Program Notes

Crazy Pills

This is a reflection on how a lot of avante-garde music sounds like it's written by crazy people, and in turn, drives many of its listeners crazy.

The Mountain

This piece is dedicated to my calculus teacher, Mr. Derek Hill, and chorus teacher, Mr. Norman Zogaib, from Hamburg High School, who pushed us beyond where we thought we could reach and taught us all how to climb the mountains that we face in life. They have done and continue to do great things for their students.

String Quartet No. 1 in E Minor

When listening to this piece, you may wonder why it is I decided to present these three movements as one piece rather than three, considering how different they are. This is because I am a fairly new composer, and wrote this piece more as a personal exercise than anything else, helping to expand my range both stylistically and idiomatically (strings are a foreign instruments for me). I had the entire piece in mind before I started, so it only seemed natural to present it as one work.

Through the Fire and Flames

On towards the wilderness our quest carries on! Whoa-oh-oh, whoa-oh-oh, whoa-oh-oh-oh-oh!
