PROGRAM NOTES

Ithaca College Chorus

Songs of Children, for choir, violin, viola, cello and piano, is a cantata of nine poems written by children while interned at Terezin Concentration Camp. The cantata was composed in memory of all children who perished in the Holocaust. The purpose of the work, as initially conceived by Judith Clurman, was to give accessible, musical voice to the poetry, that it be performed in schools as an historically instructive vehicle. I have placed at the beginning of the cantata a passage from Deuteronomy which more eloquently states the purpose of Songs of Children: “Only take heed, and keep your soul diligently, lest you forget the things which your eyes have seen, and lest they depart from your hearts all the days of your life; make them known to your children and your children’s children.”

Musically, I have achieved unity in the cantata by use of the cantus firmus technique of composition. Ani Maamin, a Jewish folksong of faith chanted by Jews as they marched to the gas chamber, is the cantus firmus. Each phrase of the folksong respectively serves as the basis for the musical material of each of the nine movements of the cantata. Then I have given individual musical forms to each of the movements, placing these forms of chorale, madrigal, canon, and medieval rondeau to create an overall chiastic, or mirror, structure, Johann Sebastian Bach’s favorite choice when formally ordering the movements of his cantatas. These musical considerations were made to give the highest integrity to a subject affirming our most precious gift, life.

Notes by Robert Convery

Robert Convery is among the handful of composers today writing effectively for the voice. His music is expressed in a distinctly personal voice of lyricism, rhythmic vitality, a keen harmonic sense, and transparent textures. Mr. Convery has written four one-act operas, twenty cantatas, choral works in every description, nine song cycles, and more than 150 songs for voice and piano. His Songs of Children received its Washington D.C. premiere April 16, 1993 as part of the celebration of the opening of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum. Convery holds degrees from The Curtis Institute of Music, Westminster Choir College, and The Julliard School where he received his doctorate. He has studied composition with Ned Rorem, David Diamond, and Vincent Persichetti.
Texts of "Songs of Children"

I. The Garden

Only take heed, and keep your soul diligently,
Lest you forget the things which your eyes have seen,
And lest they depart from your hearts all the days of your life;
Make them known to your children and your children’s children.

Deuteronomy 4:9

A little garden,
Fragrant and full of roses.
The path is narrow
And a little boy walks along it.

A little boy, a sweet boy,
Like that growing blossom.
When the blossom comes to bloom,
The little boy will be no more.

II. At Terezin

When a new child comes everything seems strange to him.
What, on the ground I have to lie? Eat black potatoes?
No! Not I!
I’ve got to stay here? It’s dirty here! The floor - why, look, it’s dirt, I fear!
And I’m supposed to sleep on it? I’ll get all dirty!

Here the sound of shouting, cries, and oh, so many flies.
Everyone knows flies carry disease.
Oooh, something bit me! Wasn’t that a bedbug?
Here in Terezin, life is hell,
And when I’ll go home again, I can’t yet tell.

“Teddy” 1943

III. On A Sunny Evening

On a purple, sun-shot evening
Under wide-flowering chestnut trees
Under the threshold full of dust
Yesterday, today, the days are all like these.
Trees flower forth in beauty,
Lovely too their very wood all gnarled and old
That I am half afraid to peer
Into their crowns of green and gold.

The sun has made a veil of gold
So lovely that my body aches.
Above, the heavens shriek with blue
Convinced I’ve smiled by some mistake.

The world’s abloom and seems to smile.
I want to fly but where, how high?
If in barbed wire, things can bloom
Why couldn’t I? I will not die!

Anonymous 1944

VI. The Closed Town
Everything leans, like tottering, hunched old women.
Every eye shines with fixed waiting and for the word, “when?”
Here there are few soldiers. Only shot-down birds tell of war.
You believe every bit of news you hear.

The buildings now are fuller, body smelling close to body,
And the garrets scream with light for long, long hours.
This evening I walked along the street of death.
On one wagon, they were taking the dead away.

Why have so many marches been drummed here?
Why so many soldiers?

Then
A week after the end,
Everything will be empty here.
A hungry dove will peck for bread.
In the middle of the street will stand
An empty, dirty,
Hearse.

IV. The Little Mouse
A mousie sat upon a shelf,
Catching fleas in his coat of fur.
But he couldn’t catch her - what chagrin! -
She’d hidden ‘way inside his skin.
He turned and wriggled, knew no rest,
That flea was such a nasty pest!

His daddy came
And searched his coat.
He caught the flea and off he ran
To cook her in the frying pan.
The little mouse cried, “Come and see!
For lunch we’ve got a nice, fat flea!”

Aure Volanti
Francesca Caccini received her early training in singing and composition from her famous father. While still quite young, she had already become known at the Florentine court both for her singing and for her proficiency at a variety of instruments. She concertized widely in Italy, and in 1604 accompanied her father and sister to France, where she proved a great success. Simultaneously pursuing careers as a teacher, performer, and composer, Caccini was recognized as one of the leading musicians at the rich Tuscan court.

Aure volanti comes from Caccini’s opera La Liberazione di Ruggiero dall’ isola d’Alcina, first performed in Florence in 1625. The libretto of La Liberazione is by Fernando Saracinelli. One of the earliest operas to be based on a modern rather than a classical subject, La Liberazione was also the first Italian opera to be performed outside Italy - in the court of Wladislaw IV of Poland. Aure volanti is sung by the nymphs of Alcina, who describe the pleasures of their island to the shipwrecked Ruggiero, whom they seek to detain there.

Translation:
Wandering breezes, sweet birds that sing, soft trickling fountains grace and pleasures surround one here and make the sun more bright.
Cool frosted caverns, glowing sunlight, green waving meadows, violets and lilies surround one here make the sun more bright, the day much lighter.

O Vos Omnes
Originally published in 1585, this motet is a setting of one of the Responses to be sung at Matins on Holy Saturday. Tomás Luis de Victoria lived in Rome from 1565 to around 1584. He then returned to his native Spain. His composition style was emotionally rich and fervent. All of his choral works were sacred. His motets were dramatic but handled with subtlety. His motets demonstrate a fondness for minor seconds to express the lamentations of Jeremiah, leaps of diminished fourths to reflect grief, and a stepwise upward progression through an octave to delineate the ascension of Christ.
Passages are in chordal style when the text includes the words "all" or "many" and rhythm goes from duple to triple when the idea of the Trinity is introduced.

Translation:
O all you who pass this way, behold and see if there be any sorrow like my sorrow.

My Heart’s Friend
Born in Latvig, Imant Raminsh moved to Canada as a child. After completing his Associateship diploma studies in violin at the Royal Conservatory of Toronto and a Bachelor of Music at the University of Toronto, he spent two years in post-graduate work at the Akademie Mozarteum in Salzburg. During this time, he participated in concert tours and recordings with the professional Camerata Academie Orchestra. He has maintained a lifelong interest in vocal and choral music and most of his compositions display a strongly melodic emphasis reflecting his Latvian song-oriented cultural heritage.

His compositions have been commissioned by and performed by the New Caledonia Orchestra, the Okanagan Symphony, the Masterpiece Trio of Vancouver, the Vancouver Chamber Choir, the Vancouver Bach Choir, the Tudor Singers of Montreal, Amity Singers of Victoria, the Festival Singers of Canada, the Stockholm Chamber Choir, the Glen Ellyn Children’s Choir, Choral Music Experience, and many others. He is also an associate composer of the Canadian Music Centre.

The text of “My Heart’s Friend” is a translation of a Shoshone Indian text. The interpretation was written by the great American novelist, Mary Austin (1868-1934) best known for her works about the Native Americans of the southwest. “My Heart’s Friend” is from the second set of Songs of the Lights which has a theme of the natural lights of the world and the universe as seen through the eyes and as interpreted in the mythology and poetry of the native American peoples. Subjects range from the primordial creation of light (from a Mayan text bearing a remarkable resemblance to the parallel passage in the Book of Genesis), through the first illuminations of the sun, moon, and stars. There are appearances of more modes lights such as the rainbow, fireflies, to the extinguishing of light in the last wisps of sunset.

Canticle of the Sun
Libby Larsen’s works encompass orchestra, dance, opera, choral, theater, chamber and solo repertoire and are sought after and performed throughout the United States and Europe. Larsen is widely honored, including participation as producer for the 1994 Grammy Award winning “The Art of Arleen Auger,” on which Larsen’s Sonnets from the Portuguese is featured. Her music explores the American vernacular and its refreshing qualities on the concert tradition. Her works are widely written about and recorded by Angel/EM!, Koch International, Nonesuch and Decca among others. In 1973, she co-founded the Minnesota Composers Forum, (now the American Composers Forum,) a composers cooperative which became the inspiration and model for much that has happened in promoting and establishing composers in America. She has served as composer in residence with the Minnesota Orchestra and the Charlotte Symphony and is an advisor to many musical organizations, including the National Endowment for the Arts, ASCAP, and the American Symphony Orchestra League.

The Canticle of the Sun incorporates a text by St. Francis of Assisi with the sounds of synthesizer, finger cymbals, and women’s voices.

Larsen is featured in the MacMillan textbook, MUSIC! and the newly released Pandora’s Guide to Women Composers by Sophie Fuller and is the Karel Husa Visiting Professor of Composition at Ithaca College for 1998-99. She will visit Ithaca College in October, February, and April.
