In Brazil, she was the assistant conductor of Theatro da Paz Symphony Orchestra (OSTP) and performed in important concerts with this orchestra, such as XXIX and XXX International Music Festival of Pará. She conducted the closing concert of the XVI International Opera Festival at Theatro da Paz, being the first woman to conduct at these festivals and orchestra. She is also, the principal conductor and artistic director of “Zarabatana Jazz Band” since 2010, having recorded 2 DVDs and 2 CDs. Cibelle is a professor at the School of Music of the Federal University of Pará, too.

In 2018, Cibelle won the scholarship to participate in the 49th Winter Festival of Campos de Jordão, the most prestigious festival in Latin America, studying with Marin Alsop (USA), Valentina Peleggi (IT), Sian Edwards (UK), among others. In this festival, she premiered in Sala São Paulo, conducting the USP Symphony Orchestra (OSUSP). She also conducted the Festival Youth Orchestra and the Brazilian premiere of “Measures of Turbulence” (Steven Mackey/USA). In 2016, Cibelle was one of the 4 conductors selected to participate in the prestigious “Laboratory of Conducting” of the Minas Gerais Philharmonic Orchestra (OFMG) with Mo.
