Le Journal du Printemps (translated “A Spring Journal”) is a collection of eight suites of unspecified instrumentation each beginning with an introductory overture and ending with a chaconne. Tonight the third suite is programmed in an arrangement by Keith Wilson (1916-2013). Wilson is best known for his wind band arrangement of Hindemith’s Symphonic Metamorphoses on Themes by Karl Maria von Weber. JCF Fischer was regarded as one of the foremost keyboard musicians of his day and is considered important as a composer because he influenced numerous German composers, among them Johann Sebastian Bach.

The tone poem, On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring, is based on a Norwegian folk song introduced to the composer by Percy Grainger. The theme was later quoted by Edvard Grieg in his Nineteen Folksongs, op. 66. Delius, an English composer, was first sent to America by his father to manage an orange plantation. He neglected his duties, electing to spend more time on his musical studies and later returned to Europe for more formal musical study. His first successes came in Germany in the late 1890s and later, in his native England, he won special favor due to his music’s lyricism at a time when classical music’s trend toward experimental dissonances took charge.

Composer Alfred Reed writes, “‘When the hounds of spring are on winter’s traces,’ a magical picture of young love in springtime, forms the basis for the present purely musical setting, in traditional three-part overture form, of this lovely paean… an attempt to capture the twin elements of the poem, exuberant youthful gaiety and the sweetness of tender love, in an appropriate musical texture.” Reed was one of America's most prolific and frequently performed composers, with more than 250 published works for wind band, orchestra, chorus, and various smaller chamber music groups to his name. In addition to winning the Luria Prize in 1959, he had been awarded over 60 commissions.
According to the composer, Febris Ver (translated Spring Fever), is a variegated post-minimalist landscape that evokes the sensuous essences of spring. The aromas, colors, flavors, and aural delights of Earth's perennial rebirths are interwoven with chorale-like textures, first introduced by the brass, then playfully tossed about by the rest of the ensemble. The work was composed for the College Band Directors National Association (CBDNA) 2012 Eastern Division Conference at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, where it was premiered by the IUP Wind Symphony.

Based on Nathaniel Hawthorne’s short story The Maypole of Merry Mount, its plot is anything but merry. Set in a Puritan town in old New England, it concerns a pastor’s romantic obsession with a visiting Lady Marigold Sandys. The austere “Overture” which describes the Puritans, makes extensive use of the modal writing Hanson considered keeping with the Puritan character. The playfulness of the second movement, “Children’s Dance” is deceptive: it reflects the disruptive presence in the town of the hedonistic cavaliers. The third movement, “Love Duet” would not be out of place in Hanson’s Romantic Symphony, with its passionate account of the pastor’s desire. The exhilarating “Maypole Dances” uses original themes to depict the springtime ritual dance and becomes the object that scandalizes the Puritans and leads the pastor to murder. The arranger, John Boyd, is Director of Bands at Indiana State University.
