student positions. In the light of these questions it might mean that the Students at Ithaca College are unaware of the general procedures in handling these elections.

The Student Council of the Ithaca College of the Presidents of the Four Classes, The Editor of the Ithacan, The Editor of the Cayugan, Chairman of the WCC, and President of the Inter-Fraternity Council. Since membership in the office of one organization constitutes, quite often, participation in another governing body, it is important that the best people are chosen. This has been generally true in past years and was applicable to the people who were elected officers for next year.

All alumni week starts soon. Put your letter in either the alumni box or of Ithaca College. Ithaca, New York, May 16, 1947.

Wells Leads IC Nine With .533 Average

After playing only two games on the season the average of their schedule was below .500 because of the rain and the cold, the Bombers finally got a break from old man Winter by playing through a full three game road trip ending in New England. In the first game at a Union a few times hit couples with costly Ithaca errors put Union on the long end of a seven to four score. Thompson started for Ithaca, was replaced by Buckley and finally Mahy, who held the home team in check for the next four innings. Wilson batted an error and was hit after eight hits but the Bomber were unable to make out their counts.

Up at St. Lawrence the Bombers looked into the win column for the first time this season by edging the Lakers 4-3. Sanders went all the way for the Bombers, blanking the visitors. Of the six runs scored by Ithaca all scored connected only five times at the plate but bunched the hits to take an early lead and then held it.

Robert Entwistle

When Bob Entwistle was faced in Japan, about the music of a drum or a basketball court, his fundamental problem was one of relevance. Bob's ear was more inclined to emphasize with a tuning fork than with a referee's whistle, so no decision was difficult to make.

Bob was born in Newark, New Jersey, in February, 1922. Later years he moved to Nutley. He attended Nutley (N.J.) High School in 1935, and after two years of active participation with the high school band, orchestra, and basketball team, he had to choose either orchestral sports for the regulations would not permit him to undertake both. It was about this time in his life that he took his first piano lesson to supplement the instruction he was receiving for percussion instruments. He graduated from Nutley High in 1939.

Entwistle selected Ithaca College for his advanced education, and in September, 1940, he became a piano major in the Music Department. Here at Ithaca he engaged in the Orchestra, Concert Band, the College Choir and became treasurer in his Junior year. He also served as choral conductor for Phi Mu Alpha Chorus. He also developed a deep interest in dance work outside of curricular activities.

Bob took his schooling under an accelerated plan, so when the army called him in the latter part of 1942, he had completed three years of college. In service he became a "charter member" of the 10th Light Mountain Division when the ski troops were activated. However, in true Army style, Bob landed in the Pacific Theater with the 25th Infantry Division and wound up in Korea. It was during this time of interest of his army adventures, according to Bob was when, "I got out!" after three and a half years of service. In September, 1946, he returned to Ithaca College.

On Christmas Eve, 1943, Bob married Miss June Balzer, former student of Ithaca College and member of SAI sorority. Mrs. Entwistle is at present teaching school in Columbus, Pa.

Next fall, Bob Entwistle will start this career he has planned by teaching music in a school in Lake Forest, Illinois.

Green Room Ghosts
By Helen Topley

It can become very depressing to read current books, both fiction and non-fiction which insist upon dealing with the international situation in a time of depression. It is not an uncommon occurrence to read stories of the world's contentment, but the reader may feel somewhat depressed in reading these. That is why, my friend, at this time every year . . . "I'm feeling mighty low.

THE JUNK-DEALER... If you listen to the radio, you know that Linkletter devotes a portion of his "Houseparty" to the exploration of notices pertaining to the organiza­tion of today... but the quality of the recorded music for Musicraft's "The Sea Gull" is the most amazing, of the school. Keep your ears open to any news or notices pertaining to the organization of the Women's Athletic Association.

Time Out
By Danny Benacchi

A few of the trends in modern jazz are the complexity and instrumental virtuosity. These have been ably illustrated by some of the recordings of today. There is now the Latine Trista Tico which has won the "I Can't Get Started" with a very interesting harmonic background to the melody. The reverse side of this record is also good listening, being titled "I Know Why.

For virtuosity one has just to listen to any record by the group, Charlie and the Orioles. This is a group of one of the best known bands in the U.S.A. No doubt, many of you will enjoy the music of boys, who wear a lot of different clothes and do not wear leather jackets or ties any more. The group of today is very different from the group of yesterday. The group of today is more modern and more artistic. They usually wear slacks and ties and do not wear leather jackets or ties any more.

HODGES, Hamilton, Carney, and Peterson can easily see how a group band is tops in the field of jazz bands. Probably the outstanding modern band in this field is the band of Andy Sivori, "Overture to a Jam Session," featuring ten-inch records, free sax writing, and interesting staccato figures for brass.

WAA To Organize

The Women's Athletic Association of Ithaca College is once again being organized. A new constitution has been drawn up and a proposed executive board to be appointed by the members present shall be formed. Two full-term elections are planned for next semester.

The WAA, as it is generally referred to, consists of girls from all the athletic groups. The main purpose of the organization is to foster interest in inter­departmental sports among the women students of the college. Keep your eyes and ears open to any news or notices pertaining to the organization of the Women's Athletic Association.

On Saturday night the Drama Department will wind up their current season with a presentation of "The Sea Gull," which will be the final production of the year. It's been a pretty good year for shows, with some beautiful plays added to the lengthening list of IC hit. The audience is looking forward to the play with great expectations, as it is one of the most challenging plays ever written, in that it gives a direct and hard job to everyone concerned in the production.

From the actor's point of view the "Gull" is a glorious play. Each character in it has been chosen and carefully drawn by a master playwright. Chekov has painted his characters with such vividness that they can find their way into your mind and live there when the play is over.

The director's job is more complicated. He must take each emotional sequence and value and arrange it according to proper emphasis. From the actor's point of view the "Gull" is a thrilling experience, demanding and evaluating the play as a whole. It's not an easy play to watch. "The Sea Gull" is more than a wonderful, riotous evening of laughter, it is a deep emotional experience for all concerned.

Chekov, in all of his writings, was only indirectly concerned with the outside of a persons behavior. For example, in one of his plays the character is just capable. Another. But the audience never sees them merely as a dirty trick. It sees it as the product of one character's behavior and why he behaves like that. You see the section of another character's soul that is disgust and revoluted by the other characters actions. Chekov never uses comedy for the sake of comedy alone, he uses it as a revelation of character.

There has been much said about Russian drama. The writers and actors that began the Moscow Art Theatre brought a much more personal element to the world of literature. Both. The terms of broad pictures and sweeping panoramas, but in detail. They are people who can get the audience started in the strongest terms, the thousand reactions, emotions and frustrations that are felt in a single day.

The audience will receive the measure of this success. When you take a human's soul and reveal every little phase of it, withholding nothing, the result is both amazing and shocking. And, finally, the play is a revelation, a lesson, a truth. The "Sea Gull" is such a revelation, the result is usually to laugh it off. It's human nature.

So, when you come to "The Sea Gull" the end of this week, read Chekov's words, and then close your eyes and try to see the "Waste Landers" of the T. S. Eliot school of thought...
